

Colonial, County's Newest Food Store, Beaufort, to Open Thursday

The newest, most modern food store in the county, Beaufort's Colonial store at Front and Turner streets, will open at 8:30 Thursday morning. Three gala days, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday will be packed with specials in merchandise items and gifts for customers including orchids, baskets of food, nylon stockings, and towel sets.

On those three days the doors will remain open until 7:30 p.m. and regular business hours will begin next Monday, June 9. Manager of the store will be J. S. Steed, manager of the present "Pender's" store on Front street.

Arranged for the comfort and convenience of the shopper, the Colonial store has spacious aisles, eye-ease fluorescent lights, tiled floors, a pleasant pastel green and neutral tone color scheme, plus a complete line of items for kitchen, pantry and medicine cabinet.

Yes, in the new store will be available "health and beauty aids," medical remedies, tooth paste, shampoos, face creams, tooth brushes, facial tissues, hair tonics, and numerous other items.

To the right of the entrance is the glass-enclosed office of the manager. Then lining the east side of the store are self-service shelves jam-crammed with such delightfully packaged items that they lure the shopper into wanting to spend a fortune on food.

Four-decker shelves offer customers all types of bakery products cereals, relishes, pickles, mayonnaise, preserves. From refrigerated double-decker dairy cases Mrs. Housewife can help herself to all types of cheeses, butter, milk, oleomargarine, and "canned" biscuits.

At the rear of the store Roger Hunt, Beaufort manager of the meat department, will preside over 41 feet of sparkling white refrigerated meat cases filled with packaged cold cuts, fryers, frankfurters sausage, salad items, steaks, chops, roasts, stew meats, ground beef, poultry, and seafood. Available will be veal cuts, beef, pork, and lamb.

The meat department is equipped with stainless steel tables, a stainless steel sink, and several sets of scales.

In addition to a soft drink-dispensing machine, the new Colonial store is equipped with a refrigerated drinking fountain. Leading forward from the drinking fountain to the front of the store and along the west wall is a 36-foot mirrored produce counter which will be ready with farm-fresh fruits and vegetables for Thursday's opening.

Available from deep freeze cabinets 16 feet in length will be frozen vegetables, juices, fruits, frozen poultry products, seafoods, and rolls.

All types of shortening, lards and oils line the shelves, plus baking powder, salt, pet foods, flour, meals, ready-mixes, and sugar. And ready to go into the market basket too, is ice cream from the store's shiny ice cream cabinet.

From three islands of shelves in the middle of the floor may be selected canned fruits, vegetables, seafoods, meats, prepared dishes such as baked beans, chow mein; macaroni, spaghetti, noodles, dried beans, rice, grits, dried fruits, soups, baby foods, toilet soaps, laundry supplies, starch, disinfectants, all types of household cleaning materials, spices, desserts, tea, coffee, light bulbs, paper products, cakes and crackers.

Especially attractive are the oval end candy display counters laden with luscious, cellophane-encased confections.

The receiving room for food shipments is at the rear of the store with a truck entrance from Turner street. Located in the rear also is a roomy, shelved meat cooler refrigerated at 35 degrees and a large produce cooler refrigerated at 45 degrees plus storage space. The customers can be assured of being as cool and comfortable when leaving the store as they were when they entered. The building is air-conditioned. Sturdy wire baskets set on free-swinging wheels are an added aspect for pleasurable shopping.

At the check-out stands, where purchases are packaged, candy bars, gum, cigarettes and all types of tobacco products are on sale.

Colonial Stores declares, in reference to the new store, "We have grown up with Beaufort and are proud to be a part of the community."
