construction priority on the threeunit program, and the school offi-cials were faced with the prospect of losing all of the money unless ne alternative program was developed, Joslyn said.

In advising the county officials, Dr. William Coleman who, until his death, was in charge of the office of education of the Federal security agency in four Middle Atlantic states, found the Camp Glenn school the most over-crowded and most unsuitable of the three units-and urged the board of education to draw up plans for a completely new school in that area.

This plan was followed and the government has authorized the exenditure of the funds. Plans for the building are now in Raleigh at the state department of education. The new elementary school will have 16 classrooms, a kitchen and general purpose room which will serve as a cafeteria, library, admin-fstrative offices, teachers' room, boiler room, storage and auxiliary Joslyn reported that tentative approval of the project was re-ceived Nov. 28, 1952, and the final approval was made Jan. 27, 1953. The present Camp Glenn school is basically a four-room building which has six temporary class-rooms with 10 teachers. Joslyn expressed disappointment that the original three-unit plan had been found unworkable, but pointed out that the board of education was anxious to make the best use possi-ble of the Federal funds.

The Newport school addition which is the other half of the program will have eight classroom and a general purpose room upon of the existing Newport school.
