

Roy Eubanks Re-Named Wreck Commissioner

Governor Umstead has reappointed Roy Eubanks, Beaufort, wreck commissioner for Carteret County, districts 1 through 3. The two-year term expires Sept. 11, 1956.

BACK INJURIES

By DR. R. O. BARNUM, Morehead City, N. C.

Thousands of working men know what Chiropractic can do for back injuries. They know that when other methods fail to give them relief, Chiropractic was successful.

It is important for employees, compensation insurance carries and public in general to recognize this fact. Actual studies have been made of injured workers cared for by different systems of therapy.

Several large industrial firms are now employing chiropractors on a full time basis to care for their injured workers.

To the chiropractor, the spine represents the keyboard, as it were that locks up and unlocks the inherent curative powers of nature.

Morehead City Stop Lights Start Working Wednesday

Mayor George W. Dill, Morehead City, announced Wednesday that the stop lights in downtown Morehead City are now in operation.

The lights have been up since early in July but due to electrical difficulties operation was delayed. He added that there are still some minor adjustments to be made and if the lights are working one day but not the next, motorists should please bear with the electricians and be patient until the problems are ironed out.

The mayor said the stop light system is the best that can be bought. Because of the climatic conditions in this area the town was afraid to invest money in a system that would not stand up under the salt air, he explained.

Mayor Dill and Police Commissioner D. G. Bell announce that officers will be on duty in the downtown section for about a week until motorists and pedestrians become accustomed to the lights.

Will be Warned. No citations will be given should a motorist accidentally drive through a red light, but the offender will be warned and asked to comply with the law.

No left turns are permitted at the intersections of 8th, or 9th streets on Arendell. The mayor pointed out that this makes it safe for pedestrians to cross the street without having to dodge cars that heretofore were allowed to make a left turn (a U turn) across the tracks and go down the opposite side of the street.

The lights will be in operation 24 hours a day throughout the year. Operation in the summer only would not be wise, the mayor pointed out, because corrosion would result and cause trouble.

The lights are timed to allow a car to pass through the business district at 20 miles an hour, according to the police commissioner.

The train going east and west on Arendell will not stop at red lights. Motorists who have the green light north and south will have to look out for the train.

Mayor Dill said the train goes slowly and comes in and out of town but once a day, so it should not create a hazard.

In case of a fire, the stop lights can be controlled from the police switchboard at the town hall. All lights will be red and traffic will stop to allow the fire trucks a clear way through town.

Town officials expect criticism because of the lights but add, "It's one of the things that has to be done to make the downtown area safe for pedestrians."

When no left turns were permitted in the business section in previous summers, businessmen complained that it affected their business. While the same complaints may be heard again this time, town officials believe that safety of pedestrians and motorists is important too.

Commented the mayor, "This is merely another one of the growing pains experienced by a progressive city."

De Paul Offers Shorter Nurse Training Plan

Six Months' Internship Program Will Begin In September

Internship for student nurses, a new experimental program in nursing education, will be inaugurated at De Paul Hospital, Norfolk, in September. It was announced yesterday by Sister Aloysia, director of the hospital's School of Nursing.

The new program will condense the present three-year educational period into two and one-half years and add a six-month nursing internship to students for practical surgical and medical nursing at the hospital prior to the granting of a diploma.

The program, just approved by the Virginia State Board of Nursing Education, has been under study for more than six months. It was proposed to the School of Nursing advisory council at the annual meeting in May.

The internship plan calls for student experience as actual graduate nurses under a situation where the students may receive continued instruction in the area to which they are assigned before the diploma is awarded, Sister Aloysia said.

The plan will put the two and one-half year educational period on a higher plane, she said. It will in no way reduce the hours of classroom lecture or clinical instruction previously given in the three-year program. Students will continue specialized training periods under those agencies with which the hospital maintains affiliation.

During her internship, the student nurse will be assigned evening duty, night duty, serve as leader of the nursing team, work in ward administration and will have the privilege of electing special duty in which she feels especially interested.

Applications for admission are being taken at the School of Nursing for the September term. Tuition for the entire three years includes room, board, linens and uniform laundry service, it was announced. Scholarships and loan funds are available and information about them may be obtained through the school director.

Sister Aloysia explained that the hospital was the first in Virginia to inaugurate affiliated training in nursing mental patients. Students now spend 12 weeks duty in Seton Institute of Psychiatry, Baltimore, Md.

Another first for the hospital was the affiliation for special experience in nursing tuberculosis patients. The hospital sends student nurses to the Veterans Hospital in Oteen, N. C., for an eight-week period. Students also do eight weeks of special work with the King's Daughters' Visiting Nursing Association; two weeks with the Norfolk Department of Public Health and a week with the Carrollton Oaks Nursery School for observation of the well child during their 12 weeks of pediatrics experience.
