Speaker Tells How Town Can Lure Boatmen

W. S. Kals, a free lance writer and photographer, spoke at the meeting of the Morehead City Rotary Club Thursday night. Mr. Kals, a native of Austria, now a Canadian citizen living in Vancouver is on his way from Chester, Nova Scotia to the Bahamas aboard his 30-foot schooner.

He particularly commented on the advantages Morehead City has to offer the travelers, north and south, using the inland waterway, and offered suggestions for the promotion of Morehead City as a stop-over point.

He said a good slogan that might be used would be "Once you get to Morehead City, you have it made". In this regard he mentioned the difficulties encountered by the small boat in traversing or passing through such bodies of water as "Hell's Gate" near New York, the Chesapeake Bay, Albemarle Sound and Pamlico Sound, the lack of convenient facilities on the way down and the distances between accessible safe anchorages, should bad weather come up.

He brought out that Morehead City was the first place where the small boat could go outside sensibly, since there are numerous inlets into sounds where one could duck in if necessary.

The town needs more dock space to assure more stop-overs, said Mr. Kals, and a committee of the townspeople could visit each of the boats and get acquainted with the travelers. They could be taken on a short tour of the area, visiting such scenic and historical places as Fort Macon, informed of the hotel and motel facilities available, since quite often a night ashore is welcomed after being on the boat for several days.

The men would enjoy knowing that they could lay over for a day or two and do some sport fishing. The visiting committee could distribute free, stamped postcards which is an excellent low-cost way to advertise and promote the area.

Mr. Kals said he was enjoying his stay in Morehead and expected to be here a few more days while he was having some repairs made to his boat.

Mr. Kals was introduced by Dr. S. O. Thorne, program chairman. Visiting Rotarians were Dr. Charles L. Milone and Don R. Hancock, both of Effingham, Ill. The club met at the Rex Restaurant.
