CARDWELL'S COLUMN

By GUY A. CARDWELL, Agricultural & Industrial Agent, A. C. L. Railroad Co.

IT IS TIME TO INCREASE OUR LIVESTOCK POPULATION

The University of North Carolina News Letter, February 20th, 1935 issue calls attention to the fact that North Carolina continues to rank near the bottom among the States in livestock.

In total value of all major forms of livestock on farms in 1935 North Carolina ranks 19th, South Carolina 33 and Virginia 26th. This rating means little however, as on a farm basis the rank would be nearer the bottom and in percentage of income derived from livestock and livestock products we are probably still worse off.

The Carolinas show a large mule population and a small horse population, while Virginia has a large horse population and a small mule population. However, the Carolinas do not produce either horses or mules in worthwhile numbers and the total value of these animals represents wealth that has gone to horse and mule raising states to pay for this work stock.

Quoting from the News Letter:

"For the United States the value of cattle, hogs, and sheep is far ahead of the value of mules and horses. For North Carolina the value of mules and horses is two and a quarter times the total value of cattle, hogs, and sheep. Again there are only four states where the ratio of mules and horses, or work animals, to meat and milk animals is higher than in North Carolina.

Once in a blue moon the extremely highly commercialized non-food cash crop system of central and eastern North Carolina does bring in cash. Experience shows that the cash does not long stick to the palms that sweat it out, and that the standard of living quickly reverts to a low level. If our splendid cash crops could be coordinated with enough livestock of the meat and milk variety to give the farmers at least a balanced ration the situation would be greatly improved. It is doubtful if this will ever occur in an area of overwhelming tenancy as in eastern North Carolina, probably the most deficient meat and milk area of all farm regions in America."

We should review our lasts and adjust them rather than to dwell on our firsts. It would be helpful to recall from time to time the words of that inspired Georgian, Henry W. Grady, in speaking of independent farmers.

"When every farmer in the South shall eat bread from his own fields and meat from his own pastures and, disturbed by no creditors and enslaved by no debt, shall sit down among his teaming gardens and orchards and vineyards and his dairies and barnyards, pitching his crops in his own wisdom and growing them in independence, making cotton his clean surplus, and selling it in his own time in his chosen market and not at a master's bidding; getting his pay in cash and not in a receipted mortgage that discharges the debt but does not restore his freedom—then shall be breaking the fullness of our day."

To Mr. Grady's colorful creed should be added that harsh statement of a former Governor of North Carolina, Thomas W. Bickett,—harsh because of his desire for the improvement of the condition of the people who had honored him:

"If I were the Czar of North Carolina instead of the Governor, I would issue an edict declaring that from and after five years from date any man who imported into North Carolina any corn or meal, wheat or flour, beef or bacon, should be forthwith hanged and without benefit of clergy. Of course, in the beginning I should be denounced as an infamous tyrant, but after the law had been in effect for ten years the richest state in the union would build a monument to me as the financial redeemer of my people."

NATIONAL FORESTS TO COVER A LARGE AREA

Washington, May 12.—The Federal program for conversion of lands into forests in North Carolina is proceeding so gradually that few realize that the program already definitely mapped out contemplates the placing of a very large portion of the State's area into national and State forests.

The fact is that it is proposed to place no less than 20 per cent of the entire State into forests. The Forestry Service of the Department of Agriculture has prepared colored maps showing the long term program, which will extend over a period of years.

When and if the entire program is put into execution, practically all of the region west of Asheville will be series of national forests and forests under private ownership, but operated in cooperation with and under the supervision of the national government, with a goodly sized sprinkling of State forests. Contemplated forests also occupy a considerable area in other portions of the State.

The area of North Carolina is 38,740 square miles or 43,293,600 acres. Land that has actually been placed into national forests amounts to 1,143,800 acres or about 5 per cent of the whole. It is proposed to expand existing forests to three times their present size and a good portion of the two and one-half acres involved.

It is proposed that the present State forest area of 66,000 acres be increased by an additional 1,222,000 acres.

To aid North Carolina and other States to carry out the program for State forests, the House Committee on Agriculture has reported favorably the Fulmer bill providing for loans to the States of $20,000,000.

That bill is now pending before the House Committee on Rules and is expected to be given a preferential position on the House calendar next week. Representative J. Bayard Clark of North Carolina held the bill up in order that he might learn more about the program.

Friends of the measure suggested that Mr. Clark call at the Forestry Service and obtain the desired information. Mr. Clark made the counter suggestion that they come to see him. They came today and with them brought all of the data on the subject and one of the varicolored maps showing the North Carolina of the future.

The map indicates that when the program shall have been completed the reduction of the number of counties in North Carolina will be automatic.

Counties which would be practically absorbed by forests are Graham, Cherokee, Swain, Macon, Jackson, Haywood, Mitchell and Avery, several of which have already been greatly reduced by acquisition of the Great Smoky Smoky Mountain National Park.

In addition the program would cover very large portions of all of the other mountain counties and very substantial portions of the following counties in other sections of the State: Caswell, Person, Orange, Montgomery, Anson, Richmond, Bladen, Tyrrell, Brunswick and Hyde. Counties affected to a lesser extent include Chatham, Durham, Sampson, Pasquotank, Washington and Harnett.

Washington News For U. S. Farmers

Wheat Growers To Vote. Farmers as Exporters. April Rains Relieve. Farm Exports Decrease.

Wheat farmers on the 25th of this month will express themselves on a new wheat production agreement to take the place of the present one which expires with this year's crop.

While the voting in some sections may be a week earlier most of the growers will have the opportunity to express themselves next week. Preparations for the referendum have been about completed and many meetings are being held to explain, discuss and debate the present program.

It is pointed out that the normal yield of the potential acreage in this country is far above the domestic needs and that, in recent years, in spite of low prices, foreign tariffs, quotas and other bars to export, there has not been a sufficient demand for anything like normal production. Exports estimate that if we decide to give up our foreign wheat markets entirely we will have to retire 8,500,000 acres of wheat land permanently.

Moreover, advocates of the present system point out that the processing tax is to do for wheat growers what our tariff laws do for manufacturers, allow them to get more for their product from domestic consumers.

The present outlook is that the growers will favor a new program by a considerable majority. There is opposition, of course. Some is political and some is from the processing and distributing middlemen, who want volume above all else. Moreover, there are disgruntled wheat growers, dissatisfied with some detail of the present program, who feel that while the program may be fair in principle, they have been discriminated against.

Francis B. Sayre, Assistant Secretary of State in charge of the negotiation of reciprocal trade agreements, recently pointed out that even in 1933, when our foreign sales had shrunk, we exported 66 per cent of our cotton, 39 per cent of our leaf tobacco, 25 per cent of lard, 25 per cent of our prepared milk, 46 per cent of our dried fruits, 28 per cent of our canned fruits, 58 per cent of our turpentine, 41 per cent of our refined cotton and 71 per cent of our resin.

This, he suggests, is quite a stake for the farmer in foreign trade. He estimates that elimination of our export trade would mean that 40,000,000 acres of land must be abandoned and that 3,200,000 of the farm population must get money from somewhere else to live.
