The shrimp taken are the com mercial spotted shrimp only. No other species has turned up in the trawl. Broad stated. He also explained that the above figures are probably the minimum. Because the Coker draws 5 feet, it cannot work in many places where the commercial shrimpers work and in shallower places the catches are usually larger, he pointed out.

Broad said that the Coker first located brown shrimp in market-able size April 20., Prior to that time, however, some small shrimp turned up in crab trawls. The statistics given by Broad are on shrimp unheaded, 55 count.

The information revealed in the test trawling from the Coker, will be furnished officials at the shrimp hearing at 10 o'clock this morning in the commercial fisheries building, Camp Glenn.
