College Girls Who Know How To Sew Can Dress Best for Less

Gale Briggs, sophomore at Cornell University, wears the dress she copied from a fabulous design original.

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Woman's Editor

A college girl can dress like a queen—if she knows how to sew.

This point was proved recently by Gale Briggs, a sophomore majoring in home economics at Cornell University, who fell in love with a fabulous designer gown with a price tag in the hundreds and duplicated it for pin money on her sewing machine.

The dress Gale selected was a "baby doll" dress she saw on the cover of a fashion magazine. Though its style was simple, it was the exquisite detail that put this dress in the upper price brackets.

The bouffant skirt was made of many strips of organdie put together with dainty lace insertion and lace ruffles, and between the lace were hundreds of tiny tucks. Similar lace trimming was on the bodice.

Gale felt that she could manage to cut out the simple bodice, cum-berbund and gathered skirt without a pattern, but the tucks and lace insertion had her worried.

Then she remembered the advice of her sewing instructor to "use your sewing machine attachments."

Gale, like so many home seamstresses, had used few of the attachments before, but she got out her book of instructions and experimented until she got the effects she wanted.

Gale made all the tucked strips of organdie for the skirt first, using the tucker attachment, which marks the path of the next tuck while you are sewing the preceding one. She made use of the edgetitcher to hold two pieces of fabric together so that the edges just overlap—this for joining together the organdie strips and the lace insertion.

Her ruffler attachment ruffled the lace strips and sewed them in one operation.

In a short time and for a small outlay, Gale had her "dream dress" with all its intricate detail. And here's what it cost: She found some white organdie which had been reduced to 59 cents a yard, bought 20 yards of lace in the dime store for 10 cents a yard, bought taffeta for the cummerbund and slip at 89 cents a yard.

After purchasing the slide fastener, thread and other minor necessities, her total outlay was $14.80. And the dress she copied had sold for more than $300.

Almost any reasonably capable home seamstress could do the same. Gale's sewing instruction consisted of a sewing course in the seventh grade and one semester of clothing instruction at Cornell.

Anyone who isn't making full use of her sewing machine attachments can drop in at any local sewing center, where experts will demonstrate how they work.

Adult Sewing Classes To Meet Thursday Nights

Free sewing classes for adults will begin at 7:30 Thursday in the homemaking department of Beaufort School. The classes were organized by Mrs. David Beveridge, instructor, Tuesday night.

Women interested in attending any or all of the six classes, to be held each Thursday night, should bring with them a sewing box equipped with miscellaneous sewing supplies, a pattern and fabric.

Cutting of the garment will begin this week. Refreshments will be served. The class will be over at 9:30.

Gaskill-Coats

Mr. and Mrs. J. Malcolm Coats of Harkers Island, formerly of Smithfield and Morehead City, announce the marriage of their daughter, Arilea, to Mr. Johnnie Davis Gaskill Jr., of Harkers Island, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Gaskill.

The wedding took place Saturday, Dec. 18, at the home of the bride's brother, Don Coats of Harkers Island, with the Rev. L. E. Peyton officiating.

The newly-married couple are making their home on Harkers Island.

Three Hostesses Honor Mrs. Everhart at Shower

Mrs. Nellie Lewis of Morehead City, Mrs. Leslie Lewis and Mrs. Frank Lewis entertained at a surprise stork shower Wednesday night at Mrs. Leslie Lewis's home to honor Mrs. Hubert Everhart of High Point, the former Edith Ann Willis.

Games and contests were played during the evening with prizes being awarded the winners.

A basket, decorated as a bassinette, held the gifts which were presented the honor guest.

The hostesses served candy, nuts and soft drinks during the evening and at the end of the evening, ice cream, cake and coffee.

Dorothea Joyce Gillikin To Wed G. K. Lawrence

Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Gillikin of Bettie announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothea Joyce, to Gilbert Keith Lawrence, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Lawrence of Otway.

The wedding will take place Friday, Feb. 18, in the Free Will Baptist Church, Bettie.

Mrs. Chappell Hostess To Anne Neal Circle

The Anne Neal Circle of Ann Street Methodist Church met last Monday with Mrs. Albert Chappell. Mrs. John Herbener gave the devotional and Mrs. Bill Murphy gave the program.

Mrs. Chappell served soft drinks, sandwiches and cookies.
