H. C. Taylor Succeeds Brother On County Board of Commissioners

Harrell C. Taylor, Sea Level, was sworn in yesterday as a member of the County Board of Commissioners. Mr. Taylor returns to the board after an absence of 27 years. He served as a county commissioner from 1924 to 1928.

Administering the oath of office was A. H. James, clerk of Superior Court, who made the appointment.

Mr. James, in a statement issued yesterday, said, "I have today, appointed Harrell C. Taylor a member to the Board of Commissioners of Carteret County to fill out the unexpired term of his late brother, Alvah B. Taylor, deceased."

"In making this appointment I am not unmindful of other very warm friends who were seeking this office, and other close friends, divided, though they were, who were supporting these other friends."

"I must say that it has not been easy for me to make this appointment. I believe that no one of the candidates failing to get the appointment will feel quite so badly as I have felt in having to decline their request."

"It is expedient for me to say that no one person or group of persons has exerted any pressure that might be considered unreasonable, because all of the candidates and their sponsors are mutual friends."

Mr. Taylor operates a store and fish business at Sea Level and was in partnership with his late brother. He is a Mason, a Shriner and a member of the Free Will Baptist Church.

Did Jealousy Prompt Murder?

Did Karen Andre murder her employer, Bjorn Faulkner? The answer lies with the jury. The case will go on trial at the Beaufort courthouse next Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights starting at 8 p.m.

Starter testimony will reveal incidents on "The Night of January 16th"—the night on which a wealthy financier met his death in his penthouse apartment.

Members of the Carteret Community Theatre will be witnesses, lawyers, judge and other court personnel. Members of the jury—may be you. The jury will be selected from members of the audience before the trial begins.

Just as in an actual trial, no one knows what the outcome will be until the jury renders its verdict. The judge then will pronounce sentence.
