Dec. 21 — The Merrimon Home Demonstration Club had their Christmas party in the community building on Dec. 5. There were twelve members present, eleven husbands and quite a number of children.

Every member carried a gift to exchange. These were placed under a beautiful lighted Christmas tree, after singing a number of Christmas carols.

Our new president, Selvia Carraway, gave the scripture reading using the second chapter of St. Luke. Laura Hardy then led the prayer.

Mrs. Mildred Lawrence read a story, What Christmas means to Me.

Lois Stallings and Thelma Pittman then led the group in a number of games, which kept everyone in an uproar. Very funny.

After this Ellen Dixon and Shirley Pittman came out with a flannel board they had collected, old snapshots and photographs of the club members, made many years ago. They had them mounted on the board and each member had to tell who each one was. This was a scream.

During the first of the year I promised a prize to the club member reading the greatest number of library books, and keeping a list of them for the year. One reason I did this I have a book station in my home, and I get so much pleasure reading, I wanted to share them with some one else. After checking we found that Thelma Pittman had read the most, 65 in all, with Flossie Pittman next with 39.

Most people ask where did they get the time to do all this reading, both are busy housewives. Thelma did all her work and had a part-time job all during summer, and fall. And Flossie, oh well I would not like to have to keep up with her, and she going to curb market three times a week.

While this was going on Fannie Wallace, Dora Wallace and Lois Stallings were busy cutting pies and cakes, pouring coffee, cool aid and hot chocolate, and every one enjoyed this part of the party.

School Children Give Program

The children of St. Egbert's Catholic School presented a Christmas program Friday night at the school. The school was beautifully decorated.

Both the stage and the curtain of white veiling had been decorated by the children with silver stars to represent heaven. The stage was centered with a huge white lily made by Mother Marie Delores. The tip of each petal was lit with a white light.

The lily was representing the Madonna and in the center was a statue of the infant Jesus.

Narrators were Michael Clapsad, Clarke Gaskill, Carol Beeler and Anna Marie Davis. They told the Christmas story as other students acted out scenes.

Angels were Mary Elizabeth Bel-lamah, Mary Brady, Susan Zittere, Lindsay Hatcher, Paula Gonsoulin, Barbara Montgomery and Joan Norris.

Dancers were Karen Zittere, Kathleen Johnson, Susan Willis, Katherine Fasano, Carol Morris, Candace Houston, Nancy Garner, Cecelia Hyman, Sherry Williams, Lucy Marino.

Soldiers who did a precision drill before laying their swords at the feet of the infant were Michael Rhodes, Thomas Pagano, John Femia, Donald Gerber, Frederick Anthony, Mark Gilmour, Steven Fasano, Kevin McDeed, Robert Harnett and Pat Bannon.

Two choirs sang Christmas carols in English and Spanish throughout the program and at the conclusion the entire student body sang carols.
