Poultry Raisers Get Too Little Profit from Flock

COLLEGE STATION, Raleigh—Too many small poultry flock owners in North Carolina are practicing poor management, and are realizing very little from the chickens they keep on their farms, says Prof. Roy S. Dearstyne, head of the Poultry department at State college.

A great many improvements could be made in the small flocks of the state as they exist at the present time, Prof. Dearstyne says, but these improvements can be brought about only if the owner has the desire to do so.

The poultry leader declared that the first and foremost change needed was the replacement of mongrel flocks with quality chickens. The different breeding practices that produced the mongrel flocks has bred out the possibility of profitable egg production in many cases. It would be better by far to sell such birds and replace them with quality, purebred utility chicks. A bred-to-lay hen requires no more feed, floor space, or time spent in management than the non-profitable mongrel and the returns should be vastly increased. The feed given chickens is also of great importance, he said. A diet of corn, table scraps and what the birds can pick up on range usually does little more than maintain them. To make eggs, the chicken requires more and better food factors than these. Restricting the diet is usually the most expensive economy that can be carried out, Prof. Dearstyne said.

Committees Approve Port Refunding Bond Bill

The House and Senate finance committees voted favorably this week on the bill authorizing the Morehead City Port commission to issue refunding bonds.

The bill outlines procedure for issuing the bonds and provides that they may be sold privately to the Reconstruction Finance corporation or other government agencies.

The House bill permitting county boards to postpone revaluation of property for tax purposes has been approved by the Senate Finance committee. Carteret commissioners at their February meeting passed a resolution requesting H. S. Gibbs, Carteret representative in the House to introduce a local bill postponing the revaluation in this county.

Reds Terrify Greek Leaders

ATHENS — (AP) — The woes that go with being a Greek political leader are being intensified by Communist terrorists who want to put an end to their woes—and them.

Hardly a day passes that a minister doesn't receive an anonymous telephone call that goes something like this:

"You dirty fascist reactionary. You have only a few days to live. We're going to kill you. Long live Markos!"

Minister of Justice Christos Ladad had several such calls before the Greek communists celebrated May Day with his assassination.

The Greek police can't trace the calls because Athens has a modern dial system.

George Papandreou, who was prime minister at the time Greece was liberated and when the revolution of 1944 broke out, is becoming somewhat caloused to attempts and plots on his life. Twice hand grenades have been thrown through the doors of his home, but he has escaped serious injury each time.

A few days ago the OPLA, Communist execution squad, had him scheduled for assassination at the time he would be attending the wedding of a friend. A repentant Communist, however, gave the plot away and the police arrested six persons.

Papandreou, chief of the Republican Socialist Party, is particularly disliked by the Communists because he summoned British troops to quell the 1944 rebellion.

Guerrilla Chief Markos has nominated virtually every Greek political leader for extinction. He issues his sentences over his radio and demands that "comrades" in the cities carry out his orders. There is little doubt they are trying.

Government Lifts Ban On Export of Fish Oil

Export control has been lifted on fish oil, according to a recent announcement from the United States Chamber of Commerce. It can now be exported because of increased supply in the United States.

A local fish oil manufacturer when contacted in regard to lifting of the ban on export said, in essence, "So what? I want good American dollars for my oil. If it goes overseas, I don't know what I'll get for it!"
