Midget Cyclotron Under Construction at Carnegie

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—Though a midget among giants, Carnegie Institute of Technology's new 1,500-ton synchro-cyclotron will pack a punch equalling that of cyclotrons weighing twice as much.

The new atom smasher now under construction will be in operation by 1950, experts at Carnegie Tech predict. The instrument will produce 400 million volt particles.

The increased magnetic field of the cyclotron results from improved overall magnet and pole tip design. It will be used to produce mesons, the tiny mysterious particles found in cosmic rays.

Scientists are attempting to learn more about these rays, believed to be the life-force of the universe.

Teen Talk

AP Newsfeatures

What's your trouble, gal? Bow-legged? Knock-kneed? Pigeon-toed? Skinny? Fat? Just plain homely? Don't give it another thought. You can be downright pretty, even if you're ugly. That paradoxical remark was made by one of America's most famous model agents, John Robert Powers.

Mr. Powers was talking about that "certain something that some girls have and other girls just haven't." He says it is an inner glow which oftentimes is more easily spotted in the not-so-pretty girl. Beautiful girls are likely to take their beauty for granted and rest on their laurels. The homely girl knows she should develop her personality and interest in people to succeed socially.

He cited the instance of a reporter who was sent to interview a woman billed by the circus as "the homeliest woman in the world."

The reporter interviewed the woman, wrung from her a background of hardship and unpleasantness which had left her completely untouched. She had learned to rise above all misfortune which had touched her. When he had finished with his interview, he decided it was impossible to write about the homeliness of the woman because she actually had become beautiful in his eyes.

Mr. Powers of course makes his living as agent for pretty women. Primarily, he needs girls who will photograph well. All of them don't need radiant beauty to appear before a camera. However, Mr. Powers is noted for his ability to select girls who possess both beauty and that "inner glow."

There aren't too many girls possessing this happy combination. I know two models, neither of them Powers' girls. Nor do they work for the same agency. One is a perfectly beautiful blonde who always has had life handed to her in a gold cup.

When she started her model career she made instantaneous monetary success. In a short time, however, her selfishness was apparent to everyone she came in contact with. Models disliked her because she wasn't cooperative. Photographers began to see her face as a perfect blank. Pretty soon she slipped from a $300 a week fashion and photographic model to practically nothing.

Now she asks, why? She tries to explain it to herself by saying people are used to her face, perhaps she should change the color or style of her hair, the shape of her eyebrows or lips.

She might take a tip from the other girl I know. She is tall but thin. At 23, her hair is graying. Her teeth protrude slightly. But after a year in the modeling business she has it in the palm of her hand.

She started in a small way, was willing to take advice. When she began to make a good deal of money, she didn't invest in a mink coat or in jewelry. She found her happiness in taking care of others. She has supplied her family with a few of the comforts they had missed — cleaning women and laundresses to help her mother, a television set for her father, a house in the country for the whole family. Her simplicity despite the world of adulation she now lives in, leaves everyone amazed. Her own wardrobe is scanty but she always looks neat and well-groomed. That inner glow that Mr. Powers describes shines from her pretty blue eyes. It's something she couldn't buy if she won Fort Knox in a beauty contest.

BERLIN — (AP) — Berlin's ghoulies have no respect for royalty. They have been plundering the graves of Kaisers and princes and stealing coffin covers for firewood. This desecration centers chiefly at the old Garrison church near the imperial castle in the Soviet sector. The church was ruined during the war. However, in its vault are still some 200 coffins. Inevitably who have broken them open apparently were searching for valuables. But the wooden covers obviously were removed for fuel.
