Peter Block Gives Party

The Rev. Seldon Bullard, left, and Peter Block, host, look out over the crowd that assembled for the Christmas party at the Block home Saturday night, Dec. 21. There were 535 guests.

Undoubtedly the biggest Christmas party in the county is the party given by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Block, who live on the Crab Point Road just outside the city limits of Morehead.

Attending the party this year, on Saturday night, Dec. 21, were 535 adults and children. The Blocks gave each one a Christmas treat—a bag with an orange, candy, tangerines, apple, pecans, raisins and chewing gum.

Mr. Block invites everybody. His Christmas parties have been big events for the past five years.

They started, he said, after his son was very sick some years ago with pneumonia. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Woodland of Morehead City played Santa Claus for the boy and Mr. Block decided then that if he ever had the means to do it, he would do something for someone else at Christmas time.

At this year's party there was singing led by Al McElmon of Morehead City, numbers by the Persuading Five, a choral quintet, songs by the choir of the Crab Point Free Will Baptist Church, and prayer by the Rev. Seldon Bullard, pastor of the First Free Will Baptist Church, Morehead City.

Ex-Con Makes Two Tries Before He Lands in Jail

Cleveland (AP)—An ex-convict who likes jail so well he steals to get back into it had to try twice before a federal judge would accommodate him.

Howard W. Schaffer, a transient who has spent 25 of his 51 years behind bars, was given a suspended sentence and fined $100 for stealing a letter from the mails. Balked at this attempt to land in jail, he went out the next day, stole another letter from a rural mailbox and triumphantly gave it unopened to police.

This time Federal Judge Paul C. Weick obligingly gave him three years.

Ironing Board Catches Woman's Bedding on Fire
