Clubs Study Use, Care Of Gas, Electric Stoves

By MARTHA BARNETT Home Agent

During September, Home Demonstration Clubs have studied "How To Make Your Range Last Longer." According to a survey made in August, most club members now have gas or electric stoves, so emphasis was placed on the use of these two types of ranges.

These are some simple rules to help get longer, better service from a gas or electric range: (1) See that the gas pressure is properly adjusted and electric voltage right, not to high or too low for your stove. See that the burner grates or units are level.

(2) See that air and gas mixture is adjusted in gas burners to give a clear flame. Keep burners and pilot's clean. Flame openings should be unclogged.

(3) Protect the enamel surface from sudden changes of temperature, scratches, blows, spills and acids.

(4) Don't over-heat coils of electric units, don't get salt, soda, sugar, or soap on open units.

(5) Keep all parts of the stove clean to help preserve it, save fuel and time. Be sure the stove is installed correctly and is level. When a new range is installed, or if your old range is cooking slowly or overheating, have a serviceman check the voltage and installation.

The porcelain enamel surface of your range, though hard, will break with sudden changes of heat and cold. Once it is chipped, the damage can't be undone. A safe rule is to wait until it cools to wipe up spills. If the enamel does chip, touch up damaged spots carefully with paint recommended by your range dealer.

It may look patchy but it's better than exposed places which invite rust. Guard against scratches. Don't drag pans or anything rough across the enamel range top. Acids should be wiped off the stove immediately to protect glaze on the enamel. Soap and water should serve for ordinary cleaning. If a scouring powder is needed for stubborn spots, use a finely powdered one like whiting. If spots don't come off racks, broilers and drip pans, try rubbing with 00 steel wool. Keep metal trim bright and clean day by day. Nickel and chromium are soft metals, so use only fine metal polish such as silver polish on them.

Don't slam doors, bang covers or

"To best serve the people of this community I maintain a stock of carefully selected merchandise. To be able to recommend the best product for every need, it is part of my training to know the standards of quality and measures that have been established by science and experience. When I order goods my selection is based on the known merits of these widely recognized standards."

"Then I advertise to give people the news of my store. Because I know that nearly everybody reads a newspaper I use newspaper advertising regularly. When people pay for newspapers they read them carefully for all of the news that is interesting to them. When my ads are newsy and contain useful information I know that people will read them because they are news."

Another fact that merchants like about newspaper advertising is that they can buy it on the basis of known values that are just as definite as the measures of weight and quality that apply to merchandise which they handle.

Businessmen cannot afford to speculate with advertising. When they buy newspaper space they can make their investments on the strength of circulation facts and figures that are verified. It is good business practice to buy advertising by such methods just as it is good business to buy and sell merchandise on the basis of known standards.

This helpful information is available from reports issued otherwise treat the ranges roughly. Keep pans beneath surface units clean. Lift them out if they can be removed, and wash them like any cooking utensil. Keep drip pans clean. Wash these every day if possible. Follow book of instructions which comes with the range for best service.

For successful cooking, install your range correctly and keep it clean. Cooking can be fun with good recipes, a well cared for stove and a hungry family.
