

Construction Begins on Fishery Service Building

$20,000 Structure Will House Shops, Cars, Heating plant, Pump Systems

Work started Wednesday morning on the service building, the first of a new group of buildings to house the United States fisheries laboratory on Pivers Island, Beaufort.

The building, of concrete block and brick construction, is being built by workmen at the laboratory under the supervision of J. Vance Fulford, superintendent of buildings and grounds. Thirty feet wide and 148 feet long, the building will cost approximately $20,000. It will lie in an east-west direction, parallel to the present frame building.

It will be the carpenter shop, machine shop, four garages, heating and pumping systems for both fresh and salt water.

Assisting Superintendent Fulford are Claude Guthrie, Reginald Willis, John Parker, E. Garrison, and Clarence Carter.

True Stefferhagen, architect-engineer of Washington, D. C., and R. P. Silliman, chief of the branch of anatomous fishes, were at the island last week to make final preparations prior to construction.

The new building will have a facing of ivory brick and a green asbestos roof. Its construction is the first part of an overall plan to beautify the island and landscape the shore. It is hoped, according to G. B. Talbot who is in charge of the lab, that construction on the laboratory itself will start next year.

When that building is completed, the present wooden building will be torn down. A new building program was proposed and undertaken because the present structures are so old that cost of maintenance is constantly rising, Talbot said.

125 Attend Meter School at MCTI

The largest number of enrollees in the school's history this week attended the 21st annual meter school at Morehead City Technical Institute. There were 125.

The meter school is conducted by the Department of Electrical Engineering, State college, and the division of college extension. Yesterday concluded a four-day session.

Dean J. H. Lampe of the School of Engineering welcomed the group men from all parts of eastern United States, Monday afternoon and served as toastmaster Wednesday night at a banquet at the Blue Ribbon club. Speaker at the banquet was John Paul Lucas of Duke Power company.

Most of the men who attended the school are power company employees. Classes were held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 2 to 5 p.m. each day. On display at MCTI was equipment manufactured by electrical firms and power concerns.

Although the technical institute is moving to Gastonia, it is believed that the summer meter school will continue to be held here. The three week cotton classing course offered by State college will start next week at the institute.

200 Attend ABC Meeting at Beach

Two hundred men and their wives attended the state meeting of the Alcoholic Beverage Control board at Atlantic Beach this week. S. J. Rabon of Morehead City, affiliated with the Beaufort ABC store, was a member of the committee for convention arrangements.

An executive committee of seven officers was elected. They are Hector Lupton, Edenton; J. Allen Dunn, Salisbury; Fred Poisson, Wilmington; J. Loyd Britt, Asheville; Wyatt Dixon, Durham; Russell Clark, Tarboro; and J. Winder Bryan, Raleigh.

From this group the president and other officers for the coming year will be elected.

Among the speakers were Robert W. Winston, chairman of the North Carolina Alcoholic Beverage Control board, and John O'Hagan, Charlottesville, Va., widely-known lecturer who was formerly affiliated with the whiskey industry.

The convention opened Tuesday and closed Wednesday night. Conventioneers attended a banquet at the Rex restaurant, Ocean King hotel Tuesday night. A dance followed in the Heart of the Beach. On Wednesday night there was also dancing and many attended the opening night at the race track.

Recreation Programs to Open Monday

The Beaufort recreation program and the Morehead City recreation program for children will open Monday morning.

Registration for the Beaufort program will begin at 9 o'clock Monday morning at the Scout building on Pollock street. The directors will be Mr. and Mrs. John Evans. Evans coached football at the school last fall. Both he and his wife are members of the Beaufort faculty and Mrs. Evans coached the cheer leaders.

Featured on the Beaufort program will be baseball, swimming, supervised games, arts, crafts, and dancing. Children from 8 years upward may register. Assisting the directors in registration at the Scout building will be members of the Junior Woman's club who, with the Rotary club, are sponsoring the program this year. Mrs. Lockwood Phillips is in charge of obtaining chaperones for the dances.

This is the fifth year for the Beaufort recreation program. Director for the first three years was R. M. Williams. Mrs. Phillips was in charge last summer.

Funds for the program are raised by donations from civic and fraternal organizations, through gifts from businessmen, and by personal contributions. The Beaufort Choral club, with their production Thursday and Friday nights at the school, helped to raise money for this summer's activity.

Members of the recreation board are the Rev. Winfrey Davis, pastor of the First Baptist church; the Rev. T. R. Jenkins, pastor of the Ann Street Methodist church; the Rev. James P. Dees, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church; Glenn Adair, president of the Rotary club; N. F. Eure, Rotarian; Williams, Mrs. Phillips, past directors.

Mrs. Jack Barnes, president of the Junior Woman's club; Wiley Taylor, jr., president of the Beaufort Jaycees; Mrs. W. L. Woodard, president of the Beaufort Book club; and James Davis, treasurer.

Two hundred fifty youngsters have registered in the Morehead City program, Fred Lewis, director, reported yesterday. Although the program does not formally open until Monday, children have been using game facilities in the building during the past 10 days.

Lewis suggests that youngsters obtain their registration cards, if they have not already done so, at the dance tonight. Guests from other communities may attend if they are invited by a member. Summer visitors are admitted providing they register at the door.

Three outdoor shuffleboards are in the process of being laid and the new tennis nets will be put up as soon as metal poles arrive.

Beaufort, Morehead Jaycees To Promote June Dairy Month

In observance of June Dairy Month the Beaufort and Morehead City Jaycees will sponsor a dairy festival at 2:30 Saturday afternoon, June 28, in front of the City theatre, Morehead City.

Mayors of Morehead City, Beaufort, and Newport will participate in a cow-milking contest, heads of civic organizations will compete in an ice cream eating contest and members of county 4-H clubs will vie for the dairy queen festival crown.

Chairman for the Beaufort Jaycees is Sam Gibbs and chairman for the Morehead City Jaycees is Billy Oglesby. Gibbs replaces James Allgood, former assistant farm agent, who was chairman of the Beaufort Jaycees agriculture committee.

Assisting in promotion of June Dairy month are Robert Howard and Bill Dowdy of local dairy farms.

In the milking contest will be L. W. Hassell, mayor of Beaufort; George W. Hill, mayor of Morehead City; and Charles Gould, jr., mayor of Newport.

Participating in the ice cream eating contest will be Walter Morris, president of the Morehead City Jaycees; Wiley Taylor, jr., president of the Beaufort Jaycees; James Davis, president of Beaufort Rotary club; Roy Garner, president of the Newport Rotary club; George McNeill, president of the Morehead City Rotary club; and Fred Lewis, president of the Morehead City Lions club.

Each contestant in the dairy queen festival will receive free a gallon of ice cream. In charge of the dairy queen contest is Miss Martha Barnett, county 4-H club advisor.

Beaufort Officers Arrest Two; Hearings Today

Earl Hudgins of Beaufort was arrested at 8:30 Wednesday night at his home on a charge of trespassing on the property of Bettie Pinkerton, being drunk and disorderly, and slapping a child, Laura Hudgins, several times. He was placed under $150 bond.

Making the arrest were Capt. Charlie Thomas, Patrolman J. W. Sykes, Officer Maxwell Wade, and Chief of Police Carlton Garner.

Chief Garner also arrested at 6 o'clock Monday night James Chadwick who was riding his bicycle while drunk, according to the chief. Chadwick was placed under $50 bond.

Both will be tried in court today.

A&NC Railroad Receives Aid on Defense Projects

The Atlantic and North Carolina railroad is one of two North Carolina firms which has recently been granted Defense Production administration certificates that will permit them to write off in five years a substantial part of the cost of projects expanding their facilities to handle defense work.

The railroad, which operates between Goldsboro and Morehead City can write off 55 per cent of a $243,000 program.

The Eastern Storage corporation of Rocky Mount can write off 40 per cent of a $91,000 expansion of its storage facilities.

Grand Jury Makes Report in One Day

The grand jury, which completed its work in one day this week, recommended that improvements be made in the county jail, Beaufort. All other matters investigated by the jurors were found to be satisfactory, they said in their report to Judge John J. Burney.

The grand jury recommended that the windows in the jail be screened, suggested that hot water be installed, and stated that since there was only one toilet for both sexes and all races on the lower floor, that additional facilities should be provided.

The report cited the health, welfare, education departments and the register of deeds as being very helpful to the jurors in their investigations and thanked all county officials for their cooperation. The report further stated that the clerk of superior court said that all the required reports by the various courts, justices of the peace, executors and administrators had been filed.

The jury expressed its thanks to Judge Burney for his instruction and help and acted on bills of indictment. Foreman of the grand jury was Charlie L. Pake.

Businessman Says He Will Pay Fee

Johnny Carroll Newport businessman, told THE NEWS-TIMES yesterday that he had not been informed until "a short time ago" that his privilege license was overdue, but added that it will be paid.

The Newport town board directed at their June meeting that the license fee should be paid by Carroll, and reported that in THE NEWS-TIMES of June 6.

Carroll stated, "I started business in a used car lot last June 1951 and had not been notified either in writing or verbally of an overdue license until a short time ago."

"It was surprising to me after doing business nearly twelve months to learn in the county newspaper that a warrant would be sworn out for me for refusal to pay this license. I still contend the amount of $20 is too high."

"However upon receipt of a bill and privilege license, a check will be forwarded," he said, to the town board.

Free Will Baptist Minister Joins Association of Pastors

The Rev. James E. Howard, pastor of the Free Will Baptist church, Beaufort, became a member of the Carteret County Ministerial association at the meeting Monday morning at the civic center, Morehead City. That was the last meeting until fall. The ministers will convene again on the first Monday after the second Sunday in September.

The enrollment of Mr. Howard increases the ministerial association membership to 20, the largest in the history of the organization. The speaker at Monday's session was the Rev. Leon Couch, minister of the First Methodist church, Morehead City. He spoke on the subject, The Need of a Renewed Call to Worship.

The devotional was conducted by the Rev. R. N. Fitts of Marshallberg. He read from the scriptures, Acts the first chapter and his devotional talk was "Ye Shall be My Witnesses."

The president of the association is the Rev. R. H. Jackson, pastor of the Free Will Baptist church, Davis, and the secretary-treasurer is the Rev. A. L. Reynolds, pastor of the Franklin Memorial Methodist church, Morehead City.

Veterinarians Will Convene At Beach Monday

Among those serving on the arrangements committee for the convention of the North Carolina Veterinary Medical Association Monday and Tuesday at Atlantic Beach are Dr. C. E. Paden of Morehead City, and chairman of the committee is Dr. C. R. Swearingen of Smithfield, husband of the former Sue Murray Thomas of Beaufort.

The session will be the 51st annual meeting of the association. Retiring president, Dr. G. R. Armstrong of Charlotte will preside. Dr. J. W. McKee of Hickory will be installed as president for the coming year, along with a vice-president and secretary-treasurer, to be elected.

Heading the list of out-of-state speakers will be Dr. Leon F. Whitney of Orange, Conn. Dr. Whitney is a noted author, lecturer and specialist on dogs and small animals. For many years he was one of the leading breeders of blood hounds in this country.

Dr. Ed Chambers of Rossville, Ga., specialist in dairy and beef cattle, will deliver two lectures. Veterinarians will also give account and lead panel discussions on their particular field of veterinary medicine.

One hundred fifty North Carolina veterinarians and wives are expected to attend the meeting. Pre-convention activity and entertainment have been arranged for early arrivals.

Present officers of the North Carolina State Veterinary Medical Association include Dr. Armstrong, President; Dr. C. L. Bell, Durham, vice-president; Dr. Clyde W. Young, Mocksville, secretary-treasurer.

Officers of the women's auxiliary are Mrs. W. D. Collins, Winston-Salem, president; Mrs. Ed Boyette, Smithfield, vice-president; and Mrs. T. S. Williams, Shelby, secretary-treasurer.

Convention headquarters will be in the Ocean King hotel.

Building Proceeds On Ocean Pier

Construction of an ocean fishing pier east of Fort Macon State park on Bogue Banks is proceeding apace, with 50 feet of the pier already extending southward into the ocean. The builder is S. S. Stevenson, Hendersonville, and the contractor N. F. Eure of Beaufort.

A road from the Fort Macon road to the pier has already been constructed. It will accommodate cars, parked at an angle, on both sides.

The finished pier will be 1,000 feet long, 16 feet wide and have a tee at the end. Stevenson commented that with favorable weather and no delay in obtaining materials, the pier should be complete by Sept. 1.

The land around the pier has been graded and will be divided into 60 to 70 building lots which will be offered for sale. According to Stevenson's plans, no cottage to cost less than $5,000.

The Atlantic Beach town board met Tuesday night at the L. T. White cottage, Atlantic Beach. A report on the meeting will appear in Tuesday's NEWS-TIMES.

Charles McCullers To Speak June 24

Beaufort Chamber of Commerce Members Will Hear Kinston Executive

Charles L. McCullers, president of the North Carolina Chamber of Commerce association and manager of the Kinston chamber of commerce, will be the speaker at the Beaufort chamber of commerce dinner meeting at 6:45 Tuesday night, June 24, at the Scout building.

At that time new officers for the coming year will be announced. Ballots for members of the board of directors will be sent chamber members within the next few days.

Each chamber member will be contacted by Mrs. Gerald Woodard or Mrs. Oliver Davis who will make reservations for the dinner. Persons who are not members and wish to attend may obtain reservations by phoning the chamber of commerce office, 2-8241.

Braxton Adair, president of the chamber, will make his annual report. This will be the fourth annual chamber of commerce dinner.

4-H Members Buy 12 Calves Friday

A group of 4-H members and their fathers, accompanied by R. M. Williams, farm agent and James Allgood, assistant farm agent, went to Mt. Pleasant in Cabarrus county Friday and purchased 12 purebred Guernsey calves.

Cost of purchase of each calf was borne by the club member and his father by whom the calf is owned, but the bringing of more calves to the county is part of the agriculture extension program to encourage raising of cattle in the county, Williams explained.

All calves will be in Carteret with the exception of one which was purchased for T. G. Leary, jr., and will be kept on the Leary farm in Pamlico county. Leary's father is principal of Beaufort school.

Owners of the others are Elta Taylor, North Harlowe; Clyde Smith, Beaufort; George Godwin, Stella; Leton Allgood, Davis; Grace Yeatman, Merrimon; Ernest Lee Willis, Tommy Garner, Leonard Parker, Walter Clarke, Tommy Howard, and Geneva Hardesty, all of Newport.

Leon Allgood of Davis, Lloyd Smith and son, Clyde, of Newport, C. W. Taylor and daughter, Etta, of North Harlowe, Willie Godwin and son, George of Stella, C. T. Garner and son, Tommy, of Newport, Garfield Clark and son, Walter of Newport, Lonnie Howard and son Tommy of Newport, Earnest Lee Willis of Newport and Leonard Parker of Newport.

The calves came from the herd of Bowman Barrier, Mt. Pleasant. The Carteret purchasers were served lunch by the barriers on the lawn of their home. There was fried chicken, rolls, pimento sandwiches, baked ham, potato chips, pickles, home-made cake, iced tea, and Guernsey milk.

Jaycees Endorse Proposed Road

Beaufort Jaycees, in session Monday night at the Inlet inn, endorsed the proposed new highway between Havelock and Pollocksville which is being recommended by the Emeritus club. Other Jaycee organizations in eastern North Carolina are being asked to approve the road also.

The highway would relieve congestion on highway 70 from Cherry Point to Kinston, the promoters declare.

The Jaycees decided not to enter a contestant in the Miss North Carolina beauty pageant at Winston-Salem this summer. The committee making investigation of the possibilities of entering a contestant said that there was a lack of interest on the part of the girls.

The organization adopted a point system to help distribute duties among all the members. Each member will be required to earn 10 points per calendar quarter in order to remain in the club. Failure to earn the minimum 10 will subject the delinquent member to suspension.

Who Has a Picture? One of THE NEWS-TIMES Beaufort readers has expressed interest in seeing published a picture of the old town gate which stood on the present highway 70 in the vicinity of the location of Beaufort school. If anyone has such a picture, please contact THE NEWS-TIMES, 6-4175.

Dragging for Body Continues, Family Arrives from Norfolk

Grapping operations for the body of Frank W. Land, United States Coast Guardsman who drowned early Tuesday evening at port terminal, Morehead City, continued yesterday afternoon.

Land, a boatswain's mate third class, was stationed aboard the buoy tender, Conifer, which is in port at Morehead City.

According to reports, Land decided he would go swimming and went overboard Tuesday about 6:30 p.m. Unverified information states that he came to the surface struggling and then disappeared.

Coast Guard boats immediately started dragging the area and continued operations Wednesday and Thursday. A search for the body will continue until it is found, Coast Guardsmen said.

Craft conducting the search include the rescue boat from Fort Macon station, small boats aboard the Conifer and a small boat from the Agassiz, Coast Guard cutter stationed at the port.

Morehead City police sent out a call over their radio yesterday for volunteers to assist in searching for Land's body. All local boats have been requested to be on the lookout.

Land's family has been notified of the tragedy and his father, with other members of the family, arrived in Morehead City yesterday from their home at Norfolk.

Alumnus of Morehead City High Finishes MCTI Training

William McClain

By Doris Leach
William "Billy" McClain of Morehead City, who was graduated from North Carolina State College's Technical institute this month, believes that one year in a technical institute can make a great deal of difference in a young man's life.

In May 1951, Billy was a high school graduate without training for a job and without plans for his future. June 6, 1952, he was graduated from State College's Technical institute with a classification as an electrical technician. And he has had two offers of jobs from public utilities and one offer from an international corporation.

As an electrical technician Billy is one of the young men who is helping to fill the great demand for technically trained men; in fact, every member of his class in electrical technology has been offered a job.

When Billy graduated from high school, there was a possibility that he could afford one year in college, but only one. He considered one year in a four-year college. Then he visited State College's Technical Institute in Morehead City and decided to enroll in the one-year course in electrical technology. At the end of the first term, he was awarded the Morehead City Rotary scholarship.

During the first term Billy studied the same subjects as the boys specializing in other courses, namely, engineering drawing, mathematics, internal combustion engines, electricity, physics, acetylene welding, and English.

For the second term, he continued the study of engineering drawing, mathematics, and English; but as a student in electrical technology he enrolled in electricity (the study of alternating current), practical electrical wiring (National Electric Code), electrical laboratory (both alternating and direct current) and electric welding.

For the third term the students in electrical technology began electrical drafting, electrical machinery electronics, electrical controls, and radio.

Today Billy says: "If a boy can afford to have only one year in college he should consider a technical institute. At the present time I feel that the training that I have received has not only enabled me to get a job but will also determine my life's work."

Rites Conducted For Edmund Jones

Lenoir. — Graveside rites for Edmund Jones, 73, descendant of a pioneer Caldwell county family, were held in the Episcopal Chapel of Rest Wednesday at 11 a.m.

Mr. Jones, who had been ill for several years, died at 2:55 a.m. Monday in the Morehead City hospital. He was stricken with a heart attack earlier at his home in Beaufort.

Mr. Jones was born at Clover Hill in Happy Valley, the son of the late Capt. Edmund Jones and Eugenia Lewis Jones. His grandfather was Col. Edmund Walter Jones, and his great-grandfather was Gen. Edmund Jones, son-in-law of Gen. William Lenoir.

He was educated at Massey High School for Boys, Lenoir, and the University of North Carolina. He lived in Texas for 12 years and was engaged in ranching, but returned to North Carolina and continued a business career here and at Goldsboro.

He was a veteran of the Spanish-American war, serving in a company commanded by his father.

Surviving are his wife, the former Jean Wilcox of Ashe county; two daughters, Mrs. Margaret Jones Hopkins of Beaufort, and Mrs. George Dewey, III, of Goldsboro; two sons, Edmund, jr., of Raleigh, and Lewis Wilcox of Bloomington, Ill., a brother, Eugene Patterson Jones of Happy Valley; and 10 grandchildren.

Minister Conducts Seminar At Chapel Hill Yesterday

The Rev. Leon Couch, minister of the First Methodist church, Morehead City, yesterday conducted a seminar on pastoral counseling and the alcoholic at Chapel Hill. Directing the session of studies conducted under the North Carolina Alcoholic Rehabilitation program is S. K. Proctor.

Mr. Couch conducted alcoholic clinics throughout western North Carolina last spring and has instructed in pastors' schools in this state, Alabama, Georgia, and Mississippi. He is a student of the Yale University School of Alcohol Studies.

36 Dogs Get Vaccinations At Town Hall Wednesday

Thirty-six of the 171 dogs listed for taxes were vaccinated at the Beaufort town hall Wednesday afternoon. At the same time they were issued dog tags.

Dan Walker, town clerk, said that even if the other 135 dogs have been vaccinated, they must also have a town tag. The tags may be obtained at the town hall and will be good for one year.

Agent Reports
R. N. Williams, county farm agent, reported this week that most of Carteret county's farmers had dug and sold their Irish potatoes before the OPS lifted the $3.45 per-hundred-pound ceiling price. Therefore, they were unable to realize the higher prices of $5 to $7 allegedly being paid after the ceiling was taken off.
