BLACK RIVER CO. USES CHEVROLET

The novel combination of a covered wagon and a Chevrolet roadster mounted in front on skis and in the rear on snowmobile caterpillar tractors, is the strange-appearing vehicle used by the Black River Telephone company of Lowville, N. Y., for winter trouble-shooting on its lines in the heavy snow belt of New York State.

The difficult winter territory for the company's linesmen extends from Lake Ontario to Raquette Lake in the Adirondack Mountains and involves the maintenance of service throughout a chain of 20 exchanges. This type of vehicle, which will travel over the most formidable snowdrifts, was assembled by H. O. Peebles, a mechanic in the employ of the telephone company.

November In Tryon

By ALBERT L. BERRY
Mountain side, plain and valley are now wearing every color of the spectrum: all the replendent beauty that nature is capable of producing is seen in the gorgeous raiment that the sun has painted on the canvas of nature, out rivaling all that Oriental beauty has ever produced.

The oak, lord of the forest, is decked with regal coloring, every shade that the sun's prism can yield is woven into his royal fabric, over which the pines tower in their fern-like garments of green.

Here is a sourwood set like a rose window in a high cathedral mountain side, with its long, delicate fingers of bright scarlet and its golden tassels drooping like rich epaulets from the shoulders of an admiral. Next to it stands a maple, on one side the sun has spilled its pigments spattering the leaves with gold and red, while the other side of the tree still retains its fresh green color. Nearby is another maple flaming with red with long scarlet plumes as feathery as ever seen in Oriental court. And then the dogwood with its rich vestments of crimson and red berries like beads on a rosary. An ash with long, slender leaf, like the paddle blade of a canoe, its silver lining turning to a rich amber. The yellow poplar, or tulip tree, a panoply of orange in its royal plumage. The sweetgum with drooping finger tips turning to flaming red.

The rebud with regalia of scarlet and brown on its heart-shaped leaves the cardinal of the hillsides and valleys, its long swinging stems bordered with lace of orange and red. The black locust still holding its graceful pendants with opening purple pods that swing like censers scattering their seeds with the wind. The linden carrying its cluster of brownish pods that have furnished the bees their honey all summer. The whiteheart, or white hickory, is covered with a parasol of yellow and gold under which hang pear-shaped nuts.

The background to all this sea of primeval coloring is the grandeur of the mountains that glow with ever changing beauty from the azure splendor of the morning to the rich glow of midday, and then the dawn-like whiteness of twilight that deepens into a stillness that is sublime and majestic.

Such is the glory of November on our mountains!
Tryon, N. C.

BAKED BANANAS

Baked bananas are in order, as winter advances. Peel the bananas, split lengthwise, place in a baking dish, sprinkle with lemon juice and sugar, and bake until tender. Serve warm for dessert.

The Horn's Triumvirate

These three men, known wherever horns are played, were among the musical folk who gathered in Elkhart, Ind., recently for the annual "music feast" of the Conn Music Center, to discuss the value of instrumental music in the training of boys and girls. At the right is Bohumir Kryl, world-famous in the trumpet and leader of the band bearing his name. In the center is Cornet virtuoso and leader of the band Frederick Nell Innes, of Band Instrument C. D. Greenleaf, president of the National Association of Band Instrument Manufacturers, and at the left is Frederick Nell Innes, foremost trombone virtuoso of the eighties and nineties and leader of the famous Innes band. Mr. Innes is now head of the Conn National School of Music in Chicago.

ON THE FEDERAL SYSTEM

(Spartanburg Herald)
Spartanburg will be pleased with the announcement made in Washington Saturday to the effect that the highway from Newberry by way of Spartanburg to Hendersonville, N. C., has been added to the Federal system of number national highways. The numbering has not been done in the Carolinas, but within a short while this work will be under way in the section of the country. State highway No. 8 is a nationally numbered road, but until the "Appalachian highway" was added to the system there was no north and south highway serving Spartanburg carrying a national number.

This recognition will greatly add to the importance of Spartanburg's road to the mountains and will give the towns of Tryon and Saluda, N. C. highway advantages of first consideration. It should afford another reason why that section of the highway in North Carolina between Tryon and Saluda should be permanently constructed at the earliest possible date. In this manner Spartanburg has had the co-operation of the South Carolina authorities and while the first Federal system for the state did not recognize the highway through Spartanburg into Western North Carolina, Spartanburg's point of view has been repeatedly urged upon the Federal authorities. Federal numbered highways will cross in Spartanburg and that is important.

(From Spartanburg Herald)

IN THIS GREAT CATHEDRAL

The gold to the meadow weeds?
Who hangs upon the barberry bush
Its rosary of beads?
Who brightens the dawn with silver,
And carpets the heaven with gold;
Who lights the fire-flies' sparkling lamps,
And carries the stars in His fold?
'Tis He who rounds the planets,
And guides them in their flight;
'Tis He who moulds the tear drop
That sorrow sheds at night.

Yet in His great cathedral,
It's golden lighted dome,
I worship with a thousand worlds,
And feel myself at home.

WINTER DESERTS

Dried fruit shortcakes make good winter desserts. Prunes, figs, dates, raisins, apricots, and peaches may be used in this way. Stew the fruit, sweeten to taste, removing any pits, and add such special seasonings as spices or a few drops of lemon juice if you desire. Spread the mashed fruit pulp on both layers of a biscuit foundation which has been split in half and well buttered. Cream either plain or whipped is an acceptable addition to these shortcakes.
