

Cooperative Hog Selling Brings Cash To Farmers

Markets Operating at Twelve Points in State Are Well Patronized by Hog Growers of Sections Served.

With twelve markets already established and two more under consideration, cooperative hog marketing in eastern North Carolina is proving a boon to swine growers, declares H. W. Taylor, swine specialist for the State College Extension Service. Working with county agents, the growers haul their hogs to a central loading point on prescribed days for shipment to Northern markets in carload lots.

Prices this spring have been good, Taylor says, and farmers generally have been pleased with the cooperative plan. This is the first year that hogs have been shipped on a large scale cooperatively.

Markets now operating in New Bern, Tarboro, Four Oaks, Burgaw, Plymouth, Greenville, Washington, Shawboro, Elizabethtown, Warsaw, Lumberton, Burgaw, and Rowland.

Taylor says that markets in Scotland Neck and Kinston are now under consideration. If sufficient interest is taken, shipping points will be established in these two places. Other points will also be considered.

Leading the way in the largest shipments is the New Bern Cooperative Livestock Market, serving farmers of Craven, Carteret, Jones, Onslow, and Pamlico counties.

To date, according to M. A. Morgan, Craven farm agent, growers have shipped from this point 7,543 hogs, weighing 1,547,344 pounds, and selling for $147,753.46. Shipments are made each Tuesday, with the county agents from all five counties working with their growers in an advisory capacity.

Cotton Classing To Aid Farmers

Object to Encourage Growers in Selecting Improved Varieties for Planting

Dr. R. Y. Winters, director of the Agricultural Experiment Station at State College, says the act just passed by Congress authorizing classing of cotton and extension of market news service to groups of farmers organized to improve the quality of cotton should be of tremendous value to cotton growers in this State.

The act, an amendment to the so-called grade and staple law, administered by the Department of Agriculture, is expected to encourage cotton farmers to organize and select an improved variety adapted to the community. There are already more than 500 such organized communities in the Cotton Belt now eligible for the classing and market news service. Of this number, 10 communities are located in North Carolina, says Director Winters. Farmers who would like to get information on the procedure for organizing a one-variety community should get in touch with their county agents or the Agricultural Experiment Station.

Under the present system of marketing, "hog-around" prices are paid growers on the average quality of cotton sold on the local market. The grower who sells high-quality cotton receives only a small portion of the premiums that such cotton would bring on a central market. This system leaves little incentive for the production of better cotton. That manufacturers are willing to pay premiums for high-grade cotton of long and more uniform staple is shown by the fact that cooperating farmers in a Georgia community in 1 year received an average extra income of $104 each for extra lint and premiums.

Dr. Winters called attention to the interdependency of the classing and market news service. Neither would be effective without the other as a farmer may know the grade and staple classification and sell below the market price, if the market service is not available. On the other hand he may know the market price but not know the correct grade.

More than 3,500 blood-tested baby chicks were purchased in Jones County this spring as a result of demonstrations by the assistant county agent.

Vote On Warsaw School May 15th

Referendum to Decide Location of New Building Ordered by School Committee

Condemned as a "fire trap" by the chief of police, the grammar school building in Warsaw will no longer be used, it was learned by the Enterprise this week.

The school committee recently ordered a referendum to decide on the location of the proposed school, and this will be held Saturday, May 15. The polls open at 9 a. m., and close at 7 p. m.

The referendum will decide whether or not the building to replace the old school building will be erected on the site of the present school, or on a new site adjacent to the present high school.

Second high was made by Mrs. J. B. Wallace. They were both presented lovely pieces of linen. Mrs. May was also remembered when the hostess gave her a lovely blue handkerchief. Delicious strawberry short cake with iced tea were enjoyed after the games.

CONOCO GERM PROCESSED OIL
from Your Mileage Merchant

My station is all on its own. My living's got to come mostly from just you people right here. I want your steady trade, so to build a real growing business. And there's where it helps me a lot. I can tell you, to be selling Conoco Germ Processed oil. You see it makes customers and keeps them for me. It's patented—the only oil that can Oil-Plate your engine. Meaning that a definite part of this oil always fastens direct to every working part... forms a real Plating of oil, which can't run down. Other oils will "dry off" every time you park, but Oil-Plating can't, so you'll never make any hard, grinding starts. And that ends the worst wear of all. Or when you're hitting it up all day, you won't find this real Oil-Plating rubbing right off, like just some plain little drops of oil. Oil-Plating's not thinning out either, nor burning right up. Which gives you mighty solid reasons why Oil-Plating means more mileage from your engine and your Conoco Germ Processed oil. Besides making customers, I get a kick out of changing you to an oil I can believe in myself, right to the limit.
