House Goes for Ride

Whether it's a boat or house, it doesn't necessarily stay anchored. This house was moved about 15 miles the other day. Its owner, G. W. Wilkins, Morehead City, had it raised, put on a truck and taken west of Newport to the Marine Park real estate section. The house originally stood between 22nd and 23rd Street on Arendell. State Highway Patrolman R. H. Brown stands on Highway 70, at the right, while the house is moved on to its new site. At the time this picture was taken, the movers were having trouble getting the house across a ditch.

Shore Melts Away

The shore line of Marshallberg harbor gives way to the cutter head, lower right, of the dredge Marion, as work continues on the harbor. The dredge was maneuvering near the shore and for a brief instant the cutter head, seldom seen by onlookers, broke above the surface of the water to suck part of the shore into the pipes, which are spewing sand onto low places along what will be the new shore line. The Marion is operated by the Steen Dredging Co. of Norfolk. Gibbs Lowis, Beaufort.
