There Are Always Things to Do!

Children in Eric's class at school are brought face-to-face with the need of combating infantile paralysis. The above picture was taken when Eric was a pupil in Miss Susan Rumley's third grade at Beaufort school.

Eric rides his Dad's tractor on their farm at Bettie.

Helping his mother gather eggs is another task Eric finds he can do.

of polio in the upper parts of their bodies, lungs and arms. "At one of the hospitals there was a girl 19 in an iron lung. I was taking Eric home on this particular day and the girl's mother called to me and said to be sure not to take Eric home without saying goodbye. The mother was there combing the girl's hair. I took Eric over—he was in the wheel chair—and I asked the girl how she was. She replied 'Just fine' and do you know, the only thing she could move in the entire upper part of her body was her tongue."

To help raise funds in the 1952 March of Dimes a letter from Eric was mailed last week to residents throughout the county. Last year he alone collected $18 to give to the March of Dimes.

Among polio victims in the county who have been helped with March of Dimes funds are Nola Dare Rose, Dallas Rose, Olivia Yeomans, all of Harkers Island; Jean Chadwick, Ginny Howe Hassell, both of Beaufort; Herman Wetherington, Morehead City; Ray Coleman Salter, Salter Path; Richard Salter, Sea Level; Richard Carraway, South River; and Ray Golden, Jr., Bettie.

Mickey Rooney Drums Without Drums in 'Strip'

Mickey Rooney doesn't need a drum to drum! In a scene of M-G-M's new musical-drama, "The Strip," today and Wednesday at the East Drive-In theatre, Rooney is called upon to entertain a mischievous youngster who proves difficult to quiet down. In desperation, Rooney diverts him by accompanying a phonograph recording of "Blue Heaven" with a routine in which he uses two wooden spoons as drum sticks. Before the scene closes, Rooney is in a frenzy, beating out a fast rhythm on an ironing board, radio cabinet, doors and other wooden objects in the room.

Now the question is, will mothers have to hide their kitchen spoons after Junior sees "The Strip?"

BEAR

now in a zoo in Wilmington, does not live with Mr. Foreman at Core Creek any more. He is kept near New Bern, and only through the cooperation of R. C. Winkworth, district forester, and Mr. Foreman, has the Business and Professional Women's club been able to obtain him to promote the March of Dimes.

The B&PW club is sponsoring the March of Dimes campaign. The bear is a famed symbol of the fire-fighting service. Smokey the Bear is widely-known as one of the staunch supporters of "save your forests" campaigns. For that reason live bears are valuable assets in promoting fire protection.

The only thing that would prevent "Smokey" from making his appearance in Beaufort Saturday would be a forest fire. Mr. Foreman is scheduled to stand by while Smokey does his stint for the March of Dimes. However, if there were a fire, Mr. Foreman would have to answer the call of duty and no one would be on hand to look out for Smokey.

Meanwhile, Smokey has sent a message to all Carteret county: "Bear Your Share in the Fight Against Polio!"

Sweet Serenade

The film is being released by Twentieth Century-Fox.

Three Films Will Show at Beaufort
Three different films will show Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday at the Beaufort theatre. "Five" will play Tuesday, "High Lonesome" Wednesday, and "Close to My Heart" Thursday.
Hollywood has made a movie in which boy "marries" girl without benefit of clergy, but the censors don't even care. This love-without-nuptials occurs in Columbia Pictures' "Five," starring William Phipps, Susan Douglas, James Anderson, Charles Lampkin, and Earl Lee.
Young John Barrymore, Jr., who makes his second screen appearance and first starring role in the Technicolor production, "High Lonesome," is under the constant scrutiny and appraisal of the famous "Royal Family."
Reason for the keen interest is that the son of the most colorful Barrymore in the distinguished acting clan is now the only hope that Barrymore blood will continue to be represented on the screen after Lionel and Ethel, his aunt and uncle, retire.
