Seal

Christmas Seal is now on sale. The Christmas Seal Sale, conducted by the Carteret Tuberculosis Association to raise funds for its 1954 tuberculosis control program, will continue through December.

The artist who designed the 1953 Seal, Elmer Jacobs of Chicago, sought to capture in the child's upturned face "the faith, purity, love, and all the things that should be foremost in our thoughts, particularly during the holiday season."

"For me," Ronald Mason, Beaufort Seal Sale chairman said, "it brings to mind the words of a familiar carol:

"We are not sturdy beggars who go from door to door,
But we are neighbors' children whom you have seen before."

He added, "The singing child on the Christmas Seal is also no stranger but, like the Christmas Seal itself, is a symbol of hope to millions of Americans. The Christmas Seal represents our faith in a full, happy, healthy future for our children.

Association Fights TB

"For nearly half a century, the National Tuberculosis Association and the 3,000 voluntary state and local associations affiliated with it, including the Carteret County Tuberculosis Association, have been leading the fight to control tuberculosis and eventually to eradicate it. Their work is financed by the American people themselves through their purchase each year of Christmas Seals.

"The fact that tuberculosis today kills more people than all other infectious diseases," Mr. Mason said, "becomes all the more tragic ed sentence of 30 days if he pays costs.

Judge Earl Mason issued bench warrants ordering Beaufort police officers to bring into court Freddie Lee Johnson, charged with careless and reckless driving, and F. Tanker, charged with public drunkenness.

Lawrence Godette, charged with careless and reckless driving, was ordered to pay costs.

Cases continued were the following:

Isaac Edward Pennuell, operating a motor vehicle with improper muffler; Willie Taylor, fighting in a public place; Willie Stewart, public drunkenness, disorderly conduct, and resisting arrest.

Joseph W. Dye, failing to stop at a stop sign; John George, no operator's license; Theophilus Piner, public drunkenness; Cyrus Jefferson, public drunkenness; and Cecil Aster Raper, failing to give right of way causing wreck.

William Gaskill, Jessie Bauling, George Turner Jr., and William Paine Burch, all charged with public drunkenness.

Orville Gillikin, the plaintiff, said that Irvin Willis was urging a friend of Orville's to get out of the car and fight.

The friend would not get out so Willis went back to his car where two of his companions were waiting, he said.

Gillikin then told the court that the friend asked him to drive his car and take him home.

When they started out, Willis followed in his car, drawing up beside Gillikin and words were shouted. Gillikin proceeded to Harkers Island where he attempted to make a U-turn swinging to the right while Willis swung to the left, heading for Gillikin, the witness said. Both cars stopped, Gillikin continued, a short distance from each other.

Gillikin then stated that Willis got out of the car and dared him to come out and fight. Gillikin said he locked the doors and rolled up the windows of the car.

Threats Hurlied

According to Gillikin, Willis then pounded on the glass and hurled threats at Gillikin.

Gillikin said Willis then started his car up and ran into the car Gillikin was driving, causing $140 damage.

Gillikin also said that Irvin and Elizabeth Willis and Moore had been drinking. Willis, Gillikin said, appeared the drunker.

Irvin Willis stated on the stand that he and his companions had drunk two pints of whiskey, but weren't drunk. He said that he approached Gillikin's friend because the friend had insulted Willis's wife a year ago.

Willis maintained that he did not want to fight Gillikin, but only wanted to talk to him.

In explaining why he followed Gillikin in the auto, Willis said he just wanted to know where he was going.

He still maintained that he did not threaten Gillikin when the cars stopped, he only wanted to ask him where Gillikin was going.

As to the reason he pulled in front of the auto, Willis said that he wanted to stop Gillikin to talk to him.

Harvey Hamilton, attorney for Gillikin, read Willis' record from 1943 to the present year.

Approximately 12 entries were on the record. Willis said he had been in court, to his knowledge, only three times—and those for traffic violations.

Mr. Hamilton told Judge Morris that he was not trying to get the defendants into serious trouble with the law, but that he was asking for damages suffered in the collision which occurred when Gillikin tried to get away from the two Willises and Moore.

With almost no deliberation, Judge Morris passed sentence.
