Survey Shows Too Many Grades Of Fertilizer Sold

Farmers Can Eliminate Unnecessary Grades and Save Money

Most farming areas which use large quantities of commercial fertilizer could be supplied by a dozen or so properly selected grades such as 4-8-4, 2-12-6 and others. Yet, farmers as a whole must choose from more than a thousand grades when they buy fertilizer.

Almost 40 percent of the three and a quarter million tons of fertilizer sold in 1934 was of five popular grades, 3-8-3, 3-8-5, 4-8-4, 2-12-6, and 4-8-7. The remainder, a little more than 60 percent, was divided among more than 900 grades, according to a joint survey by the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils and The National Fertilizer Association. This information, the investigators say, might well be used as a basis for reducing the number of grades.

Only 21 grades were sold in Mississippi—the smallest number in any State using large quantities of fertilizer—as compared to 425 grades sold in Florida. In Mississippi 85 percent of the fertilizer was of one grade. In Florida, total sales for each of more than 200 grades were 25 tons or less.

"In most States fertilizer manufacturers are compelled by competition and other circumstances to make and stock many grades," says Dr. W. W. Skinner, Assistant Chief of the Bureau. "Fertilizer bags and tags have to be printed, chemical analysis made, and storage space provided for each grade. The cost of these items is about the same whether 5 or 5,000 tons are sold."

"Farmers can help eliminate many unnecessary grades by finding out the few well-selected grades that will serve their needs. This would help the local fertilizer manufacturer to produce tonnage instead of grades and sell his products for less money."

Results of the joint survey are summarized in a report,

Plant Food Consumption in the United States in 1934. Copies may be obtained as long as the supply lasts from the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, Washington, D. C.

CHOIR DIRECTOR WILL JUDGE MUSIC CONTEST

The Westminster Choir which is scheduled to give a concert at Memorial Auditorium, Raleigh, February 19, will be directed by Dr. John Finley Williamson, to whom belongs the credit for building up this unique group. William J. Henderson, of the New York Sun, said "They show in all their varied among more than 900 grades, according to a joint survey by the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils and The National Fertilizer Association. This information, the investigators say, might well be used as a basis for reducing the number of grades."

Dr. Williamson is recognized internationally as one of the foremost authorities on choral singing. Fourteen years ago, he organized the first Westminster Choir. Since that time it has undergone many changes. Today it emerges as a chorus of symphonic singers schooled in an enormous repertoire ranging from Indian war songs, negro spirituals, modern music on up to such works as Bach's B Minor Mass.

Dr. Williamson will be one of the judges at the State High School Music Contest in Greensboro this spring.

This concert is being sponsored by the North Carolina Music Festival Association. All the proceeds of the concert will go to the Association to be used here in the state. Tickets can be secured at Boone-Isley Drug Store in Raleigh or at the office of the Association in Goldsboro.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, the Divine Ruler has seen fit to call from our midst our esteemed Brother, Robert Cleveland Williams; and,

Whereas, we wish to express to the family our sympathy at his passing and our appreciation for his life and service to this Council and the community;

Therefore, be it resolved:

First: That we bow in humble submission to the will of the Master and thank Him for his life;

Second: That we mourn the loss of one so true and faithful, and will ever cherish his memory;

Third: That we express to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy, and by this token help commemorate the life of our deceased Brother;

Fourth: That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes of the Council, a copy sent to the family and a copy furnished our local paper for publication.
