New Plants Introduced

New York (AP)—A top horticulturist recently returned from England with 300 varieties of plants, all strangers to America, most of which will eventually find their way into U. S. gardens.

T. H. Everett of the New York Botanical Garden said that most of their guests for the holidays their daughter, Mary Sue, a senior at Richmond Medical college school of nursing, and her husband, David E. Hudson, jr., of Staunton, Va., and Mrs. Neva Willis of Greensboro.

The North River Home Demonstration club held its Christmas program at the home of Mrs. Bill Taylor. Gifts were exchanged and refreshments were served.

the plants are quite rare although he was primarily concerned in importing plants that would thrive in America and be of interest to gardeners.

Among the more unusual plants are a yellow-flowered lilac, a double flowered sweet rocket, five new varieties of geraniums and even some specially bred varieties of goldenrod. Everett said the British Isles are the treasure of the world for cultivated flowers. "For centuries — over since the Crusades — the British people have been gathering different varieties of flowers from all over the world."

The flowers will be kept in the New York Botanical Garden until it is certain they are bearing no alien blight. Then they will be distributed throughout the country. Various garden clubs sponsored the flower-hunting expedition.
