Emperor Metes Out Justice in Cinemascope Production

Jay Robinson, the monstrous Roman Emperor Caligula, metes out his own brand of justice in the spectacular climax of "The Robe," the first Cinemascope production, opening here this week. His victims are two of the stars of the widely-acclaimed masterpiece, Jean Simmons and Richard Burton, who will neither renounce their conversion to Christianity nor uphold the insane tactics of the Roman ruler. Miss Simmons carries the Robe, around which the late Lloyd C. Douglas, author of the all-time best-seller, wove his now legendary story of the Roman tribune Marcellus (Burton), who won the garment Jesus wore to His death by gambling for it at the foot of the Cross and was finally led to conversion through its power over him.

Antique Hazard

Hesperia, Mich. (AP) — A 52-inch circular saw screaming through a big beech log lost all its teeth when it had hit a woodman's wedge imbedded deep in the log. Experts estimated the wedge had been there for 100 years, judging from the growth of the tree around it.
