High School Writing
Choice prose and poetic writings by juniors and seniors, done during this semester and the last, have been submitted to the North Carolina English Teachers Association for possible publication.

In competition with good writing by students all over North Carolina, these selections will be routed by Miss Cora Bomar, at the State Department of Public Instruction in Raleigh, to three of the sixteen reader-judges, who are outstanding high school and college English teachers.

Manuscripts accepted will appear in the exclusive student issue of the North Carolina English Teacher. Superior compositions not printed will receive honorable mention. Successful writers may request that a letter of commendation be sent to the college they hope to enter.

Seniors have sent in the following entries: Alice Dixon, a poem, A Christmas Thought, and an exposition, Sputnik; Romelda Sheppard, an editorial, The Race Is On; Ben Day, a poem, The Unchanging Sea, and a sketch, Obtaining a Christmas Tree.

Ted Phillips, a poem, 'Tis Life, and an essay, World Affairs; Tressa O'Neal, a short story, Many Moonlight Kisses Cool in the Warmth of the Sun; Sabra Eubanks, a poem, Eternal Adolescent Unrest; Llewellyn Phillips, a short story, Rendezvous.

David Nelson, a modern idiomatic version of a portion of our earliest English epic, Beowulf's Answer to Unferth's Taunt, and a humorous poem in fractured German, Prologue zu Eine Basketballer...

Juniors' work submitted includes John Morton's poem, The Old Seaman; Ruby Gatlin Wray's poem, Morehead City; and Patricia Willis' informal essay, Those Were the Days: 1947.

A copy of the Student Issue will be sent to each writer whose work is printed, and additional copies will be available at small cost. April 1, publication date, is hopefully awaited by aspiring authors and their teachers, Mrs. Rosalie Dowdy and Miss Charlotte Ann Field.

Principal Comments

The conduct of our students at basketball games this year, generally speaking, has been very good. Support for our teams has also been very satisfying to me personally, and certainly appreciated by our boys and girls who play and lead the cheers.

The quality of sportsmanship has been high on the court and off, but we can always strive to make it better. This year I wish above all that Morehead City could win the sportsmanship award. Whether we win it or not, let us renew our determination here and now to be worthy of it anyway.

One of the strongest indications of good sportsmanship at ball games is to remain quiet while our opponents take their foul shots regardless of their actions when our players are shooting theirs.

4-H Club Meets

On Jan. 14, the 4-H club held its monthly meeting in the auditorium of Morehead High School. After the president, Freddie Oglesby, had called the meeting to order, 5 of the 4-H'ers gave a program on Lands.

Each member took a letter and explained the significance of it: Al Conner had L. Doris Farmer had A, Catherine Lohr had N, Ann Herbert had D, and Barbara Nichols had S.

Mrs. Garner had the next part of the program. She led the members in a song to the tune of Here We Go 'Round the Mulberry Bush. The song was mostly an exercise involving the head, shoulders, knees and toes.

The boys and girls then separated. Mrs. Garner showed the girls some aprons and skirts made by the ten-year old 4-H'ers at Camp Glenn. The girls were also reminded of the spring dress review. Mrs. Garner also explained why it is necessary to have Vegetables in January.

Mr. Venters lectured the boys on starting spring planting early.

Story Hour Enjoyed
On Monday night it would have seemed to a casual passerby that the younger pupils of Morehead City Graded School were having a meeting, and that "parent-sitting" was provided for those who had to bring adults.

The truth was that the Library Club provided a story hour for young children whose parents were coming to PTA. However, the attendance for the story hour seemed greater than that of the PTA.

Clarence Styron, chairman, had announced in grades 1 to 5 at lunch time that entertainment would be furnished in the high school library. Admission would be one parent.

Some of the parents of the children must have had previous engagements, but the children didn't want to pass up the program in store.

Two high school teachers who stayed late Monday afternoon directed an early arrival to the "room where the story hour was." Before they left they saw others waiting on the front steps, an hour and a half to while away before PTA would start.

Forty-five boys and 48 girls saw such cartoons as Woody Woodpecker, Abbott and Costello and Mighty Mouse and listened to recorded stories.

After the program the children stopped by to pick up their parents in the auditorium and went home looking forward to the next PTA meeting.

The movies and records were furnished by Clarence Styron, who

Mr. Joslyn said it costs $168.72 per year per child in school and counties need to assume more obligations to the school system.

Mr. Lenwood Lee, principal, announced a meeting of the citizens committee for better schools in Greenville Friday and urged interested persons to attend, especially members of the school board.

It was announced that the twice-postponed carnival will be discussed at the next meeting. The executive board of the PTA will meet at 4:30 Monday at the school. Mr. Lee also announced that the elementary library is now functioning.

During the meeting, the children were entertained in the library. Cartoon films were shown and games and books were available.
