The Cuban winter league baseball season opens Oct. 7 and closes Feb. 8.

Evans Says Hunters Can Do Much to Preserve Game

"If every hunter who goes afield this year will give some serious thought to next season's game supply and then take some action in an effort to enhance it, the problem of future hunting would be well on its way to solution."

This statement by Gail Evans, assistant director of sales, Remington Arms Company, Inc., contains a lot of verbal meat and his advice to "take some action" is particularly timely.

Many sportsmen would sincerely like to follow through in doing something about the future game supply, but all too few know just what steps they can, as individuals, take in approaching this goal. Here, however, are a few simple, easy-to-do suggestions which Evans offers as examples of constructive individual effort in game restoration:

"Don't shoot a covey down to the last bird."

"Don't set the limit as a MUST every time you go hunting."

"Stop when you've had a fair amount of sport."

"Don't return time and again to the same area just because you had good shooting there 'yesterday.'"

"Wild game," says Evans, "is a natural, renewable crop. All crops, whether they come from the soil or are hatched from eggs, have to be planted and cultivated if the harvest is to be successful. Leaving some game birds as next season's seed is one way to insure good sport for the future. This is one way of planting next year's crop. Protecting it through the closed season from both human and other predators and seeing that plenty of natural food is provided are two important forms of cultivating the game crop you have planted."

"Game management is not such a complicated science that it cannot be practiced by the individual sportsman. Interpreted in simple terms, it is merely the provision of ideal habitat and adequate protection. Any sincere sportsman can make substantial contributions to both factors. Perhaps it is impractical for some of us to do any considerable amount of work in the field, but by banding together, we can accomplish much as a group."

"Don't live for this season alone. Give some thought to the game supply of tomorrow and the years to come."

Beaufort to Play Tilt With Shallotte Nov. 8

Beaufort will play their hurricane-canceled game with Shallotte on the night of Nov. 8 at Beaufort. Game time is 8 p.m.

The game was originally scheduled for Oct. 15 but that was the night Hazel checked in.

The playoff of the game will give Beaufort three home games to end their season. They play Shallotte Nov. 8 and then take on Arden Nov. 12 and close the season with Wilmington's JVs Nov. 19.

Big Ones Bite Despite Storm

Ocracoke — In spite of theories that the late Hurricane Hazel might affect the sportfishing at Ocracoke, good catches both surfcasting and in boats have been made since then. In fact one sportsfisherman was back out on the beach the day after the storm and Captain Gaskill was out with a party in the inlet, bring in 13 good-sized drum.

Veteran guide, Walter C. O'Neal and Mrs. O'Neal spend a good time surfcasting and on Friday and Saturday between them brought in 51 channel bass. A party from New Jersey, fishing in the "South Wind" with Capt. Thurston Gaskill on three trips last week brought in a total of 30 channel bass, weight 30 to 42 pounds. On Monday a Delaware sportsfisherman caught five large ones on the beach.

Now that the bridge between Beaufort and Atlantic over the North River has been rebuilt, motorists will have no trouble getting to the mailbox in Atlantic. Traffic down the Hatteras Highway was not seriously disrupted by the storm, and some jeeps and trucks are now making it down from Hatteras along the beach to Ocracoke.

There were 8,911 certified bowling establishments in operation during the 1953-54 season which ended July 31, according to the American Bowling Congress. This is a record says the ABC.

Keeping Score

with RIP WILDER

John Motley Morehead has evened his score with Wake Forest. Mr. Morehead played in the first Wake Forest-UNC game back in 1888. He played for the Tar Heels and they lost, 6-4, in the game which was played in Raleigh on Thursday of Fair Week.

In those days when a team scored a goal, a game was over. Then they started from scratch and went after each other again. North Carolina scored the first goal, Wake Forest the next two, so the Demon Deacons picked up the marbles and are credited with the victory.

Mr. Morehead, whose father first developed Morehead City and had the town named for him, is now head of the board of directors of Union Carbide Company in New York.

But he never lost interest in the University of North Carolina. He gave the university the fabulous Morehead Building and was creator of the Morehead Foundation.

It was his Morehead Foundation that squared his score with the boys from Baptist Hollow.

His foundation hands out scholarships to boys who have good scholastic backgrounds and who participate in extra-curricular activities.

Two years ago one of his scholarships went to a boy from Cullowhee who wanted to be a doctor. The boy was smart and his extra-curricular activities were centered around football.

Saturday Ed Sutton, the boy with the scholarship, ran the ball four times for UNC and scored two touchdowns and had another one called back.

In the first quarter he scored on a 25-yard run, in the second he ran 64 yards for another, and in the third he got off a 77-yard touchdown jaunt. The score in the second quarter was called back because of a clipping penalty.

He also ran the ball again in the fourth quarter and gained only four yards but it was like watching Dusty Rhodes strike out in the World Series after he had hit safely so many times. Everybody knew he couldn't do it again.

Sutton displayed the finest traits of sportsmanship that go with being a great football player. He was the only Carolina player not to engage in the free-for-all that came at the end of the game.

The Moreheads have picked two winners. Morehead City and Ed Sutton.

Morehead City's Eagles may be running up against a future college star next Friday when they journey to Wallace.

Ray Carlton has been burning the fields up for the last two years in that area and started out strong this year. Carlton, a 180-pound tailback, made the All-East Central Conference team last year and is headed toward the honors again this year.

In one game this season, Carlton scored six touchdowns. He's big, fast, shifty and is loaded with football know-how.

This writer first saw the tall, powerfully-built boy on the Duke sidelines during the Duke-Army encounter. It's obvious that several colleges would like to get their hooks on this boy.

While attending a collegiate game this past weekend, I was greeted with a college boy waving a program yelling, "Get your program. It gives the names, weights and salaries."

CAREFUL!

CROSS THAT FENCE SAFELY

KEEP HUNTING A SAFE SPORT

PREVENT FENCES AND GATE LIFE

Chapel Hill —, North Carolina halfback Connie Gravitt was the Tar Heels' best pass defender last season, swiping three enemy aerials for a return of 34 yards. He is slated for starting duty this season.

Five-Year-Older Learns How to Fish Hard Way

Columbia, S. C. (AP)—Alva Lumpkin, 5, went fishing with his father.

While the elder Lumpkin was busy instructing his son in the art of trolling, a six-pound bass jumped into the boat and hit the boy on the back of the head.

Ellison Smith III, 12, was along. Ellison pounced on the frolicking fish and captured it.

Indiana Golfer Shoots Birdie He Doesn't Want

Brazil, Ind. (AP)—This was one birdie Everett Goss didn't want.

Playing on the Brazil municipal course, Goss fired a nice shot to the eighth green. One of three crows flying about grabbed the ball in its claws and flew away.

Twelve professional basketball double headers and 15 single games are listed for Madison Square Garden this winter.

Morehead City Has Open Date

With an open date on their hands this weekend, Morehead City's Eagles will spend this week and next getting ready for their encounter with Wallace Nov. 5.

The Eagles, who dropped a 3-0 contest to Washington Friday afternoon, will be facing another rough tilt in the journey to Wallace.

Wallace, along with Washington, spoiled Morehead City's record last year. They were the only two teams to drop the Eagles.

The Eagle line threw up a rock-ribbed defense against the Washington team and held them to minus 29 yards rushing. Washington is undefeated in the class AA Northeastern conference.

Morehead City will be stepping back into their own class A division when they scrap Wallace, Wallace, holding a 3-2 record, lost their second game of the season Friday against Smithfield, 14-7.

The Eagles, on top of the Seashore conference, have a season's record of 5 wins and 2 losses. Both losses came at the hands of AA schools.

After the Wallace trip, Morehead City will have two more games on their slate in Pamlico, Nov. 12, and a home game against Hertford, Nov. 19, to close the season.

The Eagles have a chance to better their 7-2 record of last year if they take the remaining games on their schedule. If they can win the rest they'll wind up the season with an 8-2 record.

Ducks, Geese Are At Mattamuskeet

Ducks and geese by the tens of thousands are arriving at Lake Mattamuskeet, near North Carolina's coast. By full moon (Oct. 12), the migration was in full swing, as the wildfowl followed their seasonal schedule.

Mattamuskeet, winter feeding ground for nearly a quarter million ducks and geese last year, expects a greater influx of winged visitors this season, and even better hunting for the sportsman.

The prediction of a "somewhat greater" gamefowl population at Mattamuskeet in the '54-55 hunting season was made by Willie G. Cahoon, U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service representative in charge of the Mattamuskeet Wildlife Refuge.

Mr. Cahoon is a top authority on gamefowl, with 20 years of background and observation at Mattamuskeet.

"We have more Three-Square around the lake than last year, which usually means more geese, and we have a good crop of duck millet," he said.

Explaining, he said that Three Square is the common term for Scirpus Americanus, a bullrush type of plant which averages about three feet in height, and which geese consider quite a delicacy. Duck millet, echinochloa crusgalli, is tops on the duck's winter menu in North Carolina.

A variety of other plants favored by wildfowl abound in the 50,000-acre refuge area, giving the visitors a well-rounded diet and making 30,000-acre Lake Mattamuskeet a favorite wintering spot along the Atlantic Flyway.

And a favorite it is. Last year, at least 239,000 ducks and geese were accounted for in the Mattamuskeet bill-count. Of this number, Canada geese totaled about 70,000, pintails were slightly ahead with 75,000, and the 16 other species of ducks accounted for a total of 92,000.

From 24 blinds operated with governmental supervision along the southern shore of the lake, a total of 3,429 ducks were killed last season, along with 2,257 pintails, and 2,215 other ducks.

In 1877 there were 15 players on a football team — nine linemen, one quarterback, two halfbacks, one three-quarterback and two fullbacks.
