Industry Up In North Carolina

Since the end of World War II, the number of manufacturing plants in North Carolina has more than doubled, records of the division of commerce and industry of the North Carolina department of conservation and development show.

In 1945, according to Paul Kelly, industrial development administrator for the department, there were 4,029 manufacturing plants in the state; in 1951, there were 8,272 plants, a gain of 4,243 plants.

Back in 1945 there were 312,358 persons employed in manufacturing plants in the state; in 1951 the number had grown to 425,000, a gain of 112,642.

This is a record Kelly will be able to point to when he appears on the program of the conservation congress in Raleigh, Nov. 17-18-19, when full-scale discussions of the state's human and natural resources will be held. The congress, sessions of which will be held in the hall of the house of representatives in the state capitol, is being sponsored by the state department of conservation and development. The public is invited to attend.

"Industrial development in North Carolina in the past 28 years, 1923-1951, has made rapid and steady progress," Kelly says. "In 1923, the state had 2,670 manufacturing establishments. In 1951, 28 years later, there were 8,272 active plants, representing an increase of 200 per cent."

And during this 28-year period, Kelly continues, the 187,336 workers employed in 1923 had grown to 425,000 by the end of 1951. The percentage increase in the number of industrial workers was 127 per cent.

Even more remarkable from an economic standpoint is the amount of money paid industrial workers in the state. In 1923, industrial payrolls total $127,537,821; in 1951 they had grown to $2,038,000,000, according to the Blue Book of Southern Progress for 1952. The payroll increase over the 28-year span was 1498 per cent.

The value of sales of North Carolina-manufactured products in 1951 totaled $6,181,000,000 in comparison to the 1923 value of products amounting to $951,910,599.

children who are being studied for adoption. The other is composed of children who are deprived of being in their own homes for some reason and are in need.

Carteret county needs boarding homes to care for children who are neglected or deserted while plans are made for permanent living arrangements. Boarding homes are used also to care for children with behavior problems so that they may become better adjusted. Children with special physical or mental handicaps are given the individualized attention needed.

Carteret county at this time has no such homes for children. According to Miss Hughes, the county welfare department has placed, at this time, one child in an un-

Four in Family Hurt in Wreck

Four members of an Atlantic family were injured Friday night when the car in which they were riding was wrecked near the Oyster creek bridge on highway 70.

Randolph Mason suffered a broken collarbone. His wife Janice, sustained back injuries; and their four-year-old daughter, Paula, suffered cuts and bruises on her face. Joseph Van Mason was treated for broken ribs. The four are in the Morehead City hospital.

According to Highway Patrolman W. J. Smith, the car was proceeding east on highway 70 at an estimated speed of 60 miles per hour. When the car reached a section under construction, it hit the shoulder, skidded 450 feet and turned over in a pasture.

Randolph Mason, the alleged driver of the car, has been charged with reckless driving and driving without a license. Joseph Mason at first told the highway patrol that he had been driving the car, but Randolph Mason later admitted that he was the driver.

Jones was charged with drunken driving, driving with an expired license and failing to render assistance to an injured child. He was held in Morehead City jail for an appearance yesterday in recorder's court. Bond was set at $1000.

The child, Rochelle Gibbs of 1008 Bay st., suffered a fracture of the right shoulder and head injuries. She is being treated at the Morehead City hospital.

Beaufort Chief Warns Queen Street Violators

Beaufort Police Chief Carlton Garner reports that warnings to motorists violating the one way regulations on Queen st., have not been observed and that his department will be forced to cite offenders to the Beaufort recorder's court.

The police chief says that motorists have been warned repeatedly concerning this regulation but that violations continue. The warnings, he says, will stop, and the motorists arrested.

censed home and two children in licensed homes outside of the county.

There are several reasons why Carteret county has no such homes at this time.

For one thing, workers of the county welfare department have not found time to go out looking for homes that would meet this need.

Still another reason for the lack of such facilities in this county is that homes which would meet the standards demanded by the welfare department are not easy to find. Payment to such homes is not set up in order that it can be a money-making proposition for any family. The payment for boarding homes is designed to care for the children placed in that home.

A third reason is that the persons opening their homes as boarding homes must be classified by welfare workers as homes in which there will be a great deal of sympathy and understanding for the See WELFARE, Page 5

Kinston Men Save Boatman

Capt. Charlie Smith, owner of the party boat Mike and Jeff, was saved from drowning Saturday night when three Kinston men pulled him from the water at the foot of 8th street, Morehead City.

Smith fell into the water when he attempted to step from the dock to his boat. He became caught under the boat and was unable to free himself.

The Kinston men, Fred White, jr., Ray Hardison and Walter Meadows, were on an adjoining dock when they heard Smith's calls for help. They went to his aid and managed to pull him from the water.

White summoned Highway Patrolman J. W. Sykes from the Morehead City police station. Sykes took Smith to the Morehead City hospital where he was treated for immersion.

Smith was later confined in the Morehead City jail on a charge of public drunkenness. He was released on bond Sunday morning.

Atlantic Beach Commissioners Consider Change

December Meeting to Decide On Operation of Town As Regular Municipality

The town board of Atlantic Beach will be asked at its December meeting to consider operation as a regular municipality, according to Mayor Alfred B. Cooper. At the present time, most of the usual functions of a town are performed by members of the Atlantic Beach businessmen's association.

A proposed budget and source of revenue will be presented to the board when it meets Dec. 16 at the home of Commissioner Bert Taylor in New Bern. The budget has been drawn up with the aid of George Franklin, attorney for the North Carolina league of municipalities. The beach community recently joined the league.

Under the proposed plans, the town government will be controlled by a city manager working under the jurisdiction of the board of commissioners. Cooper hopes that the businessmen will supplement the manager's salary by making him secretary of the proposed chamber of commerce.

Opinions Divided

Some members of the board wish to operate the town on taxes collected from the property owners. This will enable the town government to take over the functions now performed by the businessmen. Others, according to Cooper, would like to continue with the present arrangement.

Since the town was incorporated in 1937, the town government has never performed any of the functions connected with the administration of the town. The one exception was the construction of several streets in 1938. This was financed by an assessment on the property owners.

All other functions were performed by the businessmen. The association is made up of 35 churches from five counties.

Two new churches are to be accepted into the association this year, the Cherry Point Baptist church and the Memorial Baptist church, Maysville. The two churches have been organized since the last meeting of the association. The Newport Baptist mission and the Harkers Island Baptist chapel will also be recognized. These two have not yet been organized into churches.

The Thursday night session of this series of meetings has been designated as training union night and will be under the direction of the Rev. M. R. Haire, the associational training union director.

Brief messages will be presented by each training union director on the most outstanding accomplishment of his union during the year.

The church having the largest number present will receive a banner, as will the church having the largest number present on a percentage basis.

The youth choir of the Morehead City First Baptist church will present special music. Ralph Wade will direct the group. A double quartet from Chowan college, Murfreesboro, will also present a special program under the direction of Mrs. Frank Pool, head of the college music department.

Chamber Meeting Set for Tonight

The board of directors of the Beaufort chamber of commerce will meet tonight at 8 p.m. in the Beaufort town hall.

A report on the Western Union petition for the shortening of hours in the Beaufort office will be heard. The chamber of commerce had opposed this action and filed an official protest with the Federal Communications commission.

The board will also discuss the meeting with W. C. Darrow regarding the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph company's request for a rate increase. The board will decide tonight what stand to take on the request on behalf of the members of the chamber.

A report on the project of the organization to install benches along Front st., and around the courthouse will also be heard.

Gerald Hill, president of the Beaufort chamber of commerce, stresses that all board meetings are open to the public and particularly members of the chamber are invited to attend. Meetings of the board are held each fourth Tuesday in the month.

Sgt. Wayne E. Byler, husband of Mrs. Donna I. Byler of 1107 Arendell st., Morehead City, has arrived in Korea and has been assigned to the First Marine regiment of the First Marine division.

A veteran of the Iwo-Jima and Okinawa campaigns, Byler has been in the Marine corps since 1943, when he enlisted at Wichita, Kan.

Capt. Charles W. Stevens, USAF, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stevens of Beaufort, led a platoon of Mitchell WAF and 150 airmen in the American Legion parade in New York. Capt. Stevens is stationed at Mitchell Air Force base with the 514th TC Food Service squadron.

Kenneth O. Tootle, son of Mrs. Fannie Tootle of Morehead City, has recently been promoted to private first class. He is serving as a gunner with the 45th Division in Korea.

Residents Register Indignation At Public Hearing on Rezoning

Raleigh Lawyer Urges County-Wide Promotion

Attorney Clyde Douglass of Raleigh told 190 guests at a Morehead City chamber of commerce barbecue Friday night that the people of Carteret county should forget their differences and work together to promote the entire area as a year round resort.

Douglass reminded his audience that many of Morehead City's tourist attractions are in other parts of the county, not in Morehead City. He said that there is too much emphasis on Morehead City and not enough on the county.

The chamber of commerce sponsored the meeting to call attention to its program for promoting Morehead City as a year round resort. Speakers at the meeting urged that all those present contribute their ideas and money to help with the promotion.

Alvah Hamilton of Morehead City said that the town should take advantage of its natural gifts, the water, the southwest breeze and the climate. He said that by emphasizing these attractions, the town could extend its tourist season for nine more months each year.

Hamilton also urged the construction of at least one more hotel in Morehead City. He said that more accommodations will attract more tourists.

Joseph A. DuBois, manager of the chamber of commerce, reported on the work now being done to promote the town as a resort. He said that signs are being erected on the highways to draw travellers to this section. He also told of efforts to have the highway extended from Hatteras to Carteret county.

Alfred Cooper, mayor of Atlantic Beach, told of the need for more funds for the chamber of commerce. He told the members that they should be ashamed of themselves for not providing more money for the chamber's work.

Cooper also told of the need for cooperation between Morehead City and Atlantic Beach. He said that the two towns cannot grow without each other. Cooper also announced that Atlantic Beach will soon become a full-fledged municipality. He said that the town will operate on the city manager plan of government.

The mayor also told of his hopes for a chamber of commerce at the See LAWYER, Page 5

John E. Harris of Morehead City was charged with drunken driving after he was involved in an accident Saturday near the Rainbow inn on highway 70 west of Morehead City.

According to Highway Patrolman W. J. Smith, Harris crossed over to the wrong side of the road and struck a car driven by David S. Silverberg of Morehead City.

Harris was released on $150 bond for an appearance Nov. 3 in Morehead City recorder's court.

Walter Smith, Newport, was arrested early Sunday morning after he missed a turn at the intersection of highway 70 and the Harkers Island road. He was charged with careless and reckless driving.

Smith told Highway Patrolman W. E. Pickard that he was proceeding north from Harkers Island. When he reached the intersection he failed to make the turn, skidded 120 feet across highway 70 and plunged over an embankment. He told Pickard that he was driving at about 40 miles per hour.

Smith and a companion, Marion D. Smith, were treated at the Morehead City hospital for cuts and bruises.

James A. Salter of Sea Level was charged with drunken driving and careless and reckless driving Sunday after he was involved in a three-car accident in front of the East Drive-In theatre.

According to Highway Patrolman J. W. Sykes, Salter was heading west on highway 70. He struck the rear of a pickup truck driven by Guion G. Chadwick of Beaufort. The truck was driven into the rear end of a car operated by Troy E. Goodwin of Roe. The two vehicles were waiting to enter the theatre.

Chadwick and Goodwin told Sykes that they heard a roaring sound and saw Salter's car coming. They said that they were unable to avoid him.

Salter was treated at the Morehead City hospital for a severe cut on his head. His two companions, Archie and Leslie Fulford of Harkers Island, were treated for cuts and lacerations. Goodwin suffered bruises and minor lacerations.

Beaufort Adopts New Tax Forms

Upon the suggestion of Henry Lewis, tax counselor at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, new tax abstract forms have been adopted for 1953 for the town of Beaufort.

The forms are adaptations of the modern system which County Auditor James D. Pottor installed for Carteret county and have been worked out by Lewis and Mrs. Mabel Cunningham, secretary in the office of the town clerk of Beaufort.

According to Town Clerk Dan Walker, considerable saving in printing costs, labor and time, will be effected by use of the new forms.

In the past, Walker says, it has been necessary to completely copy three books of tax abstracts each year. The new forms will make it possible for four years records to be kept in three books, thereby eliminating a great deal of the storage space now required.
