

Homes Drive Residents Deplore Carnival Showing

Officials Who Could Close Show 'Pass Buck'

Residents of the Homes Drive section just west of Morehead City's town limits are up in arms over the Harrison Greater Shows (carnival) squatting itself on the Sanderson lot on Bridges street just north of their homes. Their protest backs up the campaign waged by THE NEWS-TIMES for years to ban carnivals from Carteret county.

One Marine warrant officer who lives in the carnival neighborhood said that he will contribute $50 toward a fee to obtain an injunction prohibiting the carnival from operating.

Clyde Jones who lives in the vicinity of the carnival said he plans to stay home every night this week to protect his family.

Another Marine is intensely worried about the fact that he will be on duty at the base every night this week, leaving his wife and two small boys alone.

Petition Signed

Forty persons have already signed a petition requesting that carnivals be banned from the county. This petition will be presented to the county board of commissioners at their meeting Monday morning, May 7. Jones plans to appear at the meeting with a delegation of supporters to request that carnivals be banned.

Efforts have been made to ban the Morehead City showing on the basis of sanitary regulations. No luck. The carnival moves to Morehead City this week, having shown last week in Beaufort.

There are no sanitary laws specifically designed to cover carnivals. A. D. Fulcher, county sanitarian, said yesterday when he was asked what measures had been taken to protect the public.

He said that he had checked See RESIDENTS, Page 2

Legislature OKs 11 Bills Relating To Carteret

Eleven bills ratified in the recent session of the legislature directly affected Carteret county. Only one bill, introduced by Carteret's legislator, George W. Dill, jr., failed to pass. This related to the increase in tax on claims shipped out of this county in the shell.

The ratified bills are the following (HB refers to a bill introduced in the house): HB 355, eliminating Carteret county from the Cherry Point Air Station zoning regulations, ratified March 9; HB 389, increasing tax collector's term from two to four years, ratified March 22.

HB 644, increases county commissioners and board chairman's pay, ratified April 6; HB 816, clarifying Morehead City's police jurisdiction, ratified April 6; HB 817, increases Newport town commissioner's pay, ratified April 6.

HB 837, enables holding of recorder's court in Beaufort, Morehead City and Newport with court costs the same as in county recorder's court, ratified April 9; HB 846, increases deeds for recording in register of deeds office, April 9.

HB 1226, repeals the law making it a misdemeanor to allow live stock to run at large on Portsmouth Island, ratified April 14.

NEWS-TIMES Reporter Exposes Carnival Sex Shows, Gambling

By Fred Miller
NEWS-TIMES Sports Editor

I went to the Harrison Greater Shows on the old Y lot near Live Oak st., within the town limits of Beaufort Saturday night.

The carnival was sponsored by the Beaufort Fire Department, which received a percentage of the "take," probably the relatively piddling sum of $200.

The noisome spectacle was located on the edge of the back yards of the folks living on the east side of Live Oak st. It crowded other residents on cross streets.

Lights—all colors—glittered, canned music blared, barkers' voices cut through the night and an odoriferous stench pervaded the April night.

Fleecers at Work

I saw the vulgar Harlem Boogie Revue, I saw teen-age boys being fleeced of their money by a sunglasses bleached blonde operating a Hi-dice table, I saw the "suckers" trying their luck at "games of skill."

And, in my investigation I lost $15 of expense money, playing the games so I could describe some of them to you. I almost, but please note the word almost, won $180 and a Hamilton wrist watch.

I walked around the entire layout to orient myself. I saw that the bingo booth was operating full tilt with nearly 100 persons inside.

I watched the marble shaking game for awhile. Ten points win you a prize. You shake eight marbles for two bits. Where they stop nobody knows. The holes where the marbles finally come to rest determines the score. Points accumulate as your change disappears with every shake. The "house holes" take care of the matter of any prize for you.

What are the prizes anyway? The traditional mirrors, and, as usual the cat, dog and horse statuettes. A big woolly Panda on the shelf looks you in the eye. What can you do with that thing anyway?

"Hey you, come over here," a barker at a booth called to me. "Listen to me. Hey, buddy," a barker at another booth called. These guys are really persistent.

The pitching game was next. You win a prize if you throw a rubber ring over a lucky number peg. It's funny how these rings bounce off, one after another. A young girl threw a ringer. Yep, she made one stick. But it was a house number. She won nothing.

Kids were excitedly waiting their turn on the rides—the merry go round, the ferris wheel, the octopus, the plummeting loop planes. I hoped that the bolts and screws were tight and that the dangerous apparatuses wouldn't come apart and sprawl bloody bone-broken children over the filth-covered ground.

I got opposite the Streets of Cairo. An emaciated, scantily clad girl stood on the platform, hand on hips. But she was female and the male crowd followed her into the show when the barker yelled, "Step right up gentlemen. Don't be bashful. Show stars right away. No ladies admitted."

A crowd was milling around the Harlem Boogie Revue, oggling three black skinned burlesque "queens" bumping and grinding, their ebony bellies rolling to a beating drum and a sickly trombone.

I put that one down in my book to take in later.

Freak Show, Too

I passed the freak show but kept on because I wasn't interested in seeing America's Only Real Siamese Pigs. What if they did have two snouts, eight legs, or what have you?

More booths of chance. I passed See REPORTER, Page 2

Federal Judge Sentences Two Former Marines

Two former Marines, who pleaded guilty to several charges of committing crime against nature, were sentenced to 18 months in prison during federal court last week at New Bern. They were John Earl Purvis and Allen Lee Thayer. The federal jury returned a not guilty verdict in the case of James K. Lewis, New Bern, civilian worker at the base, who was indicted on three crime against nature charges.

The case against Harold David Hundley, who faces similar charges, has been continued until the next term of federal court. Hundley's bond has been set at $1,000.

Judge Don Gilliam recommended that both Purvis and Thayer be sent to the United States Public Health hospital, Springfield, Mo., for treatment.

The trial against Lewis began Wednesday morning and ended at 6:30 p.m. Thursday. The defendant testified that he did not have abnormal sex relationships with three Marines as the government contended.

It was also stated in court that Lewis suffered severe back injuries during combat in World War II and that he is suffering at present from a nervous condition.

The jury which returned the not guilty verdict debated two hours and 20 minutes.

Fate Spares Morehead Man from Fiery Death

Irvin Willis, 2305 Bay st., dodged death last week. As fate would have it, Willis, boatswain's mate on the Esso tanker Greensboro, which was rammed in the Gulf of Mexico, was home on sick leave.

The tanker, Greensboro, collided with another Standard Oil tanker, the Suez, 300 miles southeast of New Orleans and 38 crewmen of the Greensboro were burned alive.

Willis, who has been in Morehead City the past five weeks, was expected to report back for duty in May. The boatswain's mate said there is no doubt in his mind that he would, today, be numbered among the dead, had he been on duty.

Beaufort town commissioners, in special session at the town hall yesterday morning, approved new boundary lines on the proposed extension of the town of Beaufort.

A legal advertisement, specifically outlining the boundary, appears in today's NEWS-TIMES.

A request for pulling in the boundaries was made by the town board following a meeting at the town hall April 11 when a large delegation protested against the proposed extension. A petition, bearing approximately 400 signatures, was also presented to the board that night. The petition requested a referendum on the extension.

Planning Board Meets
The town board's request for altering the boundaries, thus encompassing a smaller area, was made to the planning board. The planning board met April 12 and made changes.

The extension is now proposed as follows: from the present town line on Front street east to Sunshine court drive, then to the south side of Lennoxville road. Following the south side of the road, the boundary extends northward to the Beaufort and Morehead Railroad tracks.

The line then follows the tracks to Carteret avenue, extended from Highland Park. Encompassing Highland Park, the boundary extends to Turner's creek, then runs westwardly to the east side of highway 70. The line then runs back to an intersection north of the residence of Dr. Luther Fulcher.

The boundary follows Town creek, skirts the Fish Meal factory, circles the airport and then meets the old town line on the west. The newly-drawn lines exclude the Scarborough-Safrit Sawmill, Huntley's Hardware, and the Fish Meal factory, all of whom declared themselves against becoming part of the town.

Petition Possible
Dr. W. L. Woodard, chairman of the planning board, mentioned that persons in areas not included in the new boundary may request entry into the town by petition.

The advertisement on present boundaries will appear once a week for four weeks. At a meeting at the town hall at 7:30 p.m. Friday, May 25, the town board will pass a resolution incorporating the area described in the advertisement.

Should a petition be presented requesting a referendum on the proposal, the town board will then request the county board of elections to conduct a referendum.

Beaufort Will Stage Night Alert Thursday

Gene Smith, Civil Defense Director, Believes Cooperation Will be Good

Gene Smith, Beaufort's civil defense director, stated yesterday that everything is in readiness for the practice night alert in Beaufort Thursday night at 9:15.

A sound truck will travel the streets informing people of the alert, and asking them to douse the lights; fire trucks will disperse to the various parts of town, and all pedestrians will be requested to seek shelter off the streets.

Businessmen are particularly requested to put out the lights in their store windows when they close Thursday afternoon, or else make other arrangements to have the lights out at 9:15.

Beaufort police will patrol the streets and air raid wardens will take their positions at their respective stations.

Because the present siren has been difficult to hear in all sections of town, it was believed that the fire alarm may be used Thursday night. That idea has been discarded, however, and slight repairs to the siren have been made in hope that it will serve the purpose.

Smith recalled the success of the first air alert in February and said that he believes cooperation Thursday night will be even better.
