Another phase of the reconstruction program of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service at Pivers Island ended yesterday as investigators started moving into the new $70,000 lab building.

G. B. Talbot, director of the lab, says completion of the new lab marked the third phase of the modernization program and left one phase to be carried out, the building of dormitories to house investigators.

The new air-conditioned fish and wildlife lab is 32 feet by 106 feet. Its exterior is of ivory and rough brick with an asbestos shingle roof. All windows are thermopaneled and the interior walls are covered in pastel green glazed tile. The ceiling is celotex.

Two thirds of the building will be used as library and office space and the other third will be devoted to research laboratory space.

The Radioisotope Research Laboratory was completed in 1950 and a new service building was finished in 1953. Dr. Walter A. Chipman is in charge of the radioisotope lab.

Mr. Talbot said bids will be taken for the dismantling of the old lab building within the next few weeks.

An open house will be held in the new lab as soon as the old building is torn down, he added.

Fire Department Delivers Leaflets

One thousand fire safety leaflets were distributed Saturday in Beaufort by the Beaufort Fire Department, Chief Charles Harrell announced Monday.

Entitled "Are You Next?" the leaflet gives facts and figures on fires in homes to emphasize the importance of fire prevention.

According to the leaflet, smoking and trash are the two main fire hazards. Home owners are urged to be careful when smoking and to clean up accumulations of trash. If fire strikes the home, everyone should be gotten out of the house and the fire department called immediately. If a person awakes at night and smells smoke, he should arouse everyone in the house and get them out. Call the fire department or pull a fire alarm. And finally, shut all doors and windows possible upon leaving to cut off drafts.

Think of all the things you're free to do because there's always plenty of low-price electricity that can automatically run and control your washer and dryer range dishwasher air conditioner heating plant hot water supply refrigerator freezer and other appliances

Today Americans have twice as much electricity available as they had in 1946 because of new power plants built by electric light and power companies, and they'll have 50% more by 1980. So there will always be plenty ready when you want it. That's why there's no need to increase the public debt by building federal government power projects.
