Lena Horne Started As Singer with Dinah Shore

By MARK BARBON

New York — Walking across Broadway I came across Dinah Shore, an elegant songstress. We chatted about show business and she told me a young singer who achieved fame on her program now is known as Lena Horne. However, Dinah said, in those days Miss Horne was billed simply as "Helena." Miss Horne wanted a single name then.

Once upon a time the only concern of Broadway drama editors was when "Abie's Irish Rose" passed another anniversary. Now we have a similar situation where the Rodgers and Hammerstein musicals, "South Pacific" and "Oklahoma!" are setting new local and national records.

Sometimes you yearn for the days when Flo Ziegfeld was producing the "Follies." At that time he was presenting his show at the Globe Theater in the middle of Times Square. That particular "Follies" was about to set a long run record and the late Walter Kingsley reminded Ziegfeld that within the next two or three nights that the "Follies" would break the record for musical shows.

Ziegfeld closed the show that weekend. I asked him if he was going to reopen the "Follies," or if he was going to produce a new "Follies" with different stars. He said he didn't know, that it depended upon what kind of real estate deal he could make.

The musical comedy, "Wish You Were Here," has brought about an unusual labor problem. In this show there is a big swimming pool. Actors dive into the pool in swimming costumes which are checked off as expense of the production. Recently the actors demanded soap for their baths.
