Marine, Former Nazi Prisoner, Pledges Defense of Democracy

By Pfc. David McCullough
Camp Lejeune, N. C.—There's a Leatherneck in Camp Lejeune who sometimes lies awake at night. He recalls the past . . . a Nazi guard swinging a club . . . the wailed alarm of the escape siren . . . the babel of FEAR—in seven languages.
He turns over in his bunk and thanks God, for he can smile—now. Jerzy Fedorowicz was born in Splawy, Poland, in 1931, and moved soon after with his mother and father to the city of Czenzposhow. There he grew up.
The Germans marched on Warsaw, and for a year the shadow of occupation fell lightly on Czenzposhow. But in September, 1940, the conscriptors of "voluntary" labor moved in.
Jerzy, then nine years old, was packed into a cattle truck with his parents; their destination was unknown.
Their place of confinement, as they discovered weeks after they arrived, was in eastern Germany. Within the stockades of that Prison Labor Camp the Fedorowicz family was to spend nearly five years. Each morning at three o'clock the day's work started. Polish, French, German, Belgian and Russian all lined up for the bread to fortify them through 14 hours heavy farm labor.
Sometimes Sunday was a holiday. But there were no religious services, no games. The prisoners just lay on their straw cots and stared at the low wooden ceiling.
One night a small band planned an escape. It had been attempted before, with a reward of insecure freedom or death.
The scheme was simple: a guard had been bribed and would leave a shadowed section of the stockade unattended for a few minutes. A short run would take the rebels to the stockade, and they hoped, the freedom beyond.

They choose a moonless night. As the small gang broke for the stockade a siren wailed; floodlights blinded them. An unexpected machine gun punched holes in their ranks.
Just one man finished the short dash to the wire stockade. He was hanged—next morning as the prisoners trudged out from breakfast. Retributions continued for months. A word between friends was interpreted as conspiracy. The feared "gummiknippel", the guards' rubber club, descended without cause. Hundred of men, women and children died.
Again the monotony of the prison descended.
Jerzy remembers the exact hour the U. S. 3rd Army arrived. For weeks rumors had heralded the fall of Berlin beneath Patton's drive to the east. At 8:30 pm on April 15, 1945, the Fedorowicz family watched the Stars and Stripes ascend the pole which had so long flaunted the swastika.

But it was five long years before Jerzy reached the United States. He lived with his family in Displaced Persons' Camps in Germany and Belgium. While Mr. Fedorowicz worked again at his old trade, bricklaying, Jerzy attended camp schools and perfected his knowledge of five languages.
In July, 1950, under the auspices of the International Refugee Organization, the Fedorowicz family left Europe for a new world—and an experience almost forgotten—democracy.
The young Marine's family migrated to Youngstown, Ohio. His father is working now with a lumber company; he has a home which his wife keeps, like any American housewife.
Jerzy entered the Marine Corps in March, 1952. Following recruit training at Paris Island, S. C., he was assigned to the Post Exchange Section of the Second Marine Division stationed here.

Above all, he feels his experiences have taught him one thing—an appreciation of freedom. "You can live in misery under tyrants," Jerzy told us, "and nearly forget what democracy means. I'm grateful to this country for reminding me. I may be able to prove that gratitude in the Marine Corps."
In ancient times, giraffes were called camelopards because they appeared to resemble camels with leopard coloration.

LEGAL NOTICES
Beaufort Housing Corporation, a North Carolina corporation with its principal place of business in Beaufort, North Carolina, to A. B. Scott and T. C. Hoyle, Jr., Trustees, for Atlantic Life Insurance Company, dated September 25, 1945, and recorded October 24, 1945 in Book 110, page 143, in the office of the Register of Deeds of Carteret County, North Carolina, default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness thereby secured and said deed of trust being by the terms thereof subject to foreclosure, the undersigned trustees will offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder for cash at the Court House door in Beaufort, North Carolina, at noon on August 30, 1952, the property conveyed in said deed of trust, the same lying and being near the Town of Beaufort, County of Carteret, State of North Carolina, and more particularly designated and described as follows:
All of lot 27 in Block 5, as shown on the plat entitled "Property of Beaufort Housing Corporation," same having been prepared in February 1945, and recorded in Book 1, page 226 of the Carteret County Public Registry.
A five per cent deposit will be required of the successful bidder to show good faith.

There's something about a New Paint Job!

There is a lot of satisfaction in having equipment that looks good. But, more important, paint is the best protection against rust and corrosion. We use live steam and a special solvent to remove rust, grease and old paint. Then we refinish with special farm equipment paint that perfectly matches the original Allis-Chalmers color.
The low cost will surprise you. Ask us to quote on your tractor, All-Crop harvester, and other major machines.
