

July 6—Ocracoke homes welcomed a large number of relatives for the July 4th weekend, and the hotels and tourist homes were filled to overflowing with tourists. Many of them coming from the North drove the new Hatteras Reef highway, but did not attempt to drive down the beach to Ocracoke because of the almost impossible sand conditions. Leaving cars at Hatteras, they came the rest of the way with Charlie McWilliams by boat and mail truck or had friends meet them at the Hatteras Inlet end of Ocracoke Island. Others came via Atlantic, both the mail boat "Maw-Faw" and the "Aleta" being crowded with holiday passengers.

The family of Mr. and Mrs. Zimie Williams was together for the first time in a number of years. Son Dallas Williams, U. S. Navy, home from the Mediterranean and North African areas, and son Russell Williams, recently home from service in Korea, made this family reunion possible. Others at home were Troy Williams of Reidsville, Mrs. Leon Johnson of Norfolk, with Mr. Johnson, Mrs. Janice Taylor of Ocracoke and Larry Williams, home for the summer from Eastern Carolina College.

Another family almost complete for the July 4th holiday was that of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Gaskill, with son Enoch Gaskill and family of Madison, and son Clinton of Washington, D. C., at home and Cris and Owens of Ocracoke here. Only son Wilbur Gaskill of Manassquan, N. J. could not be present.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Cullifer, sr., and Miss Dianne Cullifer of Norfolk, visited Mrs. Cullifer's mother, Mrs. Hallas Bragg, and with then friends, Peggy Wetherington and Wesley and Mary Alice Thomason.

Home at the Preston Garrish's were Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Rush and daughter of Beaufort, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Salter and son of Atlantic.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Garrish and family and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Garrish visited at the home of Mrs. Elicia Garrish.

Mr. and Mrs. Starnie Davis of Morehead City left on Wednesday after a week's visit with Mr. and Mrs. Murray Tolson.

With the Marvin Howard's was son, Olin Howard, home for a second vacation from Schoolfield, Virginia, and daughter, Mrs. Bob Kennedy and Mr. Kennedy of Winston-Salem, and with the Kelly O'Neals, son Stuart and family of Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Simpson and children of Portsmouth, Va., visited George Simpson.

Mrs. Ruth Hunnings and friends of Apex were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Bryant Hunnings.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben German and family of Baltimore are staying at Silver Lake Inn and visiting with various relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Sambo Drake of Rocky Mount and child visited his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Bragg.

Home from Norfolk with Mr. and Mrs. John Gaskins were Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Farmer and family.

Mrs. Joe Burrus had as recent guests Mrs. Fred L. Thomas and Mr. and Mrs. Tom B. Davis of Selma. Mrs. Thomas, daughter of a Methodist minister, lived here in her childhood and enjoyed a week of visiting old friends and old haunts.

Anthony Morris of Atlantic is spending the summer with grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Scarborough, Meredith, Jimmie, and Gary Cullison are visiting grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Williams.

Another family that has had at home recently most of its members was that of Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Ballance, the missing link being son, Maurice, now in service in Germany. Son Elisha Ballance was home from Portsmouth, Virginia, son William, from Beaumont Texas. Lawrence Ballance returned on Sunday to work in Wilmington, after an extended stay here. A brand new addition came to the Ballance family on Saturday, June 30th, when grandchild Judy Queene, was born in Morehead City to Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Ballance.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Lewis are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Liege Styron.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Spencer announce the birth of a daughter, Bessie Christine, on June 29th.

Miss Alice Belle Williams, recently at work in Norfolk, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tyndall of Arapahoe visited Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin E. Spencer recently.

Mrs. A. S. Byrum of Raleigh and Morehead City, and daughter, Mary occupied their cottage here for the July 4th holiday period.

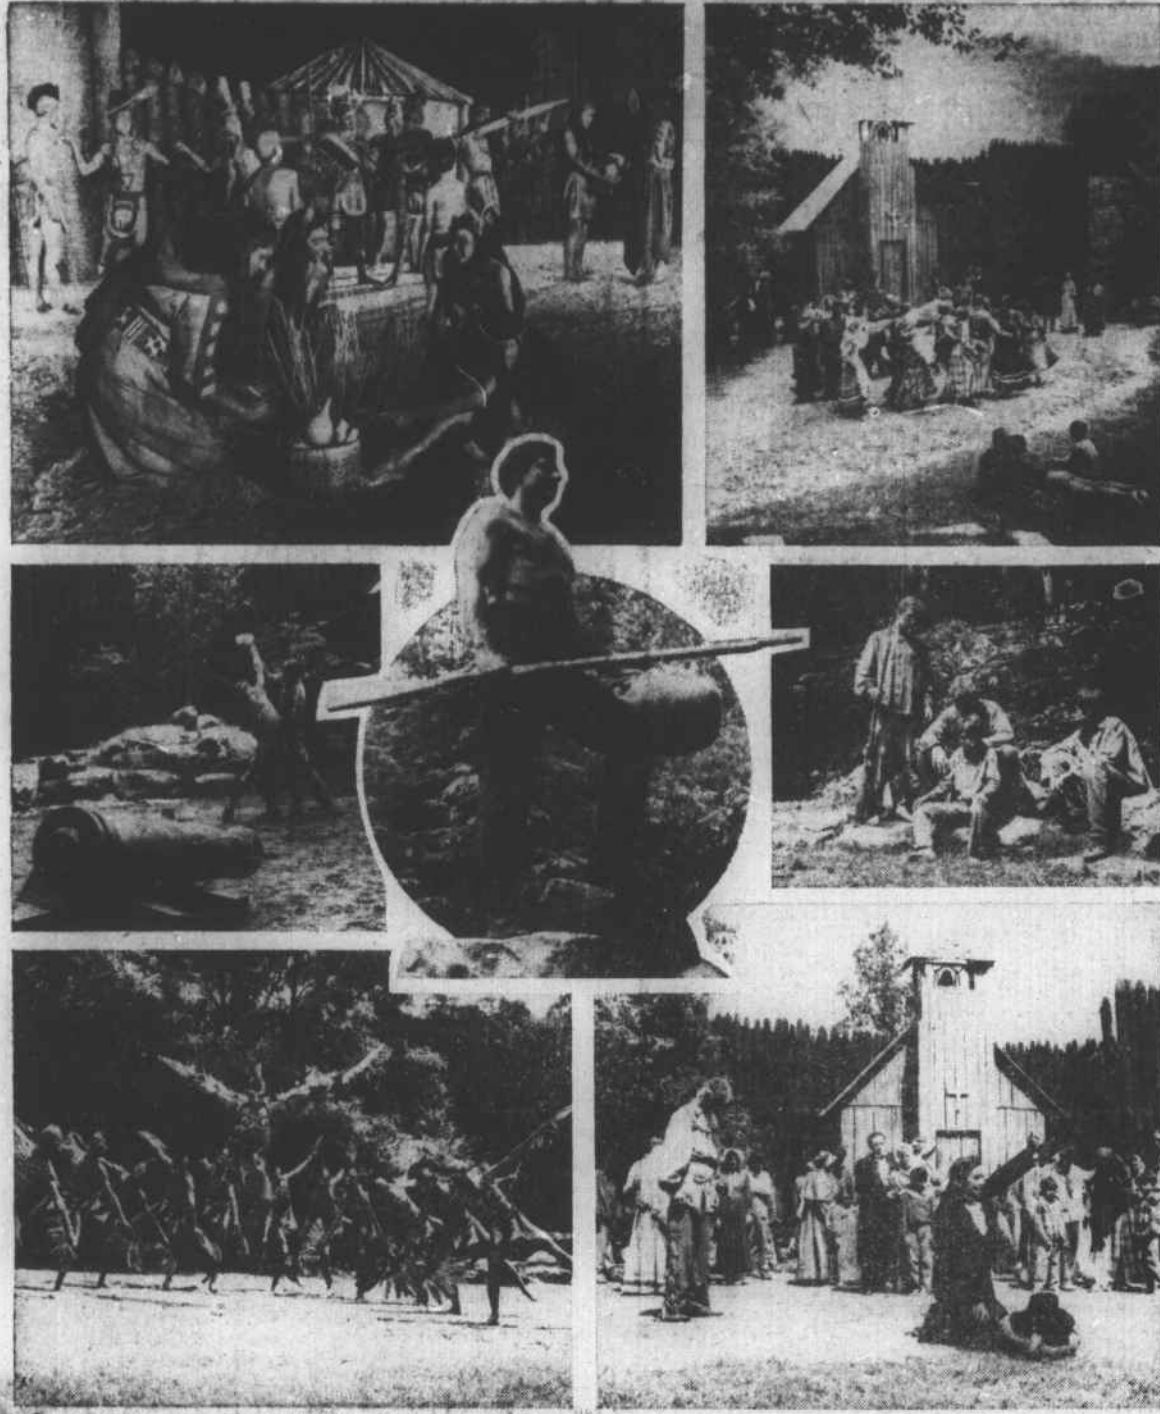

John Gaskill was home from Norfolk and also his sister, Mrs. Phillip Fleg and daughter, all with Mr. Lum Gaskill.

Elmer Midgett spent the past week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Midgett, and had as his guest, George Mark of Philadelphia.

Among those who left their work in northern cities for a few days at home were Horace Gaskins, Clinton Gaskill, Albert Styron, Al Gaskins, Carlson O'Neal, Frank Gaskins of Hatteras was a visitor.

Amid all the rejoicing of homecoming, was one leave-taking. Cpl. Walter C. O'Neal, jr., U. S. Marines, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter O'Neal, after an extended leave started on his long journey for service in Korea, leaving here Sunday morning.

Cherokee Drama Stirs Thousands

Cherokee, N. C. — From almost forgotten pages of American history comes the towering, true story of the Cherokee Indians—"Unto These Hills." This action-packed, authentic drama is presented nightly except Mondays through Sept. 1 in Mountainside theatre, Cherokee. Direct descendants of the Cherokee nation help re-create this colorful story of their ancestors here in the Great Smoky mountains.

Blood-kin of such immortals as Sequoyah, the illiterate who invented the Cherokee alphabet and taught his people to read and write; John Ross, the great peace chief who ruled his people for forty years; Junaluska, who saved the life of Andrew Jackson at the Battle of Horseshoe Bend; and Tsali, the Cherokee who gave his life as a remnant of his people might forever live in their beloved Great Smokies, are cast in the 1952 production of this great drama.

Focal point in "Unto These Hills" is Tsali (center above), played by John Shearin of Weldon, N. C. The Cherokee (top left) were a peaceful people until De Soto came into the Smokies in 1540. But the years that followed were full of turmoil and fighting. They fell back before the giant wave of white immigration, always losing.

Then in 1812 they joined with the Americans to battle the British and saved the life of Jackson and the day for America at Horseshoe Bend (center left) in one of the great battles of American history. Back in the Great Smokies, the Cherokee celebrated this victory with their famous Eagle dance (bottom left) which has been handed down through a thousand years of Cherokee tribal ritual and now reproduced in "Unto These Hills."

For a while the Cherokee lived in peace, side by side with the white man, joining in community events and folk dances (top right). Then gold was discovered on for a California port. Cpl. O'Neal graduate of Ocracoke High school 1951, received his training at Paris Island and Jacksonville, Fla. While home on leave he was entertained by various friends.

As for tourists, there were many on the Island. A Friday night square dance at Silver Lake Inn, and a movie and square dance on Saturday night were social functions of the weekend.

Cherokee land in 1825, dooming the nation to exile in Oklahoma. It was during the roundup that Tsali killed an American soldier. He and his sons (right center) hid out in a cave under Clingman's dome, finally surrendered, and faced a firing squad so that a thousand Cherokee, also hiding out, could remain in the Smokies.

As Tsali surrendered, thousands of his people were on the march into exile over what became known as "The Trail of Tears." A group stopped as Tsali was brought in by the soldiers, and Tsali asked them to sing and to pray. Elias Boudinot, a Cherokee missionary, played by Arsene Thompson, a full-blood Cherokee (bottom right, kneeling), prays as Tsali is executed and as his people move off into exile.

But because of Tsali's sacrifice, some of his people were permitted to remain in the Great Smokies. They are the Cherokee who live here today on a 65,000-acre reservation, descendants of the very Cherokee who lived and wrote this great, true story of America—a story re-created through Kermit Hunter's internationally acclaimed "Unto These Hills" and brought to life under the able direction of Harry Davis.

Building Inspector Issues Two Permits During June

Two building permits were issued by Gerald Woolard, Beaufort building inspector, during June. Clyde W. Pickett, New Bern, was granted a permit to alter a dwelling on Queen street, and a man by the name of Collins (Woolard could not supply the first name) was given permission to re-roof a dwelling on Hedrick street at a cost of $400.

State ABC Board Revokes License, Rejects Request

The state ABC board Tuesday revoked the beer license of Dallas Carter, North Harlowe, and rejected a request for a wine license by J. L. Henderson, Newport.

The Carter license was revoked because Carter was convicted of violating the prohibition laws and was "not a suitable person to handle the sale of beer" and the Henderson request was rejected because his building was deemed unsuitable for the sale of wine.
