Retail (Continued from page one) the per cent of gain. Your merchants association can do the same for you if you will work with it. Mr. Greenwood said that Morehead City merchants would have much to gain by joining the state organization. "This is the day of organized strength," he said. "We have 58 associations with 7,000 members in our group but there is room and need for many more members. As an example, there are 75,000 labor union members in North Carolina who pay dues of $2 monthly to support unions. They have union and funds to work for their goals, that is what we need in order to accomplish what we want."

The speaker said that 90 per cent of the work of the state organization never gets into the newspapers since it is done behind the scenes. In 23 years only one legislative act, the sales tax law, has been passed against the opposition of the state association, he said. He added that it had advocated many worthwhile bills. When questioned by Walter Morris as to what could be done about the continued post exchange and ship stores sales to unauthorized personnel and civilians in competition with civilian enterprises, Mr. Greenwood gave a complete picture of the situation both national and local.

He said the stores were established originally to supply the needs of military personnel who were too far from regular retail centers to purchase their basic necessities. Since that time, the military stores have grown into a mammoth enterprise, he said, that sells everything from straight pins to automobiles at the manufacturer's cost plus six per cent. A protest against the loose practices of the service stores was made 18 months ago to the Secretary of the Army by the North Carolina Merchants association and Kenneth Royall, Army secretary at that time, assured the group that restrictive action would be taken.

Nothing was done, though, Mr. Greenwood said, and recently the state association and the American Retail federation began a drive for a congressional investigation of the situation. He added that he believed the investigation should get underway soon. It was decided that the next meeting of the Morehead City Merchants association would be held Thursday, July 14.

Mr. Bolton expressed his belief that the veteran farm trainees could find gold nuggets in the form of food, clothing, shelter, religion, health, education, friendship and recreation here in Carteret county if they were willing to put forth the effort to work for them. The speaker said he had visited many of the farms and homes in Carteret county and is well pleased with the apparent pride in the homes that seems to be prevalent in the Bettie community and other communities east of Beaufort. He was also complimentary of the fine pastures and purebred or improved hogs in the Newport section.

John J. Felton of Beaufort, RFD 1, president of the class of 42 trainees, was toastmaster at the dinner. Other officers are Norman S. Bell, Newport, vice-president; Milton D. Truckner, Pelletier, secretary; Alton L. DeBlanc, Newport, treasurer; and William F. Gillikin, Beaufort, RFD 1, reporter.

Odell Merrill, new president of Beaufort Jaycees, was formally installed Wednesday night at the Jaycee beach party held at the old Marine officers club near Fort Macon. Approximately 35 Jaycees, their with a roundtable discussion of the major issues before Congress, as well as a specific program on what the average business man in the average community can do about the current trend of government. All members of the Beaufort and Morehead City Chambers of Commerce have been invited to the session, one of the most important meetings held by the Chamber on matters of government that concern in the local citizens. Reservations for the banquet should be made through the Chamber of Commerce. Dinner will be served at 7 o'clock.

Seniors (Continued from page one) boy and girl athletes. Miss Lena Duncan, beloved senior class teacher and advisor, was given eight salad forks in her pattern as a parting gift from the seniors. Following commencement, seniors were entertained at a party given by Mrs. Earl Taylor of Beaufort, RFD. Saturday they went on an all day cruise aboard the boat Falcon to Cape Lookout and returned by moonlight Saturday night. Morehead City seniors left a gift of $175 to start a fund towards purchase of an activities bus to be used by the school for all purposes which regular school buses cannot be used. The seniors specified that if a bus is not purchased, that the money be used to buy stage equipment for the school. The gift was accepted by Principal G. T. Windell. Diplomas were presented to the seniors by County Superintendent of Schools H. L. Joslyn and Principal Windell presented diplomas to the commercial students. The Masonic award for the most outstanding high school achievements was presented to Berl Ray Lewis, Weldon C. Matthews, Jr., was the recipient of the Rotary award to the best all-around student. The Morehead City Lions club award to the best boy and girl athlete in the senior class was presented to Bobby Bell and Elsie Willis. Weldon C. Matthews, Jr., was also valedictorian of his class and received a year's subscription to the Reader's Digest for maintaining the highest scholastic average during his four years in high school. In addition, he received the merit award for the best language student. Others who received merit awards were: salutatorian, Lucille Wright; vocational shop work, Ralph Sterlin; home economics, Jerry Anne Guthrie; activities, Marjorie Stone and Lucille Wright; and commercial, Ruth Guthrie Lupton. Only one Morehead City senior failed to receive his diploma at commencement. He was Shepard Sampson who was absent because of sickness.
