Shrimp Catches Will Remain Small 'til Weather Settles

At the Flower Show

C. Gehrman Holland, assistant commercial fisheries commissioner, yesterday held little hope for big shrimp catches until the weather improves.

The season opened a minute after midnight Sunday. The weather since then has been cold and winds blustery. Mr. Holland said he had word from Pamlico Sound yesterday that the boats there were doing nothing.

"We know that the shrimp have to have warm water before they shed and grow and until we get some warmer weather and moderate winds, the catches will be small," Mr. Holland remarked.

The price to the shrimp processor is running about 20 cents with the heads on.

One Big Catch

A slight break in the weather came Tuesday when one boat reported a catch of 1,200 pounds but that was an exception. Most boats got no more than about 100 pounds.

While night shrimping usually brings the biggest profits, little of that has been done because of the weather. The shrimp are believed to be as numerous in inland waters this year as last when the total catch was valued at two million dollars.

Cecil Morris, Atlantic, chairman of the commercial fisheries committee of the State Board of Conservation and Development said early this week that the market prospects for shrimp didn't appear too good. He expressed the hope that conditions will improve.

Out-of-state buyers generally express the opinion that North Carolina shrimp are superior in quality to those taken in other areas, he added.

Mr. Holland said that thus far no licenses have been sold to out-of-state shrimpers. A recent revision of commercial fisheries regulations requires that all out-of-state shrimpers dispose of their catches at North Carolina ports.

The resolution was drafted by the Rev. R. H. Jackson, pastor of the Free Will Baptist Church, Davis, and the Rev. James Dees, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Beaufort. Another member of the resolution committee, the Rev. H. H. Cash, Methodist minister of Marshallberg, told THE NEWS-TIMES yesterday that he was chairman of "the original committee" but he was conducting a revival at Wanchese during the drafting of the resolution.

The resolution, made public this week, follows:

"We, the undersigned members of the Carteret County Ministers Association, have in regular meeting, resolved that action be commenced against the Carolina Racing Association, and or other operators or users of the dog racing track lying to the west of Morehead City, in Carteret County, N. C.

"We believe this action should be commenced now, in order that the operation be restrained in advance of the 1954 summer season.

"We are taking this action now, as we feel that we should be diligent in our duty as assistants to you as guardian of public morals, especially in view of the recent decision as to the Currituck Special Act which, we are advised, is similar

Funeral Rites for Senator Will Take Place Tomorrow

Senator Clyde Roark Hoye, senator of North Carolina, died at 3:45 p.m. Wednesday in his office in Washington, D. C. shortly after he had gone there to rest from his Senate duties.

Funeral services for the 76-year-old political veteran will be held at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow in Central Methodist Church, Shelby. Interment will be in Shelby Cemetery.

Senator Hoye attended a meeting of the Senate Finance Committee Wednesday and appeared to be in usual good health. His death was completely unexpected.

He died of a stroke in his office chair only a few minutes after he had returned from Senate duties and told his office staff that he wanted to rest.

He was discovered by Jack Spain, his administrative assistant. Dr. George W. Calver, the Senator's physician, pronounced him dead and said he believed a slowly progressing coronary had caused his death.

Senator Hoye, a former governor, went to the Senate in 1945. His term as governor ended in 1941.

He is survived by two sons, Clyde R. Jr., Charles A.; a daughter, Mrs. Dan Paul of Pantego, a sister, Mrs. John Shanonhouse, and six grandchildren.

Senator Hoye claimed the distinction of being the only man in North Carolina ever to hold all five positions of state representative, state senator, congressman, governor, and United States Senator.

Spot Charmed His Way Into Ayscue Household

Spot Where's-the-Kitty Ayscue lives in Morehead City. He was born in Newport, sired by Skeeb, bull dog of the house of W. B. Allen.

Spot is two years old and probably the best-known dog in the county because his adopted father, M. M. Ayscue, deputy sheriff and county ABC officer, gets around about as much as anyone and it's a rare day if Spot isn't with him.

Spot would almost rather ride in a car than eat. But if "the boss" leaves the car, Spot goes too. He's seldom a lonesome pup, but he's a spoiled one. His owners are the first to admit it.

Mrs. Ayscue says he won't eat out of a dish. He eats from a spoon. When he's hungry he trots to the kitchen, gets his spoon and carries it to Mrs. Ayscue. Eat anything in chunks bigger than bite size? Not this dog.

Why should he exert himself to chew things up if somebody will cut it up for him?

The Ayscues took over ownership of Spot when he was about six weeks old. Mrs. Ayscue told her husband, "He's your dog. Keep him out in the back yard. I won't have anything to do with him." But Spot soon changed that.

How can you resist a pup who, when you come in and toss your car keys aside he picks them up in his mouth and comes to you, an imploring look in his eyes: "Please take me for a ride." He gets his ride.

If you ask him "Where's the Spot and the boss

kitty?" his ears prick up, and he looks until you think his eyes are going to pop out. One of his favorite playthings is a broom. He hauls it around the house, shakes the broom straws out, shakes the handle and puts up a last-ditch fight against anyone who tries to take it from him.

He looks out for his mistress while her husband is on his travels. If "the boss" gets near another girl or pretends to hug her, Spot growls at him and frequently clamps his jaws around his leg.

A white handkerchief in the boss's pocket is like a red flag in front of a bull as far as Spot

Nolen was involved in a three-car collision at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon on the Atlantic Beach drawbridge. Drivers of the other cars were Robert L. Mills, Cherry Point in a 1949 Pontiac convertible and Mrs. Robert Seamon, Morehead City, in a 1952 Pontiac. Nolen was driving a pick-up truck.

Damage to the rear of Mills car was estimated at $250; damage to both the front and rear of the seaman automobile was $601, and damage to the pickup was $75.

State Drops Charges Against Chain Store

Fenderskirt Thieves Pay $50 Fines; Fireworks Owner Pays $10 Fine

The state, through Solicitor Herbert O. Phillips decided Monday in Morehead City Recorder's Court to drop charges against Colonial Stores Inc., E. B. Thompson, manager.

The store was charged with creating loud and unnecessary noise while loading and unloading merchandise during the night.

Mr. Thompson offered to do all loading and unloading between 6 a.m. and 10 p.m., which satisfied the complaining witnesses, Mr. and Mrs. George Rowles, 1011 Bridges St.

It appeared to the court, too, that no intentional violation of the town anti-noise ordinance was made. Since the state could find only one technical infraction caused by a driver violating instruction, charges were dropped.

Judge George McNeill assessed Robert Billy Matthews, charged with stealing fender skirts, $50 and costs. Richard McNutt, charged with aiding and abetting in stealing fender skirts, was fined $50 and costs.

Peak of Cabbage Season Passes

The peak of the cabbage season passed this week. Yesterday 50-pound boxes were bringing $1.75. Shipments from now on are expected to be light, consisting mostly of the late Copenhagen variety.

Farmers were better satisfied this year with cabbage prices. The crop has moved right out, and none of the cabbage has had to be destroyed in the fields.

Gross prices this season have ranged from $1.40 per box to $1.75. Cabbage started moving to market the latter part of April. Prices opened at about $1.80 per box, with the early variety, Round Dutch, being shipped to northern markets.

The next crop due for harvesting is beans. Cold weather has held back the crop but picking is expected to begin in about another week. Farmers will start digging Irish potatoes the last of this month.
