

Courtroom Drama Features Stars

Spencer Tracy, Pat O'Brien, Diana Lynn and John Hodiak are the stellar headliners of M-G-M's powerful courtroom drama, "The People Against O'Hara," which plays Thursday and Friday at the Beaufort theatre.

In the new picture Tracy returns to the field of straight drama, following his comedy hits in "Adam's Rib," "Father of the Bride" and "Father's Little Dividend." "Adam's Rib" and "Father of the Bride" gave him twin honors in a national readers' poll, with the latter film also winning him an Academy nomination.

His current role is that of a man who returns to criminal law, against the advice of his daughter, because of his fervent belief in the innocence of a boy accused of murder. The ingenious scheme and fearless courage by which he tracks down and corners the real criminal makes for a drama packed with suspense and emotional tension.

The picture marks the introduction of Tracy and Pat O'Brien as a motion picture team. Close friends since the years when they battled for a foothold on Broadway, they also enact friends in "The People Against O'Hara," in which O'Brien is seen as a police officer.

Deer Kicks Up
Walsenburg, Colo. (AP)—A female deer usually is the gentlest of creatures, which is why Ronnie Abe was so chagrined over what a doe did to him. Abe dropped the doe with one shot. When he walked up to it, the deer sprang up, kicked him on the left foot and ran 40 yards before dropping again, dead. The kick ripped Abe's boot and left him with a wound which required three stitches.

Lanza Plays Caruso

At left, the famous Italian tenor, Enrico Caruso, as he appeared at the height of his singing career at New York's Metropolitan Opera House. And right, Mario Lanza, portraying Caruso in M-G-M's spectacular Technicolor musical production, "The Great Caruso," which comes to the Morehead theatre this week, with Ann Blyth, Dorothy Kirsten, Jarmila Novotna and Blanche Thebom in one of the most impressive musical casts ever brought to the screen. Most of the glorious music made immortal by Caruso during his seventeen years at the "Met" will be heard in the thrilling new production.

Advertisers Must Move Signs Along Rights-of-Way

Raleigh.—It is illegal for advertisers to post signs on rights-of-way of North Carolina highways, according to an opinion given by Attorney General Harry McMullan to the State Highway and Public Works commission.

McMullan's ruling came at the request of the commission, which has designated the month of November for a campaign of voluntary cooperation from roadside advertisers, looking to removal of all advertising from rights-of-way. The commission has indicated it will take more stringent action if the sign owners fail to cooperate.

"This does not mean there can be no signs at all," Highway Chairman Henry W. Jordan emphasized. "It merely means that roadside advertisers should take their signs off the rights-of-way and put no more on the rights-of-way."

He pointed out that signs advising the exact footage of right-of-way for given roads are posted at frequent intervals along the highways, and these should be consulted by advertisers who want to know whether their signs encroach on rights-of-way.

McMullan said the commission is empowered to remove signs from rights-of-way, even over the objections of owners of the signs. He added that the law makes it a misdemeanor for advertisers to put signs on rights-of-way.

Highway maintenance forces throughout the state have been directed to tear down signs posted on rights-of-way to advertise fairs, auto races, games, auctions and other events that already have been held. This, according to highway officials, will reduce some of the eye-distraction that creates traffic hazards, make the roadways look better, and at the same time create compliance with the state and federal regulations forbidding encroachment on rights-of-way.

After this month, such signs will be taken down by highway forces whether the advertised event has been held or not, and the same policy will be applied to other illegal roadside advertising.

Already the petroleum industry, through its marketing managers in North Carolina, is cooperating in the voluntary sign-removal program. The marketing managers are requesting service stations to cooperate. Chairman Jordan will meet soon with bottlers and other merchandising groups to obtain their cooperation.

The campaign to remove signs from rights-of-way has safety and roadside improvement as two objectives, but it also is necessary

Louis Jourdan Plays Piano While Learning New Lines

Louis Jourdan, whose childhood musical training still enables him to pick out songs on the piano, plunked away old sea songs on his keyboard at home to get himself prepared for his co-starring role with Jean Peters and Debra Paget in Twentieth Century-Fox's Technicolor "Anne of the Indies," playing Tuesday and Wednesday at the Beaufort theatre.

Portraying a French Naval captain who is captured by a band of buccaneers captained by a woman, enacted by Jean Peters, Jourdan spent many evenings studying his part and implemented the dialogue with bursts of musical expression.
