Airport Board To Borrow Money

The county board of commissioners on Monday gave permission to the Carteret County Airport commission to borrow $1,000 to complete work on the new administration building at the Beaufort-Morehead City airport.

This $1,000 will be matched with $1,000 by the federal government, according to Claud Wheatly, member of the commission, who appeared before the board. Wheatly said that interest on the money would be met out of revenue from the airport.

The county board said that there was no money in the general fund at present to furnish the airport commission with the amount requested.

Wheatly reported that Piedmont airlines pays $50 a month for use of the airport, $30 monthly for office space, and other rental is obtained by persons making use of airport facilities. Piedmont also pays a per centage on the amount of business they do.

The airport commission member suggested that the board consider, in the near future, new appointees for the airport commission.
