

The Messiah

Founding His part a contributed funds for a chapel, Handel promptly donated a splendid organ and offered to dedicate it with a special performance of his "Sacred Oratorio".

Repentance Sought

The chapel of the fashionable charity was crowded to capacity. There in the solemnity of the chapel the music made so profound an impression that Handel was begged to repeat it.

Scorned for years, The Messiah suddenly became London's best-loved oratorio—and the composer's most profitable work.

The Church endorsed it, and eventually it was performed in Westminster Abbey with full orchestra and a choir of 500 voices. At one of the performances in the presence of King George II, the King was so inspired that when the chorus began to sing the "Hallelujah Chorus", he rose to his feet in adulation.

The audience stood with him and since then it has been the custom for people to stand during the singing of the "Hallelujah Chorus".

To Handel it seemed especially fitting that the music he had written to glorify the birth of a Babe in a manger should be consecrated to the welfare of homeless and unwanted infants. At least once a year, as long as he lived, he conducted The Messiah for the Foundling Hospital. From these concerts, he contributed more than $35,000.

For many years after Handel's death The Messiah was the favorite composition for charities of all kinds. As one writer of the times reported, "It fostered the orphan, fed the hungry, clothed the naked, and relieved suffering more than any single musical production in any country in the world."

With the success of The Messiah, Handel's star rose again. All his neglected compositions were brought out and the adopted genius was rediscovered by London.

Goes Blind

But Handel was old and broken in health. His eyesight was failing. While writing Jephtha (the oratorio containing a chorus significantly titled "How Dark, O Lord, Are Thy Ways"), Handel went blind.

Despite the loss of his sight and his feeble health, Handel continued to compose and conduct. The aging genius was led to the organ at Covent Garden, and there he directed The Messiah for the last time.

Once again the immortal music proclaimed:

For unto us a Child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulders; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, the Almighty God, the Prince of Peace.

Man Proves His Point With Gun, Firecrackers

Rockville, Md. (AP)—When police rolled up, there stood William Stanton with a machine gun in his hands. Amid sounds of firing, three state roads commissioners covered behind some big oil drums.

A closer inspection showed the gun was wooden. Police found Stanton's wife hiding behind a fence, shooting off firecrackers.

The Stanton made their point. A ramp, planned to enter their property at a place they disappeared, was moved to another location.

Petu combined three Indian words—Petu, Beru and Biru—to gain its name. They mean (in proper order) a river, a chieftain and an Indian territory south of Panama.

Four Movies are Slated For Christmas Week

Morehead City movie fans will have a choice of four good movies during Christmas week. Scheduled to play at the Morehead Theatre Sunday through Tuesday is My Gun is Quick, a Mickey Spillane thriller. Gunsight Ridge, a western, will play the same days at the City Theatre.

The secret formula for My Gun is Quick is 5x39-18-33. To get as scientific as one can get in the presence of five beautiful dolls, the formula explains itself: 5 is the number of luscious ladies who swiggle, wiggle or jiggle through the mystery melodramatics that make up the tension-packed action of this newest Spillane story. 39-18-33, give or take an inch or fraction thereof, are the measurements of bust-waist-hip, respectively.

Gunsight Ridge is an adult western story of a man turned outlaw by a strange quirk of fate. Exciting yet always believable realism marks this production. There is not a single process or faked shot in the entire picture, even hazardous runaway stagecoach sequences were filmed as both camera car and coach careened around hairpin turns high in the Arizona mountains, all caught by Ernst Laszlo's brilliant photography.

frey, be it known, is a handsome gentleman of fine breeding who takes a job as butler for the wackiest family in New York Society circles.

Niven, as the butler, is devastating as he endures the family's way of life, slowly teaching them the foolishness of their manners.

June Allyson, the lovesick daughter for comedy that stamps My Man Godfrey as the finest performance she has ever given on the screen.

Rock Hudson and Dorothy Malone co-star in The Tarnished Angels, scheduled for Wednesday through Saturday at the City Theatre.

The story revolves around a romance between Hudson, a newspaper reporter, and Miss Malone, a parachutist in a barnstorming air circus.

Motorist Attempts to Eat His Suspended License

San Diego, Calif. (AP)—When Police Officer Leonard Baber stopped Raymond T. Camoras, 23, for a minor traffic violation he found him trying to eat his driver's license.

"Why?" asked Baber.

"My license was suspended a year ago and I just have to drive a car," was Camoras' puzzling explanation.
