Symphony Tickets To Go on Sale At Door Tuesday

As Conductor

Tickets to the Little Symphony concert at Beaufort Tuesday night will be on sale at the door for $2.10, Mrs. Bayard Taylor, chairman of the membership commit-ce, announced today. Children who wish to attend the evening concert will be ad-mitted for 60 cents and adults who attend the afternoon concert will pay 60 cents. Season membership tickets have already been sold. This campaign closed the middle of last month. The concert at Beaufort high school begins at 8:30 Tuesday night. Tenth Year

The 1949-'50 season of the North Carolina Symphony marks the tenth year of Benjamin Swalin as leader of the orchestra. The rise of the North Carolina orchestra under Dr. Swalin's leadership has been rapid, progress-ing from six concerts in 1940 to 130 concerts in 1950. When the orchestra was rejuvenated by Dr. Swalin in 1940, its season was limited to a few week-end concerts. Now, ten years later, the orchestra's itinerary includes ap-pearances in North Carolina, Ten-nessee, and Georgia. This ten-year mark will be celebrated with the orchestra's return visit to Meredith college in March, where Dr Swalin and his musicians made their initial bows almost ten years ago to the day.

Unique Practices The ten years have included in-novations that are now established policies of the symphony: au-diences participate in the program by singing a hymn with the orchestra; aspiring young artists are given an opportunity through auditions to appear as soloists with the orchestra. To insure fullest enjoyment of the music, free pre-paratory material is sent to the children in advance of the concerts-special concerts which the orchestra plays in all communi-ties and which are admission-free to the children. No other orchestra spends its

At the suggestion of J. O. Bar-bour, jr., the commissioners re-quested the clerk, William Hatsell, to write letters to Front street merchants warning them that beginning March 1 the garbage or dinance, which requires covered cans, will be rigidly enforced. The board also authorized the clerk to have property surveyed which is now used as a dump in west Beaufort. Wiley Taylor, town attorney, reported to the commis sioners that the county agreed to deed its interest in that property to the town for use as public docks. Dr. W. L. Woodard, chairman of the planning board, told the com-missioners that the planning board would accept their appointments as a board of adjustment, in accordance with the town's zoning ordinance. He said the board ex-pects to have full cooperation and support from the new building inspector, Gerald Woolard. It was also suggested that the planning board do preliminary work on selecting a site or sites for the proposed 40 homes which will be built in Beaufort under the federal housing authority for clearof slums. Mr. Hatsell was authorized to re-
