

New Homes Will Be Built As Three Villages

Three villages will be created adjacent to Cherry Point as part of the current housing construction program, according to C. P. Hancock, housing coordinator for Public Works.

Construction on the 1,421 wood-frame units for local enlisted men, officers, and civilians, will get underway shortly, Hancock stated. The contract was awarded last week to Dwight Phillip and Associates of Charlotte.

Hancock village, containing 257 houses for officers, will be erected near highway 70. The units will contain up to three bedrooms.

Civilians will reside in Slocum village, an 815-unit project to be constructed adjacent to Salter's service station on highway 70.

Field parties from Dwight Phillip and Associates are currently laying out the streets for Hancock and Slocum Villages.

Fort Macon Village, for enlisted men will be located near the "new" housing project in Havelock. Two hundred and forty-nine single and two story units will be built.

The land for Fort Macon and Hancock villages was leased from the Navy by Dwight Phillip and Associates, who will construct, own, and operate all three villages. The construction outfit bought the land for Slocum Village through a private sale.

Naval Reserve Unit to Meet For Reorganization Monday

The Volunteer Electronic Platoon 6-9 will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Naval Reserve Electronic Station at Camp Glenn. The meeting is for the purpose of reorganizing the unit.

Persons interested in joining the Naval Reserve as seaman recruits are invited. Since the program of VEP 6-9 will be largely devoted to training seaman recruits in electronics, this is an opportunity for young men to learn radio as members of the Naval Reserve, according to George Taylor, Beaufort, who is in charge.

Those Reservists who satisfactorily complete their training in VEP 6-9 will be eligible for the rate of third class radioman in the Naval Reserve.

Newport Pet Population Increases by One

Newport's pet population increased by one three weeks ago. A baby was born to the pair of deer owned by Mose Howard. But today the little fellow is without a mother.

Mr. Howard opened the pen soon after the baby arrived in order to separate the mother and father (in the past bucks have killed their young), but in doing so, the doe went out, was jumped by dogs and chased into the swamp.

Her owner has attempted several times to coax her back to the pen. He has taken the little one to her, but she just sniffs at it and high-tails it into the woods.

However, Mr. Howard reports that she returned to within 100 yards of the pen Sunday night, and several nights this week she was seen on the ball diamond which is located across the highway from the enclosure where the deer are kept.

He is confident that she will come back if not molested by dogs or humans.

License Revoked

The driver's license of Francis Eugene Thompson, Cherry Point, has been revoked as the result of a drunken and reckless driving conviction in Carteret county recorder's court.

County Turkey Output Increases

W. L. Hedrick, extension turkey specialist, State college, who recently visited the county, predicts that Carteret's turkey production this year will be 4 per cent higher by poundage than last year. The number of turkeys grown, however, will be 6 per cent higher.

This difference in percentage is due, he explained, to the increased demand for smaller breed turkeys and turkey fryers that weigh from 6 to 8 pounds. These smaller breeds are mostly the Belkville white and the Jersey buff.

On the state level turkey population this year will increase from 23 to 30 per cent, Hedrick said.

The tendency of turkey production in this state is moving in the direction of larger-sized operating units. There are fewer flocks now being produced with 500 or less birds. Many growers who have been raising 1,000 and 2,000 turkeys are now producing 4,000 and 5,000 birds.

There are lots of farmers throughout the state who are devoting their entire time and receiving all of their income from growing turkeys.

Union county, which has between 100,000 and 125,000 turkeys this year, is the heaviest producing county in the State. Anson county ranks second with 75,000, while Pamlico ranks third with 65,000. Sampson and Cleveland have 50,000 each.

Hedrick pointed out that many turkey producers are beginning this year for the first time with 3,000 to 5,000 birds and are being financed and supervised by feed companies.

With 80,000 turkeys ranging in a radius of 50 miles of New Bern, Hedrick feels that there is a need for a turkey dressing plant in this area. The plant should be able to dress 2,500 birds per day and have 50,000 pounds of freezer space with federal veterinarian inspection available, the specialist recommended.

The welfare department's hospital budget.

On the basis of last year's 406 patient days with payment at $8 daily from the county, the hospital would have received $3,248 from the welfare department; $812 from the Medical Care commission and Duke Endowment, $185.60 from the Kate B. Reynolds fund (a special fund which helps pay charity GAL TWO MOREHEAD HOSPITAL costs) and $383.50 from other sources, making a total, McGinnis said, of $4,629.10.

Since charity cases cost the hospital $4,706.13, had the county paid $8 a day during the past fiscal year, the hospital deficit would have been $77.03 on charity cases.

Should the hospital refuse to accept charity cases, the Duke Endowment, Medical, Care commission, and federal and state appropriations for care of welfare patients would automatically be dropped from hospital books as a source of income; and McGinnis said that it would then become necessary for the welfare department to investigate possibilities of having indigent patients treated at hospitals outside Carteret county.

There are more than 11,000 different kinds of bacteria in the world.
