Plotting for Freedom Flight

Adolphe Menjou, as a communist police chief, and Fredric March, as a circus owner plotting a flight to the west for his European toupe, meet face to face in this scene from "Man on a Tightrope."

Brothers at Gun Point

Charlton Heston makes Indian chief, Jack Palance, his "blood brother" at gun point in this scene from the Technicolor Western, "Arrowhead."

Broadway

By Mark Barron

New York — Even since Ezio Pinza deserted the Metropolitan Opera several years ago to sing in the Broadway musical, "South Pacific," it has been a belief in theatre circles that any singer would run to Broadway at the drop of a baton.

Such, it is refreshing to report, is not the case with Mildred Miller, a young brunette mezzo-soprano who made her Met debut only last season when she sang Cherubino in "The Marriage of Figaro." Now she has bouquets thrown at her by managers who want to lure her to Broadway and Hollywood stages. And she refuses because she "likes opera better" and she doesn't think she has yet reached the perfection she needs to do what she wants to do in opera.

"I am too young in opera yet so I say 'No' to the producers who want me to do Broadway musical shows," Miss Miller said. "I have much more work to do before I can accomplish what I want to do in opera and before I can do what Mary Martin can do in a Broadway musical show."
