Life of Eisenhower Is Planned as Mural Theme

By W. G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor

New York (AP) — "What a thing to ask!" exclaims Louis Bouche, painter to our painter President, when I want to know if he's a Republican.

"No comment!" he cries with a hoot of laughter, and then confesses, "Obviously if I were a Republican I wouldn't put up this argument. Anyway, you don't have to say so, do you?"

But far from alarmed at the prospect that I may, he adds: "If you

It's New York's Century Club, where I talked to this half of the pair of painters who have the enviable task of painting the life story of President Eisenhower — himself this country's most publicized artist.

Second member of the lucky team is Ross Moffett, of Provincetown, who admits a bit more discreetly:

"In politics I think I perhaps qualify as an independent."

They both qualify as painters — though as it happens neither has ever laid eyes on Ike. They are the pair chosen by the National Academy of Design to do, together, more than 1,100 square feet of murals on the four walls of the entrance hall of the Eisenhower Foundation building in Abilene, Kan.

Why couldn't one man do it alone? The Foundation asked the Academy to manage the project under the Mary Gertrude Abbey bequest, which foots the bill. The Academy, after studying the plan, decided it was too much of a job for one man in the two-year time allotted, and named two.

They have not conferred with President Eisenhower, but they did see his brother Milton S., actual Abilene native, at State College, Pa., where he too is president — of Penn State, and he approved their plans. Small-scale sketches will be submitted later to foundation officials, perhaps this summer, to be followed by cartoons and then the finished works. The murals will be done on canvas in the

Louis Bouche have to say I don't belong to his party, you can at least add that I do belong to his club."

Novel Makes Dramatic Movie

Co-stars Ray Middleton, Forrest Tucker and lovely Vera Ralston in a highly dramatic scene from Republic Studios' stirring Trucolor production, "Jubilee Trail," a spectacular picturization of Gwen Britton's best-selling novel.

Care Prolongs Washer Service

By RUTH CURRENT
State Home Demonstration Agent

Regardless of what laundry product you use, regular care of the washer by the housewife will greatly increase its length of satisfactory service. Care can also eliminate many service calls.

Always follow the manufacturer's directions. If the directions booklet gets lost, write to the manufacturer for another.

Take care of the washer after using as well as during use. The more care it has while in use, the less repair it will need. Rinse, drain and dry after each use. Flush out the washing machine thoroughly with plain water and don't forget to rinse the cover of the washer too, drying the underneath part with a cloth.

Yellowing, like graying, is often caused when soap is used and is not completely rinsed out. Heat of ironing will often turn fabrics yellow. Clothes can yellow during storage. This can be due to improper washing, soap or starch left in the material, improper rinsing and the like.

Ross Moffett inauguration as President as central theme."

Bouche will have the other two walls, each measuring 12 feet high by 25 wide. He plans to spread a series of scenes over two basic maps, one of the Mediterranean and the other of the European theater of war. In one, Eisenhower will be the central figure in a Gibraltar tunnel, and in the other, in his London headquarters preparing for the cross-Channel invasion.

They began their assignment by reading everything available about their subject. Bouche does not expect the two years specified in the contract will be needed to complete the job.
