Book Club to Sponsor Town Recreation Program

The Beaufort Book Club voted to mail out letters asking for contributions to the summer recreation program when it met Thursday at the Inlet Inn. Mrs. H. G. Loftin will be chairman of the letters committee.

The program, which will be directed by the next Beaufort High School football coach, will be open to all children and will give them supervised baseball, swimming and dancing.

A report was given by the welfare committee on the Help-the-Home project and they announced home furnishings and bedding would be given to a needy family. The committee is working in cooperation with the County Welfare Department.

R. H. Stephens of New Bern, formerly of Beaufort, gave the program for the evening on architecture and art.

Mrs. Newman Lewis Honored

Penderlea School at Willard has dedicated its annual to Mrs. Newman Lewis, the former Florence Parkin of Beaufort. Mrs. Lewis is science and biology teacher in the high school. Mr. Lewis is principal of the school.

It is almost an act of cruelty when the second year home ec begin their cooking projects. Last week the halls were filled with such tantalizing odors that it was almost unbearable during the short interval before lunch time. After all, what could smell more tempting than baked flounder with onions and Irish potatoes? Following up this question, what could taste better?

The second year girls think the answer is that as a dish, nothing could be tops, so they prepared it as the main course for their dinner last Friday. As an accompaniment the girls served chef's salad, hush puppies, iced tea and lemon pie. And since no meal has the finishing touch unless there is an appreciative guest, Mrs. Shirley Babcock was the honored guest.

The third year home ec girls are studying the advantages and disadvantages of house rental and home ownership. The general consensus seems to be highly in favor of ownership for the following reasons: ownership gives an added sense of position and importance in civic and neighborhood affairs, is a beneficial and safe investment, the home owner is protected from the vagaries of the rental agent, home ownership improves credit, and the children are given a feeling of greater security. The group also preferred homes which they built themselves rather than those already built.

Prayer Group Presents Play On Power of The Resurrection

Once again the Prayer Group performs—on Tuesday night for PTA and again, for Wednesday assembly, the students presented a play dealing with the power of the Resurrection. The play tells the story of a disillusioned artist who suddenly finds purpose and zeal in life after a dream in which he lives the story of the Resurrection.

Archie Willis directed the play. In charge of the devotion were Nina Faye Kirk, Catherine Potter, and Vonda Goodwin. The cast were Jimmy Wheatley, as Stuart Langston, the artist; Rae Frances Hassell as Mary, Patsy Daniels as Mary Magdalene, Virginia Robinson as Salome, and Edna Frances Young as the Angel of the Resurrection.

Congratulations to the students who so well illustrate the influence of Christian living. Speaking of plays, the seniors really did an outstanding job on their "One Wild Night." It was well staged, performed to perfection, and marvelously funny. In other words, it was wonderful. Everyone portrayed their parts beautifully, but a special tribute should go to Barbara Harris who played the part of the housekeeper. Barbara did not play the housekeeper—she was the housekeeper.

When she made any gesture, it was the essence of comedy and when she spoke her voice and mannerisms were so saturated with the farcical that the audience burst into spontaneous laughter at every appearance.

A fine investment — the ninth grade girls in Mrs. Beveridge's class have used the dollar awarded by PTA for parent attendance at the March meeting for dust pans and waste-paper baskets. "Now hear this!" Through the courtesy of the PHA there has now been installed in the up-stairs hall a 5 cent pencil vending machine. The vendor offers both green and white pencils embellished with the name of the school.

Congratulations to Shelba Jane Laughton for a splendid performance in the ECC High School Day Fashion Show. Shelba represented the Beaufort Homemaking Department and modeled a stunning gray faille dress with a hand-made fur collar, which she made herself.

On Wednesday, April 7th, Mrs. Brooks class presented the chapel program. Bunny Moore conducted the devotionals. As a special treat, Sammy Merrill and Linda Salter played a clarinet duet entitled "Keller's American Hymn of the Republic." The class then gave a play entitled "Timid Tommy" which dealt with the civil defense program for civilian protection against possible air raids. Sound effects were created by Sammy Merrill and Johnny Owens. O'Neal Hardy was at the curtain. The entire class performed in the play. Following the play were two films dealing also with precautions American citizens should take against atomic attack.

Breaking into the song and dance numbers was a playlet which described the hardships of newlyweds and which was performed by Bronya Willis, Jackie Young, and Eugene Piver. Several songs followed. First Larry Kirk and Nina Darling with the song "Under the Bamboo Tree." Danny Willis sang "Oh, My Papa." Then came a trio of Elouise Dudley, Wanda Jarvis, Clyde Peterson, who called themselves respectively, Sapphire, Oriole and Beulah. The girls did a terrific harmony version of "Bimbo" and as an encore sang, "You Are My Sunshine." Larry Kirk then returned to sing "Secret Love." The group closed

Mrs. Lockwood Phillips to Head PTA During 1954-55 School Year

Mrs. Lockwood Phillips was elected president, Mrs. Cecil Peterson, vice-president, Miss Catherine Gaskill, secretary, and J. O. Barbour Jr., treasurer of the Beaufort PTA Tuesday evening in the school auditorium.

Mrs. Claud Wheatly, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the slate of new officers. They will take office at the May meeting.

Mrs. Ben Jones, president, presided, and announced that the state PTA met in convention at Raleigh April 8 through April 10. Mrs. J. W. Crawford of Raleigh was elected the new state president and will hold office for the next three years.

Among the objectives of the national and state PTA will be providing more clerical help for school principals, increase teacher pay, lower the teacher load and attract and hold the better teachers, Mrs. Jones reported.

B. E. Tarkington, school principal, announced that the fence purchased by a committee headed by the Junior Woman's Club has arrived. The fence will be installed on the school property and will run parallel to highway 70, to keep school children from jumping the ditch by the road and to keep them from running across the highway.

The treasurer reported a balance in the bank of $703.97.

C. F. Jones, band leader, announced that the school band will play at the Newport Homecoming exercises tomorrow afternoon and asked for transportation for band members.

During the meeting parents of next year's first graders were welcomed as special guests and Mrs. B. F. Copeland, program chairman for the evening, presented them with booklets to help them prepare their show with "We'll Say So Long." The show was directed by Mr. Jones. Mr. Chadwick and John Smith were in charge of the scenery and the sound effects.
