Four Eastern Cities Join Hands In Development of Region

Presidents, managers and industrial development chairmen from the Chambers of Commerce of Goldsboro, Kinston, New Bern and Morehead City met at the Rex Restaurant Wednesday night to complete the organization of an area association, which has been named the Neuse Development Association.

All four communities have a common interest in the development of traffic and industry along the route of the Southern Railway and US Highway 70. All are vitally interested in the progress of the state port at Morehead City and all are dependent upon the fresh water supply of the Lower Neuse River, comments J. M. Davis, president of the Morehead City chamber of commerce.

Don Dikeman, of the New Bern chamber insisted that the major factor in attracting industry was to have funds available for construction of buildings on a lease agreement.

J. D. Lewis, president of the Goldsboro Chamber said that their funds were raised by contributions of from $1,000 to $5,000, ten per cent paid into the corporation, the

He also stated that each community should conduct its own survey. He stressed the need of funds, so that when a suitable industry is located something definite could be offered. He noted that loans were available from the Small Business Administration.

Harvey Hamilton Jr., Morehead City attorney, both won and "lost" a case for his clients, D. J. Hall and Emma Lee Grantham, in county recorder's court yesterday.

Judge L. R. Morris granted Hamilton's motion for dismissal in a case charging Mrs. Grantham with occupying a motel room for immoral purposes.

Hamilton moved for dismissal as to Hall, who faced the same charge, but the judge did not grant the motion and Wiley Taylor Jr., solicitor, requested a jury trial. Hamilton inferred, after the case closed, that a grand jury would never find a true bill and thus Hall's case would never go before a jury.

Mrs. Grantham and Hall were originally charged with cohabitation, but the state amended the warrant and agreed to separation of the cases for purpose of trial. Mrs. Grantham's case was heard first.

The state called to the witness stand Mrs. D. J. Hall, Morehead City, who is legally separated from D. J. Hall, defendant in the case.

Mrs. Hall testified that she saw Mrs. Grantham and Hall riding in an automobile on highway 70 the night of April 3 and that they proceeded to a motel at the beach. They went into a motel room, she said, then she continued to drive up the Salter Path road, turned and came back and parked in front of the motel.

She said that she sat there until she saw the lights go out in the room in which Mrs. Grantham and Hall were, then she went to see Bill Moore, beach chief of police. After speaking with Moore, she testified that she went to the home of A. H. James, clerk of superior court in Morehead City, and got a warrant.

She returned to the beach police station and then with chief Moore,

Prisoner Breaks Law While Serving Time

You can break the law even while serving time for breaking the law. This was proved yesterday in county recorder's court when 18-year-old Elbert A. Foy, New Bern, was found guilty of breaking in the storeroom at the Newport prison camp.

The break-in occurred Saturday. Foy told officers he wanted some cigarettes. At the time he was serving three months for slicing up someone with a knife at New Bern.

Cabbage Farmers Ship Out Big Loads This Week

The busiest farmers in Carteret County this week are the cabbage producers. Even though movement of cabbage out of the county has been favorable, prices received by growers have been considerably lower than the opening market prices.

Due largely to adverse conditions during the early growing period and the lack of an adequate amount of moisture at present, cabbage tonnage on many farms will be only average for this year.

It has been reported that the old Irish potato supply is still plentiful and indications are at the present time that these potatoes will continue to move into the edible trade during the month of June. The mid-western area of old potatoes is expected to be out of the way by the last of this month.

During the fall and winter months a ten-year farm census will be taken. Our federal farm census is the basic source of information on agricultural and rural living. This census information is very important to all agricultural workers.

It will provide the latest up-to-date facts on the rapid changes taking place in agriculture. There is no other source of agricultural information that is quite as complete and as basic to our agricultural program as this census information. I would like to urge everyone who might play any part in preparing this federal census information to give as accurate information as possible.

Bill Stanton, extension eastern district forestry specialist, will be in Carteret today. He will be working with several of our timber owners with forestry problems. Anyone interested in obtaining Mr. Stanton's services in carrying out better forestry management practices on their farm is asked to contact our office.

Rotarians Discuss Current Events

The program at the Tuesday night meeting of the Beaufort Rotary club consisted of a discussion of current events in which Rotarians are involved.
