Clyde Jones Will Serve as Registrar

Clyde Jones, Morehead City, has been named registrar for the newly-created precinct which emerged as the result of splitting the former Morehead precinct.

Jones was nominated by Irvin W. Davis, chairman of the county Democratic central committee, announced F. R. Seeley, chairman of the board of elections, Wednesday.

The polling place for Morehead precinct No. 2 will be the Clyde Jones Gas co., 28th st. The Democratic judge of elections will be Bruce Goodwin and the Republican judge is yet to be named, Seeley stated.

To get accurate registration, registrars in each of the two precincts will be given authority to employ assistants to canvass the town and take the name, age, and address of voters. Persons thus canvassed will then be mailed a card to inform them it will be unnecessary for them to go to the registrar to enter their names as voters, Seeley explained.

The registrar for precinct No. 1 will be named at a meeting of the board of elections tomorrow.

Washington, April 8.—Representative Graham A. Barden, third North Carolina Congressional district, announced Tuesday that the Coast Guard has removed its unloading restrictions on ammonium sulphate and nitrate, and that this vital ingredient of fertilizer can now be brought into North Carolina through the ports of Wilmington and Morehead City.

Previously, the nearest port that could meet the rigid regulations for isolated unloading was Charleston, S. C. The savings in freight to North Carolina points, Congressman Barden said, would run to $3 and $4 a ton.

And the economy will be considerable since some 90,000 tons of this and other chemicals for fertilizer can be brought in through the North Carolina ports in time for the coming crop season, according to Barden.

He is hopeful that the Coast Guard also will permit the unloading of calcium ammonium nitrate at North Carolina ports, and has been promised an early decision.

Barden said he has received communications on the urgency of action about removing the unloading restrictions from Governor W. Kerr Scott, the state commissioner of agriculture, numerous fertilizer distributors, and many farmers and farm organizations.

E. W. Downum was elected president of the Beaufort Parent-Teacher association Tuesday night when the organization held its monthly meeting at the school auditorium. Mrs. Ben Jones was elected vice-president, Miss Janice Pake, secretary, and Jarvis Herring was re-elected to the office of treasurer.

Downum succeeds Mrs. Gehrmann Holland who has served as president for two terms. Mrs. Jones succeeds Downum, and Miss Pake succeeds Mrs. Margaret Hopkins.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Holland. Miss Ruth Willis of Morehead City gave the devotional, and the treasurer reported $526.22 balance in the bank as of April 1.

Reports given by chairmen were that the ways and means committee and members of the PTA will serve the dinner to the county teachers April 24. Mrs. Clyde Piner will be chaperone for the teen-age canteen for the month of April, and the next meeting of the PTA will be the final one for the year. New officers will be installed and reports of the officers and executive board of the PTA will be given.

T. G. Leary, school principal, announced that today, Good Friday, will be a holiday for the school pupils.

Coast Guard Officer Warns Boaters, Sport Fishermen

Chief Warrant Officer H. R. Daniels, commanding officer at Fort Macon Coast Guard station, today issued a stern warning to sports fishermen and pleasure yachtsmen who use buoys and beacons as mooring dolphins.

Boats are not permitted to tie up at navigation aids and if they do, are in danger of being apprehended by the Coast Guard.

Chamber Manager Speaks to Rotary

Dan Walker, manager of the chamber of commerce, spoke to Beaufort Rotarians Tuesday night at the Inlet inn on one of the five projects the town has undertaken in the finer Carolinas contest, extension of the town limits.

He urged the men to consider the legacy they are leaving to the coming generation, a community that is equipped to keep pace with modern ways of life or a community stunted by obsolete systems and methods of functioning.

The chamber of commerce manager pointed out that sewage disposal methods will in the future be fixed by state and national legislation and commented that Beaufort must be prepared to meet the problem.

Cites Example
Taking a hypothetical area as an example, Walker told the Rotarians how much would be forthcoming to the town to effect improvements if that area were included within the town.

If the boundary ran east on Front street to the Lennoxville road then north to Ann and west to include Hancock and Highland parks, then westward along the west Beaufort road, taxes would add $4,445.35 to the town's general fund or 25 per cent of the total fund revenue from ad valorem taxes for the past year. (The speaker emphasized that he was not advocating such a boundary, but was merely using those lines as illustration.)

The increase in population would net additional rebates from the state in intangible taxes, beer and wine rebate, Powell bill money, and franchise tax.

'No One Benefits'
At present the chamber of commerce manager declared that neither the people in town nor the people on the fringe of the town who would be sharing in such rebates are doing so because they are not a part of a municipality. The state distributes the money everywhere throughout North Carolina to the incorporated towns.

Beaufort Commissioners Defer Court Decision for 60 Days

Gerald Hill Will Fill Planning Board Vacancy

Beaufort Commissioners Deal with Traffic, Health, Cemetery Problems

The Beaufort town board, in session Monday night at the town hall, appointed Gerald Hill to fill the vacancy on the planning board left by the resignation of Dr. W. L. Woodard. Hill will serve for three years. He is a resident of the newly-annexed portion of the town.

The board also approved a plan presented by Braxton Adair, member of the planning board, to have two advisers from outlying sections of the town meet with the planning board.

James Biggs was approved for the Front street extended area and Adair said another name would be presented as the adviser for the Hancock and Highland park areas.

A chairman of the planning board will be elected at the next meeting, Adair reported.

Autos Short-Cut
The town clerk, Dan Walker, stated that the police department had notified him that automobiles are short-cutting through the abandoned Texaco service station at Ann and Moore st., creating a hazard to motorists and pedestrians. The clerk was directed to request J. Morton Davis, Texaco manager, to block the through-way.

The board also gave permission to have signs erected at the Ann and Turner stop light permitting a right turn on red as a measure to relieve congestion at that corner. The clerk was directed to write property owners living at Orange and Ann and Fulford and Ann streets, asking them to cut down trees and hedges so that blind corner conditions would be corrected.

Commissioners gave William Lewis permission to put a stake in the water at the south end of Front street so that his party-boat the Grace LaRue could tie up there.

New light contracts, presented by George Stovall, manager of the Carolina Power and Light co., were signed. Stovall reported that erection of street lights in the new town areas has been delayed because some residents requested that the poles be the tubular type, to match those in the downtown area of Front street.

Stovall said that the company had originally planned to set pine poles with the gooseneck attachment. He added that steel is "on the tight side" and he couldn't see BOARD, Page 3

Rent Official Explains Seasonal Rent Processes

A more flexible system for establishing maximum legal rents for seasonal dwelling units in critical defense housing areas is provided in a regulation which became effective Tuesday, April 1, according to R. S. Cromartie, Jr., associate area rent director for the Office of Rent Stabilization in Carteret county.

The new regulation, Cromartie said, applies to all housing in critical areas which is affected by seasonal conditions so that demand normally increases and materially higher rents are obtained during the local in-season, or demand normally falls off during the off-season so that the unit is rented at a much lower rate or perhaps is vacant.

If the housing unit affected by such seasonal rents is located in a resort area all rent stabilization and eviction controls will be suspended during the in-season, the rent director said, but will be in effect during the off season.

The season for summer resorts was specified as June, July, August and September and the winter season was specified as December, January, February and March. However, local rent advisory boards are authorized to recommend that the in-season period be changed or eliminated entirely if it does not suit local conditions.

If the housing unit is affected by seasonal rents but not located in a resort area ORS said the maximum rents would be established on the basis of the landlord's records of rentals during a previous twelve months and eviction controls apply throughout the year.

Under the new regulation all landlords renting seasonal housing in critical areas are required to register the property with the local area rent office before May 16. A form is provided by ORS which al-

Walter S. Morris Heads Morehead City Jaycees

Walter S. Morris was elected president of the Morehead City Jaycees Monday night after much campaigning by all candidates. Paul Geer, Jr., was elected internal vice-president; Kenneth Wagner, external vice-president; James Meeks, treasurer; Jasper Bell, J. C. Harvell, Russell Outlaw, Frank Safrit and James Webb as directors.

The installation service will be May 5 but the location has not been decided upon. Guests were Clive Stanley and Gene Bell.

May 1 Set as Date For Tentative Opening of Center

The date for opening the recreation center on Shepard street, Morehead City, has been moved to May 1, "maybe," the recreation commission says.

Although quite a lot of repairs have been made, tile for the floor in the front lobby has been difficult to obtain, and valves in the plumbing, manufactured during the war, have proved difficult to replace.

The lobby is piled full of furniture, lamp bases, kitchen equipment, and countless furnishings in various stages of disrepair. In the auditorium are pews from the First Baptist church which will be stored somewhere in the building, and two pianos that the commission is hoping to have repaired.

Exhaust fans are being placed in back of the stage and lights on the tennis courts are being readied for the summer season.

Mrs. A. B. Roberts, secretary of the recreation commission, said that a "fulltime recreation director" is beyond the financial ability of the commission at present, and Bernard Leary, chairman, is in charge of finding a summer director.

The Morehead City Lions club has offered to clean the recreation building when the time comes, Mrs. Roberts said, and the American Home department of the Woman's club has been requested to cover the furniture and repair blinds.

It was originally hoped to open the building the first of the year, then the date was moved to April 1. The task has proved more than anticipated, but aside from cash pledges by businessmen, most of the labor and material has been donated.

The re-opening of the building is in charge of an inter-club "Build for Youth" committee.

Decision on establishing a municipal recorder's court in Beaufort was deferred 60 days by commissioners in session Monday night at the town hall.

Motion to defer action was made by Commissioner Carl Hatsell after Claud Wheatly, Beaufort attorney, spoke against the court, Wiley Taylor, town attorney, made what he termed remarks neither for or against the court, and Gene Smith, Beaufort attorney, spoke in favor of it.

Aside from the exchange of fire between attorneys, the only other comments came from commissioners.

Wheatly termed the result of setting up inferior courts "disheartening." Citing the Morehead City recorder's court as an example, he called attention to the "terrific expansion" necessary, the obtaining of a place to hold the court, establishing a clerk of court office, a new clerk to take care of warrants, and the hiring of a judge and solicitor.

"In Morehead City," he added, "it's almost impossible to get through without being arrested if you have violated a law. Our Beaufort police department is courteous and people have a good attitude toward our police officers. That's not so in Morehead City."

"Before that court was established, Morehead City was sending no more than 10 cases to the county recorder's court a month. Now in Morehead City they're trying 25 to 30 cases a week," he declared.

Jurisdiction Discussed
Wheatly then took up the matter of realm of jurisdiction. He commented that the statute provides that a recorder's court shall have jurisdiction within a five-mile limit

Three Residents Take Complaints To Town Board

Three women residents of Beaufort, Mrs. L. F. Williams, Mrs. Bernice Jarman, and Mrs. Lucy Whitehurst, appeared before the town board Monday night with complaints.

Mrs. Williams, 115 Queen st., said that motors in a new business establishment on Queen street ran night and day and prevented her and her husband from getting any rest.

The new business on Queen street is Mundy's meat market, owned and operated by O. T. Mundy, a member of the town board. When Mrs. Williams made her business known, Commissioner Mundy asked, "Mrs. Williams, why didn't you come to me and say something about this?"

"I didn't think it would do any good," Mrs. Williams replied. Commissioner Carl Hatsell, an electrician, said that he installed the motors for refrigeration boxes and "I told her that they might make some noise," he declared.

Commissioner Mundy told Mrs. Williams that her appearance before the board was embarrassing to him and that he felt she should have spoken to him about the motors before making the matter public. "I'm willing to make an adjustment, but now it will cost me $50 to $75 more than if I had been told about this before the installation job had been completed."

Wiley Taylor, town attorney, told Mrs. Williams that the meat market is legitimately located in a block zoned for business and added that the matter was a private affair that the board was not able to settle.

Mrs. Jarman and Mrs. Whitehurst complained about the noise and soot coming from the Beaufort and Morehead City railroad engine. The town attorney recommended that Mrs. Jarman indict the railroad. Referring to ordinances prohibiting the engine from firing up in town, Taylor said, "That's another ordinance that has never been enforced."

The women said that marl was put down along the tracks to keep down dust, but that the dust from the marl was worse than the smoke from the engine.

When a town official pointed out that oil was put on the marl to keep the dust down, Mrs. Jarman and Mrs. Whitehurst said that the oil caused trouble too. They said that people on Ann street are now complaining about the dirt and smoke from the train.

Mayor L. W. Hassell announced that A. T. Leary, manager of the road, told him that if the crew fired the engine or otherwise violated town ordinances in regard to the train, they were to be pulled off and put in jail. "And I'll get another crew," Leary told the mayor.

Mayor Hassell promised the two women that he would take a copy of ordinances regarding operation of the train to Leary the next day and again request compliance.

Education Board Names Three Men To School Boards

Raymond Ball, H. D. Paul Stay on Beaufort Board; R. T. Willis, Jr., Named

The county board of education, in monthly session Monday afternoon at the education office in the court house annex, Beaufort, re-appointed Raymond Ball and H. D. Paul to the Beaufort school board. Each succeeds himself and will serve a three-year term. Reappointed to the Morehead City school board was R. T. Willis, Jr.

In all communities except Beaufort and Morehead City, school committee appointments are made every two years. In Beaufort and Morehead the terms are staggered, new appointments coming up yearly. Appointments to committees in other communities will not be made until next April.

H. L. Joslyn, county superintendent of schools, presented the proposed budget for 1952-53 to the board. He said the budget will be the same as last year because the county board of commissioners' order is "no increase."

He informed the board that the pupil load is gradually increasing each year and the estimate for 1952-53 is over 5,000. Enrollment went over 5,000 for the first time this year. Joslyn estimated the number of teachers to be allotted the county, commenting that some communities may lose one or two, while others will gain.

The superintendent reviewed with the board the status of the county in relation to obtaining federal funds for school plant improvement. He also read two letters, one a copy of a letter sent to Dr. Clyde Erwin, state superintendent of schools, by the United Workers for Equal Facilities, Queen Street school, Beaufort, and a copy of the letter sent in answer to the committee from the state superintendent.

The Queen Street committee inquired whether funds were available for them from an amount in the state education budget. Dr. Erwin verified a report previously given them by the county superintendent to the effect that the fund was earmarked for distribution to other counties and that Carteret had already received its proportionate share.

Frank Nance Joins Employment Staff

Frank Nance, Beaufort, has joined the staff of the Employment Service commission, Morehead City, as farm placement supervisor, Mrs. Julia Tenney, office manager, announced yesterday.

Nance will assist farmers with labor problems, the obtaining of sufficient workers to help them during the growing and harvesting seasons. Nance was recently elected commander of Carteret post No. 99, American Legion, Beaufort.

Farmers wanting laborers or assistance in labor problems should contact Nance at the employment office, 4th street, Morehead City, phone 6-4431.

Others on the staff in addition to Mrs. Tenney and Nance, are James T. Starling, claims taker, and Mrs. Roy Clark, senior general clerk.
