'Round About Town

By ALICE H. TAYLOR

The Garden Club meeting, held last week, displayed some of the most ardent enthusiasm for this great avocation to be seen in a long time. Though the group was not as large as expected, many helpful suggestions were made concerning what bulbs should be planted now, how to prune, when to prune, and other helpful suggestions.

Mrs. Mabel Gilchrist discussed the tremendous beautification program that's been undertaken in Norfolk, which has met with great success. She also pointed out that to get ideas on the organization of a garden club, she had talked with the Morehead City Club, and the Swansboro Garden Club, which incidentally, is affiliated with the Woman's Club in Jacksonville.

In Morehead City, the Garden Club is in the Garden, and Clives Division of the Woman's Club.

A magazine of great value to those interested in gardening was brought by Mrs. Gilchrist for the group to see. It is the North Carolina Gardener, available only through membership in a garden club. Mrs. Gilchrist suggested to the group that our local Garden Club be sponsored jointly by the Senior and Junior Woman's Clubs, with a steering committee composed of members from both clubs.

Suggestions as to how Beaufort could further be beautified with the upcoming Centennial in mind were made. Mrs. Julia Copeland commented on a concentrated drive to have plenty of flowers in bloom that would make a good showing.

Since the celebration is planned for June, she noted that the spectacular blooms of hydrangeas, peonias, zinnias, and roses would make a good showing, and at the same time be economical to obtain and easy to grow. Mr. R. M. Williams then pointed out that in connection with this same idea, the small pines which have died on Front Street should be replaced immediately so as not to break the continuity and keep a uniform size.

He also stated that the Soil Testing Service program would extend through this week, due to last week's bad weather. Just before we adjourned, plants and rootings were exchanged, and yours truly came home with nine pine seedlings and eight big strawberry plants.

Several members of the group, when asked when to have another meeting, stated that many mothers with children in school had expressed a desire for morning meetings, so the group decided to meet again Thursday, Nov. 12, at 10:30 at the Scout Building. We hope all of you who couldn't make it to the last meeting will attend this one. The group will be privileged to have Katie Jones Thomas of the Beaufort Florist show some attractive Thanksgiving and Christmas arrangements suitable for your home. Make a note of this meeting now... you're sure to enjoy it.

Notes about town: For a beautiful sight to behold, notice the yard of Mrs. Dan Willis on Front Street. Her flowers and lawn are lovely, showing many hours of loving care and attention. Other residences bathed in autumn splendor are those of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Gaskill, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Smith, and Mr. and Mrs. Korn on Ann Street Extension.

The Korns are newly-acquired residents of Beaufort, having moved here from Ohio to retire, and the pride and attention they've given their home and yard is a heart-warming sight, and one lots of us could well heed. In the building line, the William Roy Hamilton's home continues to grow taller and bigger... the Leonard Saffrit's have started their new home next to Dr. Salter's on Front Extension... Mr. Haynes, former manager of the 5 & 10, is planning to retire soon and now has a home under construction on Copeland Road... and the Floyd Johnson's new home is extremely attractive with its neat yard and newly paved driveway.

Next week we'll discuss Beaufort's plans for Christmas and some of the decorations and floats that'll be presented in the bigger-than-ever parade to be held Dec. 4. Till then, help keep Beaufort beautiful!
