Broadway Musical Star Enjoys Cooking Chicken

By MARK BARRON

New York — Miss Jane Pickens taught me how to cook a chicken. Long ago she attempted to teach me now to sing a song. For the good of all mankind that effort was a failure. It is nice that she continues singing.

This Georgia girl, who sang the lead in the Broadway musical, "Regina" and who later sang on the recording of "Chamber Music Society of Lower Basin Street," played in Broadway musicals.

When she talked to me she was concerned with chicken cookery... and she knows how. She says it is the only thing she knows how to cook.

"You have to have a very deep fat," Miss Pickens said. "Most people don't like this... because women resent fat. You make a mixture of flour, salt and pepper and roll the chicken in it. Then you put the chicken into the deep, hot fat and fry it briskly.

"After awhile reduce the heat, then allow the chicken to drain on brown paper."

Miss Pickens said her mother used to emphasize that the fat should be so deep that the chicken need not be turned.

"For cream gravy," said Miss Pickens, "pour off most of the fat from the chicken add a tablespoon or two of flour when it is brown, and add skimmed milk to the right consistency."

Miss Pickens added that she likes hot biscuits with her gravy, an understandable combination.

When she started as one of the three Pickens sisters, Jane played in shows which, perhaps, were never ideally suited for her. But she was a member of a sister trio and it was only when "Regina" came along that she could break away and become a single artist. "Regina" was not a big hit on the Broadway stage, but it won early

Glacier Park's Large Ice Masses Slowly Receding
West Glacier, Mont. — (AP) — Glacier National Park's largest ice masses — some equivalent to nearly 70 city blocks — are slowly receding.

A U. S. Geological Survey staff, which yearly makes profiles of the park's principal glaciers, reported that the park's largest glacier — Sperry — now covers only 300 acres. In 1900 the ice mass covered 840 acres.

However, M. E. Beatty, chief park naturalist, said the present year was favorable to glaciers. Early spring snow lasted through the summer, despite a warmer than usual July. Annual precipitation at the glacier exceeds 100 inches.

Active 70-Year-Old Diver Never Learned to Swim
Newark, N. J. — (AP) — Frank E. Gilman, 70, still working as a diver, never has learned to swim despite thousands of underwater jobs. Born near the sea at Houlton, Me., Gilman explained:

"When I get into the water, seems like I sink like a rock."

He worked as a lumberjack in the Maine woods until he was 32 and got into diving in 1915 when a friend in South Carolina asked him to help on a dam construction job.

Gilman was the man above the water who helps the diver. One day the diver got drunk and failed to show up. Gilman went down and he's been diving ever since.
