Plans Go Forward For Organization Of CAP Squadron

Definite plans for organizing a Carteret county Civil Air Patrol Squadron will be made at a meeting Thursday night at 8 o'clock in Beaufort court house.

Decision to hold the meeting was reached Friday night at a meeting in the Inlet Inn between Civil Air Patrol officers and local persons who have been working toward obtaining a squadron for this area.

Among those present were Dan Walker, manager of the Beaufort Chamber of Commerce, M. T. Mills representing the county airport commission, Bob Burrows representing the Eastern Carolina Flying school, B. J. May, stand in for Graham Duncan, Jr., airport commissioner, Jack Savage, local pilot, Capt. Harvey A. McKee, Air Force-CAP liaison officer, and Col. George D. Washburn, CAP officer. Countians Eligible.

Anyone, male or female, from their early teens to middle age is eligible to join the unit as long as they live in Carteret county. There is no restriction on the number of persons permitted to join the squadron. A CAP officer will be present to help organize the unit and a local commanding officer will be elected who will in turn choose his subordinate officers.

At Friday night's meeting Colonel Washington and Captain McKee explained the purpose and missions of the CAP and also the system whereby reserve officers can receive points toward promotion and maintaining their commissions by doing duty with the CAP.

26 Squadrons in State
Captain McKee stated that there were 26 CAP squadrons in North Carolina with seven planes allotted to the squadrons at present. He said this means that each squadron has a plane an average of three months out of the year but that other planes are being obtained as quickly as they are declared surplus by the government. He said the squadrons at Kinston and Greenville had recently been allotted surplus planes which would be delivered soon.

Members of the local squadron will be issued regulation clothing and be permitted the use of equipment identical to that used in the Air Force, the captain explained. He said the Air Force would also maintain and repair airplanes used here.

Old Hatteras Light Will Send Out Its Beam Again Nov. 10

Hatteras, N. C. — Not excepting World War II and submarine sinkings almost in their backyards in the "graveyard of the Atlantic", the greatest moment in 15 years in the ordinarily placid lives of inhabitants of this Outer Banks village will be 4:43 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 10, 1949, when Governor Kerr Scott and Senator Frank Graham re-light the lights in Old Hatteras Lighthouse.

For the Old Light, around whose imposing brick Cape Hatteras life has revolved for 160 years, is bringing a new era to North Carolina's Outer Banks. With its restoration, solving erosion problems, and saving Old Light from the encroaching Atlantic, engineers have learned how to build solid roads on shifting sand, and make trees grow there too. Heads of state highway and conservation departments, while helping in the celebration of the re-birth of Old Light, will look into road-building and citrus fruit possibilities, and plan, too, for the conversion of the lonely Banks into a 300-mile long seashore park.

Officials, famed Elizabeth City High School band and some hundreds of curious uplanders will converge on Avon village at the north end of 17 miles of pri-

Men Face Charge Of Impersonating Officers of Law

Mrs. Gerald Hill, Beaufort, Says Men Stopped Her on Highway Oct. 24

Charles Elwood Lewis and Dewey Gillikin, will be tried today in recorder's court on charges of impersonating officers of the law.

The complaint was filed last Tuesday by Mrs. Gerald Hill, 1305 Front st., Beaufort. Mrs. Hill told Deputy Sheriff Murray Thomas that she was driving on highway 101 Monday night, Oct. 24, to the home of Mrs. H. D. Carraway when the car with two men in it drove along side of her car and told her to stop. They told her she had failed to make the proper hand signal when she turned on to 101 from highway 70.

"We're Patrolmen"

Mrs. Hill asked them who they were and they said they were highway patrolmen. She asked them why they didn't have their uniforms on and they told her they had left them at home.

She continued on to the Carraway home and when she arrived there went around to the rear of the house. The two men in the car followed her, got out, and again accosted her, saying she had failed to make the proper hand signal.

"I'm the Sheriff"

Mrs. Hill said that she wanted to see their credentials if they were highway patrolmen. At that point, the plaintiff reports, Gillikin said he was the sheriff of Morehead City. Mrs. Hill then wrote their license number on a slip of paper, which Lewis is charged with grabbing out of her hand. She said she wanted it back and they told her she couldn't have their license number.

Mrs. Hill then returned to her car and went back to Beaufort.

The incident was reported to authorities who later informed the Hills that Lewis and Gillikin that same night, some time later, were involved in an automobile accident in front of Cleveland Gillikin's store, Bettie.

Strike Costs Continue Rise Through Nation

By SAM DAWSON
New York, Oct. 29 — (AP) — Steel workers have been idle for four weeks today. Coal miners out of the pits for 41 days. What has it cost the nation so far—in output, in wages in earnings? Some say it's already a national emergency, others say—not yet.

How long will the bad effects be felt after the strikes end? How much justification is there for the view, apparently held by some who are bidding up stocks in Wall street, that out of the strikes will come a business boom around the first of the year, when the nation tries to catch up again?

In the steel mill towns, in the coal states, the effects are plain for anyone to see—in the stores, in the banks, in the unemployment insurance and relief agencies.

Elsewhere, in widening circles, men are being laid off, or their working hours cut, because steel or coal is short at their mill or factory.

And farther afield, in rural sections or those only loosely tied to coal and steel, the effects have yet to show up.

But looking at it, nation-wide, here is what we find:
Retail store sales down 14 per cent from last year and falling—the strike hitting hard in steel centers, with sales off 24 per cent in Ohio.

Bank clearings off more than 9 per cent from last year—off 33 per cent in Pittsburgh.

Railroad freight loadings off 36.5 per cent from last year, and the lowest since May, 1946. Railroad earnings sharply lower.

Electric power output below the similar period in 1948 for the first time this year.

Money in circulation down $99 million this week, as payrolls shrink.

Some 600 coal-burning locomotives stalled by government order, to save coal.

Negro to be Tried On Larceny Count

Calvin Adams, Beaufort Negro, will be tried in superior court on the charge of larceny of $242, Beaufort police reported today.

According to police reports, on Oct. 18 Maude Wesley, Negro of Queen street, reported that $242 had been stolen from a small cedar chest in her home. The money belonged to her church and she was keeping it in her home.

Police attempted to locate the thief for 10 days and finally received a tip that Adams had stolen the money. They picked him up and after questioning he confessed to the crime.

Adams told police that previously he had borrowed $10 from the woman and had seen her take it from the chest containing what he considered to be a large amount of bills. All that money just preyed on his mind, he said, so finally he crept into her house during the day of the 18th and stole it.
