

CCC WORKERS PROMOTED TO SUPERVISORY JOBS

Eighteen North Carolina men with outstanding CCC work records in the camps in the Nantahla, Pisgah-Unaka, Cherokee and Zumter National Forests have been promoted to facilitating and supervisory jobs at salaries ranging from $1080 to $1680 according to an announcement by Joseph C. Kircher, Federal Regional Forester for the South, at his headquarters in Atlanta, Ga.

Kircher said that these promotions were made in accordance with the expressed wish of President Roosevelt that a fourth of all new appointments in the facilitating and supervisory ranks of the CCC be filled in this way. Nearly 200 enrollees on National Forests throughout the Southern States have received similar promotions. In many instances the men were totally untrained when they came into camp, and their promotions were earned by hard work and special attention to the occupational opportunities which the Civilian Conservation Corps offers.

Presenting

The one and only H. O. C. sports prognosticator, the insatiably, irrepressible, irresistible, irresponsible peruser of sporting events from the Erie Canal, the one person in sports who designs to write what he is told and defies Crow Rose or Carey Caudell to bet in opposition. In other words, a glance at the upper left-hand corner please, it's Alonza Aloysius Ginsberg.

For his initial interview Mr. Ginsberg lifted his left hand eyebrow, motioned us into a chair, turned on the heat, drank some mosquito repellent and stuck his thumb into a wisdom tooth cavity three times in rapid succession. Finding no gold he knelt on the floor and picked up a right-handed collar button, resumed his seat and began:

"Carolina will beat Georgia Tech by two touchdowns and an extra point. The engineers will go scoreless. The game, however, will be hard-fought. Auburn will take Duke by a small score.

"Manhattan is liable to show most of the boys on State College's team that they should have stayed 'up Nawth'.

"George Washington will probably be whipped by the Wake Forest Preachers. Davidson shouldn't have much trouble in taking the Citadel in tow.

"Wallace, bless those kids' souls, appear to have struck that certain something of which football teams are made of but will probably lose in a close game to Warsaw."

Mr. Ginsberg stated that his predictions were a result of shrewd observation and logical deduction. If he is found in error in over 75 percent of his picks he will make recompense by awarding a year's subscription to the Wallace Enterprise.

A courtship running over a period of twenty-one years, during which time it has endured one money depression, overcome one era of prosperity, one post-war marriage boom and is still running merrily along in the face of another world catastrophe.—That's going some. ?-?-?
