

RECRUITS FOR NAVY WANTED

Customhouse will fill its quota with men from the following counties, Duplin, Samson, Bladen, Pender, Columbus, Brunswick, and New Hanover. Men living in the above counties who are interested in enlisting in the navy should apply at the Wilmington, office.

Local Young Folks Receive B. S. Degrees

Announcement has been made of the graduation the past week of Miss Frances Katherine Murphy, from the University of North Carolina. Miss Murphy received her B. S. Degree in Public Administration. She is the daughter of Mrs. W. F. Murphy of Wallace.

Francis W. Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Campbell, of Wallace, who also received his B. S. Degree at the graduating exercises at the University, specializing in electrical engineering.

Both of these Wallace young people were prominent in campus and student affairs at the University, and are to be congratulated upon the successful culmination of their college careers.

To Eliminate Dust On Road To Penderlea

Due to the serious lack of rain in this section, and consequent dustiness of the county roads leading in to Penderlea, it has been announced that steps will be taken to treat the roads to lay the dust on the day scheduled for the visit of Mrs. Roosevelt.

Not only will unusually dusty stretches of the highway leading in to the farm settlement be treated, but the grounds near where the big pageant will be presented are also to come in for their share of attention.

Because of the vast crowd of visitors expected for this unusual event this is welcome news, and unless something of the sort is done, much of the pleasure of the First Lady's stay will be destroyed.

Stage Erected For Program Tomorrow

Workmen were busily engaged today in erecting the huge wooden stage beside the Exposition building from which Mrs. Roosevelt will make an address tomorrow as a featured part of the Strawberry Festival.

The First Lady will take a prominent part in the exercises which will begin promptly at 2:45 o'clock and during which will appear, Senator Reynolds, Congressman Barden, Governor Hoey, Governor Johnson, of South Carolina, General McCloskey, and other notables.

Traffic will be closed in the vicinity of the stage to accommodate the thousands who will gather to pay their respect to Wallace's distinguished guests.

FARMERS WILL

SENATOR REYNOLDS

The part that women are playing in national affairs is no better evidenced than in the records of our great national conventions. In this connection, it is interesting to note that at the Democratic National Convention of 1912—the first attended by President Roosevelt—there were only two women delegates. But at the convention of 1932, which nominated our illustrious President, there were 208 women delegates and more at Philadelphia in 1936. And everyone concedes that the presence of the fine women who are leaders in the affairs of their respective states has meant more orderly and pleasant gatherings of National leaders.

It is all evidence that our country is beginning to make a greater use of the variety of abilities and capacities possessed by women, and many of the limitations which were characteristic of the position of women in our earlier order are now being overcome.

Except for an aged lady from Georgia who held office for one ceremonial day, no women had been either appointed or elected to the United States Senate until the autumn of 1931, when Arkansas elected the widow of a statesman to succeed her husband for the unexpired term. Since, that distinguished lady, Senator Hattie Caraway, has been elected in her own right and is now serving with honor. Her daily presence in the Senate is an inspiration to her colleagues. In addition to being chairman of a committee—the Committee on Enrolled Bills—she also serves on the Committees on Agriculture and Forestry, Commerce and the Library. It is needless to say that she bears her share of Senatorial responsibilities.

In the House of Representatives are a number of active women who merit their voices. It is a far cry from the furor created in 1916 when Montana elected the first woman to the National Legislature.

But whether serving in public voice at a desk, in the home or on the farm, women are proving their right to assume greater responsibilities and have greater recognition. And the visit of Mrs. Roosevelt to North Carolina, where the First Lady will mingle with Carolina women who are first in the hearts of their communities, is more evidence of the part women have and deserve in our affairs, national, state and local.

WELCOME TOWN IS ALIVE

Graham A. Barden, General Manus McCloskey, and other individuals prominent in affairs of state and nation, the wife of our distinguished president will be introduced to her fellow countrymen. J. Aubrey Harrell, Mayor of the Town of Wallace, will make the address of welcome. Mrs. Roosevelt will then make a short address, which will be broadcast to the nation through the facilities of the National Broadcasting Company, affiliated with station WPTF, Raleigh.

As the day goes on Wallace's noted visitors will be entertained at various functions given by citizens. Mrs. Roosevelt will be the guest of honor at a tea given by the Wallace Woman's Club between the hours of 4:45 and 5:45, at which time she will be presented to a long list of invited guests.

The tea will be the last appearance of Mrs. Roosevelt until the departure of her train from Wallace at 7:48.

Throughout the day news reel cameramen will take pictures of the various aspects of the day's activities, and representatives of several newspapers will be on hand in Wallace.

Immediately following the departure of the First Lady of the nation, the day's festivities will proceed by the presentation of special features by Behney's Revue in the Strawberry Festival Exhibition Building, followed by the crowning of the Queen of the Festival at 9 o'clock. The queen's ball will then take place to the music of Hal Thurston's orchestra, and events of the day will be brought to a close.

Thos. W. Wood & Sons, popular seedsmen of East Carolina, with headquarters in Wilmington, announced the past week that new and more commodious quarters had been obtained and that the firm was open for business next to Sprunt's, on North Front Street.

S. A. Cross, who has been manager of the local branch store since 1931, said that the store had enjoyed such an increase in business that the building at 317-319 N.
