Master Barbers To Elect Officers This Morning

Session Concludes Three-Day Meeting; 300 Barber Shop Owners Register

The Associated Master Barbers of North Carolina, concluding a three-day session at Atlantic Beach today, will elect officers at their business session at 10 o'clock this morning in the municipal building, Morehead City.

Three hundred master barbers, owners of barber shops, and their wives are attending the meeting. The first session opened at 10 o'clock yesterday morning with C. F. Holland, president, in charge.

J. A. DuBois, manager of the Morehead City chamber of com-merce, delivered the address of welcome. J. J. Adkins responded. Dr. I. G. Greer, Chapel Hill, exarea also will be members of the United States Fish and Wildlife ecutive vice-president of the Business Foundation of North Carolina, staff, Beaufort. They are Dr. C. spoke yesterday morning on human relations, personal responsibilities and development of the individual. He was followed by Y. Z. Can-non, native of Carteret county, and past president of the Associated Master Barbers of North Carolina of Chapel Hill, who commented that the large group of GI trainees who entered the barber profession since the war has not filled the gap caused by price wars during and after the depression. The num-ber of barbers in the state this year are 113 less than last.

Cannon traced existing man-power shortages back to 1930, Virginia, said the commission had through the depression years, then to price wars which caused many barbers to enter other fields. Since the war the profession has received 1,600 men, returning barbers and new students, to push the to set up a meeting of Virginia, number up to the 1930 level, which Maryland and North Carolina offiis not enough to take care of the increased population over that period of time, he said.

The speaker urged his listeners to modernize their shops and initiate an educational program to encourage men to enter the field. A report from the Board of Barber Examiners was given yesterday afternoon by J. M. Cheek of High Point, and speaker of the after-noon was Watter P. R. Wagner, Chicago.

Toastmaster at last night's banquet and entertainment at the Beach was Jimmy Wallace of Morehead City. The dinner was prepared and served by the Willis Board of Conservation and De Brothers of Williston. Dancing fol-velopment, will attend also. Officers of the organization, in addition to Holland, are T. C. Whit-lock, Lacy Council, S. M. Daniels, C. C. Shuping, D. B. Wright, and J. W. Moorefield.

Biologists Study

Shad Population is being studied at the Fish and Wildlife station on Pivers Island, Beaufort. This is part of a longrange program which the Fish and Wildlife Service has been conducting since late 1949.

Oil affects fish three ways, re marks G. B. Talbot, senior biologist who is in charge of the shad project: first, it spreads over the surface of the water in a thin film. This film prevents oxygen from passing into the water. Thus oil cuts down the water's oxygen content.

Second, oil emulsifies or breaks up into microscopic particles in the water. These adhere to bits of floating sand and sink to the botom. In this way the fish eats a certain amount of the petroleum.

Third, the emulsified oil leaches out volatile acids which permeate the water and are injurious to fish and their eggs.

Talbot's problem is to determine the tolerance shad have for petroleum and how well they can live on a reduced supply of oxygen. His guinea pigs are 140 two-inch shad Penny's eyes. which he recently hauled in from the Neuse river. He said, however, that the ex-haby shad become acclimated to their new home—a fresh-water aquarium in the laboratory "The move from the river here,"

Talbot added, "caused many of the shad to die, so we don't want to begin the tests until we're sure those still living are healthy."

The shad research project is im portant, for in the last 50 years that variety of fish has decreased tremendously in big Assantic coast
