Commencement invitations according to personal taste — that is the motto of this year's senior class. Students may now have invitations with a touch of the old Beaufort Green or else content themselves with the standard and basic all-white invitations.

Keeping their selections colorful, the seniors also chose, at a class meeting, the red rose as the class flower. Future business of the seniors is the selection of a class poet. Likely candidates are Herb Prytherch, Anita Copeland, and Grace Whitehurst.

Freshman home economics girls are anxious to tell some of their secrets of success in cooking. Every trade has tricks of its own and cooking is not an exception. Here are hints and how-to's which will save time, not to mention temper, and mark you as a person who knows:

Snip, snip with your scissors when you want to mince parsley or celery. Use scissors, too, to trim the pastry after you fit it in the pie plate. Ditto for trimming crusts from bread, for cutting marshmallows, and meats for salads.

It's in the bag—flour that is—and the reason? Because it's the easiest way to flour chicken before frying. Put some flour in the bottom of a paper bag, add salt and pepper and then drop in chicken pieces.

Twist the top tight and shake until thoroughly coated. Use the same technique when you want to sugar doughnuts or meal fish.

Reach for the bag again when you want to crush crackers or cookies for crumbs. Put the crackers in the paper bag, twist the top tight and roll the crackers, bag and all, with a rolling pin. No crumbs on the floor this-a-way.

Going back to flour, the trick of doing preliminary sifting is by sifting onto a piece of waxed paper. (No extra bowl to wash — just throw away the paper).

If you want to keep a bowl from slipping around while you're whipping cream or some such, place it on a folded wet towel. When grating lemon or orange rind, cut fruit in half and squeeze out juice. Then grate rind.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure in the broiler pan department. Use aluminum foil to line the pan before you start to broil meats. The bottom of the oven can be kept cleaner by lining it with foil before cooking berry or fruit pies. Throw away the foil with the worst of the grease and syrup splatters.
