

1952-53 Hunting Licenses on Sale

Leroy McIntosh, Beaufort, game and wildlife protector in Carteret county, today announced that licenses for the 1952-53 hunting season are on sale. McIntosh also issued a warning to youngsters who are shooting song birds with air rifles.

It is illegal to shoot song birds and persons apprehended as violators of that law will be prosecuted, the game warden said.

Last year's hunting licenses expired Thursday, July 31. The new ones may be purchased at the following places throughout the county:

Morris's grocery, Atlantic; Headen Willis's store, Smyrna; Gerald Davis, Marshallberg; Mac's Service station, Beaufort; Carteret Hardware, Beaufort Hardware, Beaufort.

Morehead Builders Supply company, Morehead City; C. M. Hill, Newport; Joe Taylor, Bogue; and Gerald Pelletier, Stella.

Beaufort Splits Sunday With Harkers Islanders

Beaufort split Sunday's doubleheader with Harkers Island. The Islanders took the first one, 4-2 with Beaufort taking the second, 7-5.

In the opener Jimmy Piner of Beaufort had a 1-0 shutout until the 6th when he lost his control and allowed three walks, one hit and committed an error. This allowed Harkers Island to tally 4 runs. Beaufort started to rally in the 7th but big Walter Thomas, the winning pitcher, stopped them after 1 score. Thomas gave up 4 hits and fanned 8.

In the second game Beaufort scored 3 runs in the 4th and 4 in the 5th to coast to a 7-5 victory. Frank Garner was the winning pitcher and Red Davis the loser.

Manager Durocher Pulls Rock in All-Star Game

Philadelphia (AP) — Even in winning, a baseball manager can pull a rock.

In the fourth inning of the recent All-Star game with the National league leading, 3-2, and the bases loaded, Manager Leo Durocher permitted a pitcher, Bob Rush, to go to bat. Rush had been unsteady the previous inning, allowing three hits and a walk for the American league's only runs in the game held to five innings by rain.

Durocher might have been thinking of his right Giant bench but that was the All-Star game in which everybody is supposed to get a chance, no matter what inning. And Lippy had a benchful of hitters that included Ralph Kiner, Duke Snider, Red Schoendienst, Carl Furillo, Wes Westrum, Toby Atwell, Gil Hodges and Alvin Dark. He also had Eddie Stanky. It would have been a perfect spot for the Philadelphia native to draw a base on balls.

Certainly, not one of the 32,785 people in the stands paid to see Bob Rush go to bat with the bases loaded.

This game is supposed to be a show for the fans. Only this time it seems the fans were forgotten.

While on the subject of fans, Shibe park, with less than 33,000 seats, is no place for an All-Star game. That also goes for Ebbets field in Brooklyn and some of baseball's other antiquated parks.

The demand of baseball officials to see this annual classic is so great that when the game moves to a small park hardly more than 15,000 fans can get tickets. Parking facilities also are poor around Shibe park. And taxicabs are as scarce as tickets.

Baseball owners left here griping over the transportation situation. Lou Perini, boss of the Boston Braves, had to take a trolley car back to his hotel. There wasn't one cab in sight when the rains came and many suits of clothes were ruined.

People throughout the country are wondering why Brooklyn's no-hit pitcher, Carl Erskine, failed to be chosen by the National league managers for the All-Star game.

Fact remains that even Dodger pilot Charley Dressen failed to pick Erskine. The reason: Dressen made his eight pitching selections the morning Erskine pitched his no-hit game.

Each NL pilot picks eight pitchers and the lists must be in the NL office eight days before the game. What's the rush? The days of the pony express have long departed.

Dressen could have requested NL president Warren C. Giles to substitute Erskine for one of his other selections, but Charley didn't think of it. As a result, when Preacher Roe begged off to visit his ailing dad in Hardy, Ark., Durocher substituted Jim Hearn, one of his Giant pitchers.

Why everybody was surprised with the great three-inning pitching of the Phillies' Curt Simmons is a surprise in itself. Simmons is one of the greatest three-inning pitchers in baseball because he did not have to pace himself and his fast ball.

Simmons happens to be pitching better than in 1950 when he won 17 games for the Phillies. He finished only 11 of 27 starts that year and turned in but two shutouts.

This time at the All-Star game he had a 7-2 record and four of his triumphs were shutouts.

"We had Jim Konstanty in 1950 and he was going real well," said Simmons. "If we didn't have him I would have finished a few more of those close games."

Vic Wertz, the Detroit slugger, was one of the players peeved at deposed Tiger Manager Red Rolfe and Coach Dick Bartell.

"Red didn't talk much but when he did he was sarcastic," said Wertz. "I didn't get to play much because Red thought I couldn't hit left-handed pitching. Seems I hit both kinds in 1950 when we finished second."

Wertz hit .304 in 1949, playing in 155 games and in 1950 he hit .308 in 149 games.

Switching ball players in two-platoon fashion is one of the big reasons for dissension on the big league clubs today.

Sophomore Bobby Hill won the University of Alabama's first Southeastern Conference golf championship this year with a two over par 290 for 72 holes.

Tar Heel Writes Music for 4-H Club Pledge

Thanks to a North Carolina musician, the nation's more than a million 4-H club members now have a musical arrangement for their pledge.

Prepared by Dr. Frederick Stanley Smith, organist and choirmaster of Christ Church in Raleigh, the arrangements has just been published and copyrighted by the National Committee on Boys and Girls, Club Work, Inc., with headquarters in Chicago. It is dedicated to L. R. Harrill, State 4-H Club leader for the N. C. State College Extension service.

The national committee's monthly magazine, National 4-H News, published the arrangement in its July issue with the following comment:

"Four-H Clubs of America have been favored with this fine musical arrangement for their pledge through the talent and generosity of Dr. Frederick Stanley Smith, its author, and the interest of State Leader L. R. Harrill of North Carolina.

"It should be a good song, and it is, for it was born of an inspiration. One evening at a 4-H gathering Dr. Smith, an experienced choral director, felt the need of such a song and during the night following, one came to him. Lest it escape him before morning he arose and wrote it down.

"Try it out, and you'll find if you learn to sing it well you'll grow fond of its fine melody and swing. It's a good marching song, and of course the words are inspiring in themselves if sung understandingly."

Horses Change Diet

Tokyo (AP)—Japanese race horses are going to get a change in their diet of fodder. The government has granted permission to import 1,000 tons of rye from Australia to help feed Japan's 1,200 race horses.

Recreation Directors To Go to Greensboro

The summer recreation program will have no swimming, dancing or ball practice after Wednesday, for the balance of the week, because Mr. and Mrs. John Evans, directors of the program, will leave that evening for Greensboro where Mr. Evans will attend a coaching clinic preparatory to starting football practice for the Beaufort school team.

The program will continue next Monday, to end for the summer next Friday evening with a dance and party at the Scout building.

Ingenious Prisoners Make Jail Breaking Equipment

Pittsburgh (AP)—To the ingenious prisoner there are many ways of getting out of jail.

Olin G. Blackwell, an official of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, displayed a few of the gadgets used, at a recent forum sponsored by the National Jail association.

A jailer's key fashioned by memory from an old toothbrush handle. An "electric bar cutter" obligingly geared to prison current. A "harmless pencil," with a vicious scalpel blade tied to the other end. A bar saw made by chopping teeth in an ordinary table knife.

Freeman Brothers Win

The Jaycee softball team was defeated again by Freeman Brothers Grocery team Tuesday night by a score of 13-7. They will meet again tonight at Wade Brothers ball park.

Rent Director Answers Queries

By John Blair Mason
Area Rent Director

(These questions were selected from those often asked of the local rent office. If you have a question about the rent stabilization program, address it to: Area Rent Office, Pender Bldg., 9th and Arendell st., Morehead City, N. C.

Q: A tenant bought one of these longer, lower cars and when he got home he discovered he could not get it in his garage and was forced to go out and rent another garage. He wants to know whether he can get rent reduced.

A: There can be no decrease in rent in this case. The services of the landlord haven't changed. It's the tenant's ability to use the services.

Q: If the ownership of a rental unit changes hands, does it necessarily mean that the rent will be raised?

A: The mere fact that property has a new landlord does not automatically justify a rent increase. Any landlord, whether he be a new landlord or the old landlord, must file a petition before he can increase the rent.

Q: What can be done to halt an illegal eviction? Say for failure to pay over ceiling rent, because the tenant's lease has expired, or to gain possession for friends or distant relatives?

A: An injunction can be obtained to halt such evictions. Or, if the eviction takes place before the Rent Office learns about it, the landlord can be sued for damages of not less than one month's rent or $50, whichever is larger, or not more than three months rent, or $150, whichever is larger.

Q: Are copies of the rent laws and regulations available to the general public?

A: Yes, the public may call at the Rent Office, Pender Bldg., 9th and Arendell st., Morehead City, N. C.

Germany To Delaware
Delaware Park (AP)—One of the most interesting applications for authorization to race horses at Delaware Park was received last May from Frankfurt, Main, Germany. Orme Wilson, jr., Vice Consul of the U. S., sent the long range application. Mr. Wilson's home is in Boyce, Va.
